LEADER SOUGHT FOR 4 BILLION JOB PROGRAM

White House Wants National Figure.

Court Confers on Gold

Justices of U. S. Supreme court meet to discuss constitutionality of gold clause order, one of most vital phases of New Deal program. President's monetary advisers ready with bills to reestablish devaluated dollar and revised gold price, should decision go against them. Several alternative bills drafted in preparation for various types of adverse ruling. Details on page 3.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—White House attachés are toying inconclusively with the idea of advancing Henry Ford as a possible administrator of President Roosevelt's 4 billion dollar work relief program, it was learned today.

Mention of the motor magnate's name has come up as the President's secretariat cast about for an administrator who will catch the public imagination and be immune from charges of political pork barreling.

The same sources which revealed that the Ford suggestion had been made, however, are inclined to believe that, for many reasons, political and personal, nothing will come of it.

Roosevelt Maps Plans.

President Roosevelt himself has not been sounded out, it is believed. The chief executive is spending the weekend drawing definite plans for his 4 billion dollar venture into unemployment relief.

The mention of Ford's name is regarded as especially significant here, because it reveals a hitherto unpublicized desire on the part of the administration to find a prominent national figure, disassociated from politics and from the active New Deal corps, who will preside over the huge 4 billion dollar relief fund, at least as a "front," during the critical presidential election year of 1935-'36.

The White House is anxious to avoid, if possible, a recurrence of the charges that the New Deal buys its votes with relief money.

Mentioned at Conference.

The possibility of offering the post to Mr. Ford was brought up, it was learned, at a recent conference between White House attachés and advisers in a room at the Mayflower hotel.

The names of two of the President's secretaries are closely linked with this quiet conference and with the Ford report generally. These two officials are the ones who normally would draw up a panel of possible appointees from which President Roosevelt would make his final selection.

Although it was still alive this week, the possibility of Ford ever being offered the work relief directorship is expected to die an early death. In the first place, observers consider it unlikely that Ford would accept the post and certain that the White House never would tender an offer without first being assured of its acceptance.

Point to NRA Fight.

Ford's differences with the NRA over the automobile code are pointed to as a primary stumbling block, but this drawback could be overcome.

On the other hand, even though the Ford suggestion seems marked for the discard as impractical, its mere existence has disclosed a previously unknown nuance of administration policy. It disclosed that the White House secretariat has been instructed to find a work relief director who is known to the country for his administrative acumen and for his political neutrality.

Other camps in the New Deal, however, are said to be urging that one of the wheel horses of the administration, either Relief Administrator Hopkins or Public Works Administrator Harold Ickes, be given the work relief directorship. If the choice narrows to these two, Hopkins is believed to be the favorite.

Definite information that the President is casting around outside his immediate staf for an administrator, however, came when it was learned the post tentatively had been offered to Frank Walker, who resigned last summer as director of the National Emergency council.

Walker has refused, at least tentatively. From one point of view he was most unacceptable, having been treasurer of the Democratic national com-

HIRED SLUGGER LINKS KEHOE TO BUS MURDER

Violence in Strike Echoes at Trial.

The crashing of glass in bus windows which marked the strike against the Chicago Motor Coach company last summer echoed again yesterday before the jury hearing the trial of William Taber and Joseph J. Kehoe, officials of the street car men's union, charged with the murder of James J. Kelly, a bus dispatcher.

Kelly, on his way home early Sept. 26, was dragged from a street car by a gang of sluggers, beaten and shot, and left to die, and it was the confessed leader of this hired vandal band who yesterday recounted the story of strike violence preceding Kelly's murder.

Separate Trials for 27.

Twenty-seven others were indicted in connection with the bus dispatcher's death and other violence, but all have been granted trials separate from this one.

It was Earl Renner, sole witness yesterday, admitted chief of a gang of window smashers, who unfolded for the jury a story of hired vandalism marked by peril to life and property.

Renner, 41 years old, the father of six children (their home is at 2422 North 72d avenue, Elmwood Park), said he had been a professional football player, later a saloonkeeper, and had been employed as a street car conductor.

Hired by Kehoe, He Testifies.

Sitting in the witness stand, about to tell of the events leading to the murder of Kelly by himself and his gang, he began by telling of his friendship with Kehoe, the man he said hired him as a strike terrorist. He pictured Kehoe as his benefactor, but he did not hesitate to give testimony through which Assistant State's Attorneys Wilbert F. Crowley and Mal Coghlan are seeking to link Kehoe and Taber to the murder of Kelly.

The state contends that in employing the terrorists, Kehoe and Taber began a conspiracy which later resulted in murder, and that under the law Kehoe and Taber are as guilty of that murder as are the men who beat and shot the bus dispatcher.

Renner said that he had known Kehoe since 1921. Both were employed as conductors for the street car company at the time, he said, and their friendship flowered. Under Prosecutor Coghlan's questioning he admitted that he had been discharged repeatedly for "rerouting" trolley fares to his own pockets.

Often Befriended by Kehoe.

Each time he was discharged he went to Kehoe, he said, and the latter was instrumental in his being reinstated. He last was employed by the company in 1924, he said.

Elaborating on the long standing friendship, the witness told of calling on Kehoe whenever he needed help or advice even when he no longer was a conductor. "One time," he related, "when my boy lost the sight of one eye, I went to Joe and he arranged for the boy to be treated at a free clinic.

"Another time when I was short in collections for ice boxes I went to Joe and he loaned me $80." [At that time Renner was a truck driver for the Commonwealth Edison company.]

The witness testified that he had been arrested twice for disorderly conduct and had been fined for violation of the prohibition law, having taken up speakeasy operation after his checkered career as a "nickel rerouter" and collector whose accounts wouldn't balance.

Strike Means a Job.

"When I heard about the bus strike on Aug. 18," he told, for the benefit of the jury, "I called Joe on the telephone at headquarters. He told me to come in and see him the following Monday morning."

In recounting his various meetings with Kehoe, the witness said Kehoe instructed him to organize a gang and throw stones through bus windows. Albert Semple, William Semple, Joseph White, and John Bretschneider [all of

HUNGRY ROBBER WON BY VICTIM'S HARD LUCK TALE

Conrad Pranger of 6613 South Peoria street, his arms full of groceries, was crossing a vacant lot toward his kitchen door last night when a robber with a drawn pistol confronted him.

"Do you realize," said Pranger, "that times have been awful tough with me. If you take these groceries and the little money that's left of my pay check my wife and two kids will be hungry all next week."

The bandit said he was hungry, too.

"You put your pistol in your pocket and come in with me," suggested Pranger. "We'll have something to eat."

Together they went into the house. Mrs. Pranger made coffee for the gunman and fed him liberally. He ate with evident enjoyment, and when he had finished thrust a hand into a pocket. For an instant Pranger was fearful his guest was going to repent of his reformation. But he wasn't.

"Here's a nickel for each of you," said the stranger to the two young Prangers, handing one a penny and the other a quarter.

And having said that he went away.

Coolidge's Kin in Prison for Ashman's Love

Rutland, Vt., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A cousin of Calvin Coolidge and niece of former Gov. Stickney of Vermont, Miss Bertha Moore, is in jail here because she can't raise the $5,000 a jury decided she must pay the wife of an ash collector who was the object of her affections. Miss Moore called the ashman her "sweet potato."

She's starting her third month of incarceration and is likely to be held three months more if she doesn't find the $5,000 the jury said was due to Mrs. Carmen (Pat) Gilman in an alienation verdict. Pat, the Romeo, is missing.

Neighbors Sympathetic.

The middle aged Miss Moore has the sympathy of her old neighbors in Ludlow, where for many years she was village clerk.

In Vermont a delay of six months is customary before a person is allowed a poor debtor's oath, and that, it appears, may be Miss Moore's avenue of escape.

It is difficult for neighbors to associate Miss Moore and Pat, 17 years her junior, in a romance. But there are her letters to prove it. Pat was her "sweet potato," letters read at the trial showed.

Friends Visit Jail.

Meanwhile, she reads and knits in jail, and receives calls from loyal neighbors.

Mrs. Gilman supports herself by working in a Ludlow mill.

John Garibaldi Sargent, attorney general under Coolidge, defended Miss Moore, and, after the verdict was returned, furnished bail, but subsequently withdrew it.

Governor Seeking Relief Gets Advice from Expert

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Gov. Hoffman of New Jersey was here today to confer with Relief Administrator Hopkins on relief problems. He was accosted on Pennsylvania avenue by a panhandler who requested a nickel "for a cup of coffee."

"Why," the governor exclaimed, "I'm here right now seeking relief."

"Oke, captain," the reply snapped back, "I'll show you where you can get four bits on that coat."

Nazis Condemn Man with Harelip to Sterilization

ROSTOCK, Germany, Jan. 19.—[U. P.]—A man with a harelip has been sentenced to sterilization, it was announced today, on the ground that his children might inherit the blemish. The ministry of health of Baden denounced the decision as ridiculous.

APPLY LASH TO 3 YOUTHS FOR BEATING, THEFT

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Delaware's ancient means of punishment—the whipping post—was used again today as the lash was laid across the bare backs of three youths who confessed having beaten and robbed a farmer Christmas eve.

Shivering in the subfreezing weather and naked to the waist, they came one by one to a small enclosed yard at the New Castle workhouse where Warden Elmer J. Leach applied the lashes to them in less than four minutes. About 75 men were witnesses.

The trio—Walter L. Bedwell, 18, and Hazel Donovan, 21, and John Lightcap Jr., 23—bore red streaks as they left the scene, but jail officials said the marks were superficial.

Andrew E. Skaggs, victim of the youths' assault and robbery Dec. 24, has not recovered from injuries. They robbed him of $105.

The trio were arrested a few days later and a week ago pleaded guilty. In addition to the whipping the three were sentenced to three years imprisonment.

The youths were treated at the prison hospital and taken to their cells.

"Their backs will be sore from two to four days," said Warden Leach.

Just Carried Gun to Kill Himself, He Tells Judge

Cleveland, O., Jan. 19.—(AP)—When Howard Milton, 23, was arraigned today on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon he had an excuse ready.

"I was going to shoot myself," he told Judge George P. Baer.

"Why didn't you?" the judge asked.

"I lost my nerve."

"Thirty days and costs."

Subzero Wave Nears Chicago; Grips Midwest

With the doors of Alaska's arctic refrigerators standing wide open, Chicago last night awaited its severest cold wave of the season. By nightfall, if not earlier today, temperatures of zero or below are expected, with the prospect of even colder weather during the next two or three days. A sharp dip in the mercury is expected early this morning, accompanied by snow and strong winds.

Heavy fog hung over the Chicago area last night. Quincy also reported heavy fog, and residents there were warned by the Keokuk, Ia., weather bureau to expect a temperature of five below zero early this morning. However, they declined to take the warning seriously, for the temperature was in the 40s shortly before midnight.

Early last night the spearhead of the northwest's onslaught had reached central Iowa, western Wisconsin, Oklahoma, and northern and central Missouri. Temperatures there were dropping several degrees hourly. A low of 30 below zero in some parts of Wisconsin before the cold wave subsides is expected.

Below Zero in Twin Cities.

Northward, Minnesota was already in the grip of its most intense cold of the season. With a reading in the Twin Cities of 2 below at 7 p. m., forecasters predicted those cities would have readings of 15 below by morning, with 25 below in the northern part of the state.

As the heavy mass of frigid air rolls on, the entire Ohio valley is expected to be in its grip late today or tomorrow. The source of this cold is a high barometric pressure area over southwestern Canada and the Yukon.

Telegraphic dispatches from the northwest credited the lowest temperature yesterday to Endako, British Columbia, 57 degrees below zero. Prince Albert, Canada, had 45 below. Reports last night to the weather bureau showed temperatures had reached a low of 40 below at Minnedosa, Manitoba; 30 below at Devils Lake, N. D., and 22 below at Moorehead, Minn.

May Escape Full Force.

While Chicago and the lower portions of the Great Lakes states may escape the full force of the new wave today, W. P. Day, government forecaster, predicted the most intense cold of the season before warmer weather sets in.

"It should be zero weather or possibly a degree below by nightfall," said Mr. Day. "The cold will probably last at least two or three days. It would have arrived today, but was delayed by a warm air mass around the southern Rockies which interfered somewhat. The movements of a large cold air mass are always difficult to forecast."

Snow as Far South as Texas.

Many sections of the country yesterday experienced unusual weather. From Alaska down to California an eight day blizzard howled, taking a toll of ten lives. At San Francisco water froze in puddles on the streets. Mountain passes were blocked with twelve feet of snow.

Heavy snow and cold prevailed almost generally east of the mountains. As far south as Texas snow drifted across roadways. Motor trafic in Duluth and the Twin Cities was almost at a standstill.

Snow fell in Iowa, where low temperatures of 25 below in the north to 10 below in the south were forecast generally as the mercury dropped sharply. At 11 p. m. it was 8 below at Sioux City and only 1 above at Waterloo.

Movie Company Carries Some 'Snow to Snowcastle'

Bellingham, Wash., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A movie company coming to film an Alaskan story in this country, where snow is fourteen feet deep, brought its own snowstorm along today. The property "snow" was cornflakes.

EX-LANDLORD READY TO SWEAR IT WAS IN ATTIC

Hauptmann's Use of Money Told.

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—While Bruno Richard Hauptmann pored over photostat copies of his bank and brokerage accounts in the county jail here today his former Bronx landlord, Max Rausch waited in prosecution headquarters at Trenton to testify that he saw part of the kidnaper's ladder in the attic of Hauptmann's home before the crime.

Before the state of New Jersey concludes some time next week the presentation of its case against Hauptmann for the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., two bitter legal battles are expected between prosecution and defense over the ladder and Hauptmann's extensive financial transactions after the $50,000 ransom was paid on April 1, 1932.

Try to Show Finances.

When court was adjourned yesterday until 10 o'clock Monday morning, the state had just begun to produce evidence in support of its contention that Hauptmann, a carpenter previously of small means, had never done "a stroke of work" since the ransom payment, but had thereafter spent money lavishly.

To offset such testimony the defense will try to show that Hauptmann and his wife were thrifty persons who had saved money over a period of years and had had substantial bank accounts and financial dealings before as well as after the kidnaping.

The fight over the ladder has gone on intermittently almost since the beginning of the trial. So far the state has not been able to get the ladder into evidence, because of defense objections that it has not been connected with Hauptmann, and that the state has not sufficiently accounted for everything that happened to the ladder since it was found outside the Lindbergh home the night of the kidnaping as to prove that it has not been tampered with.

Seek to Prove Building.

Next week the state will produce several witnesses in an effort to prove that Hauptmann built the ladder. Besides Rausch, these will include Arthur Koehler, wood technologist for the United States government, and carpenters of the New York City police department.

According to the prosecution, the ladder is one of the most vital pieces of evidence in the case because part of it came from the inside of Hauptmann's home in the Bronx. The ladder is a sectional ladder in three parts, one fitting into the other, telescope fashion. The right upright of the bottom section, the state contends, can be identified positively as having once been one of a number of joists in the attic or hanging ceiling between Hauptmann's apartment and the roof of the house where he lived.

These joints were laid along the unfinished floor of the attic. According to the prosecution, some one could walk along them when it was necessary to make repairs to the roof or to the wiring in the house. They are long and narrow.

Identification is Expected.

Rausch is expected, according to the prosecution, to identify the ladder upright in question as one of the joists which had been in the Hauptmann attic, and to testify that he had seen it there. The state also expects to show from Mr. Koehler's expert testimony that the ladder upright was the same kind of wood and the same size and description as the remaining joists in the attic, and that whereas the rest of the ladder was made of soft pine, this particular upright was of fir.

The state will produce other joists from the attic in court, and Mr. Koehler will make a microscopic examination of them for the jury, also showing greatly enlarged microscopic photographs of the rings in the wood of the upright and the joists, showing their measurements to be alike when computed by micrometers.

Police carpenters are expected to testify that they found an empty space on the attic floor where one of the joists had been taken up, and that the ladder upright fitted this space exactly. They will also say that nail holes in the upright which were not used in the construction of the ladder, were in the exact places where they should have been, if the piece of wood had been one of the joists nailed into the attic flooring.

Sawdust May Be Clew.

Near the space from which the missing joist was taken, according to the carpenters, was found some sawdust, which the state contends was deposited when Hauptmann sawed out holes in the joist for fitting the ladder rungs into the upright.

In this part of the case, also, the state will try to prove that a wooden plane and other carpenter's tools found in Hauptmann's garage were used in making the ladder. The state will put particular emphasis upon the wood and metal timber clamps or portable vises, which it will try to show were used by Hauptmann in working on the ladder.

The prosecution disclosed today that it will also contend that the chisel found near the ladder about seventy feet from the Lindbergh house was the only tool missing from the chest of tools found in Hauptmann's garage, and was identical with the chisel Hauptmann had owned. This chisel, according to the state, was used to mortise the uprights of the ladder for the inset rungs.

Attack Wood Carver's Story.

According to the prosecution, police testimony in connection with the ladder will completely explode the story told by Abe Samuelson, a Bronx woodcarver, who built the money box in which Dr. John F. Condon paid the ransom money, that he also built the kidnaper's ladder. Nails which Samuelson said were driven into the ladder by him, according to the state, were actually put in by the police.

Besides trying to prove that part of the ladder actually came from Hauptmann's attic, the state also will offer evidence that most of the wood used in it had been traced by Mr. Koehler about a year before Hauptmann's arrest to a Bronx lumber yard. After Hauptmann's arrest the authorities learned that he had previously worked at that particular yard and had bought lumber there, according to the state.

Rausch, in addition to testifying about the ladder, also is expected to testify that he received $20 in Lindbergh ransom money in rent payments by Hauptmann.

Check Bank Accounts.

Significant as the ladder may be with reference to the question whether Hauptmann had the opportunity to commit the crime with which he is charged, the question of his banking and brokerage accounts is regarded by both sides as equally important in its bearing upon the motive for the crime.

The state contends that the motive was that Hauptmann wanted money in order to live a life of luxury and ease without working, that he quit his job the very day he collected the ransom, and that he "gambled and speculated with thousands and thousands of dollars" thereafter.

Photostat copies of Hauptmann's banking and brokerage accounts were introduced into evidence at yesterday's session of court and the battle next week will be over their interpretation. While the prosecution tries to show that they mean that Hauptmann handled something like $49,000 of the $50,000 ransom, including the $14,600 found in his garage, from the date of the ransom payment to the present, the defense will fight to prove that not more than about $15,000 of ransom money has been traced to him.

Hauptmann Gets Copies.

A complete set of the photostat copies was supplied to Hauptmann in the jail, at his own request. His lawyers said that he was intensely interested in this phase of the case, and that he was confident he could account for all his financial transactions since the crime in a way to convince the jury that they grew out of property he and his wife had owned and investments they had made before the kidnaping.

Just before Edward J. Reilly, chief defense counsel, returned to his New York home this afternoon with his own set of photostats to study the financial transactions over the weekend, he visited Hauptmann in the jail and found him working hard over his set.

A table had been brought into the bullpen where Hauptmann is allowed to exercise, adjoining his cell, and the prisoner was seated at this table with the records of his past expenditures and investments spread out in front of him.

Reilly Will Get Data.

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The appellate division of the Supreme court in Brooklyn today announced that James M. Fawcett of Brooklyn, former attorney for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, on trial in Flemington, N. J., on a charge of killing the Lindbergh baby, must place in the hands of Edward J. Reilly, present Hauptmann attorney, certain books, papers and information which, the court holds, may be useful to Hauptmann in his effort to free himself of the charge of murder.

SLUGGER'S STORY LINKS KEHOE TO BUS STRIKE DEATH

whom are prisoners and under indictment] comprised his gang, he said.

"We got that bus last night on Sheridan road," he quoted himself as having reported to Kehoe after they had thrown rocks through the windows of a bus filled with passengers.

"Did you do a good job?" Kehoe asked, according to the witness, who related that he assured Kehoe a good job was done.

Describes Bus Attacks.

At one time he said Kehoe suggested he and his crew might do "better work" with slingshots, as a south side gang was using them effectively, but Renner said he replied, "No, I think rocks are better." He told how he and his gang would hurl missiles at a passing bus, listen for the sound of crashing glass, then flee to their waiting automobile and hurry from the scene.

After each such recitation he would tell of his going to see Kehoe next morning and his receiving a payment of $10 for each of his vandals and himself.

Finally, he testified, Bretschneider and White were arrested after one window smashing incident, and when he reported to Kehoe next morning he was told to deal with Abe Margolis, a bondsman, who secured their release on bail.

Warned to Be Cautious.

Renner testified he was instructed by Kehoe to tell his gang to be more cautious in the future, and Kehoe advised them, he said, to keep away from certain sections of the city which were "heavy with police" who were detailed to protect buses and passengers. Then, he said, Kehoe directed him to go to the Fillmore street court to meet Margolis who would point out a man to him.

"He's a bus company slugger and we want you fellows to get him," the witness said Kehoe told him. "Do you know how to break an arm or a leg?"

Renner said he replied he didn't and that Kehoe then asked if any of his men knew how to break a leg or arm.

"I want that party put in a hospital," Kehoe said, according to Renner.

The "party" was named by Renner as William Guangi, who lived in the 2900 block on Albany avenue, and who was a supply wagon driver for the bus company.

Renner said Guangi was duly pointed out to him by Margolis, but in his testimony yesterday he didn't reach the point where he told of any attempts to "get" Guangi. The prosecutors said Guangi was not harmed.

Neither did the witness, in his narration of strike violence events, reach the Kelly murder episode which was followed by the arrest on the scene of Al Semple with the smoking pistol still in his hand, and the arrest of the others fleeing after the attack on Kelly who was a passenger on a trolley car on Cicero avenue, at Grand avenue. Semple and the others are to testify as state's witnesses concerning that slaying, the prosecutors said.

Key to State's Case.

It was apparent from Renner's testimony and the line of questioning that his importance to the state's case lies in the linking of Kehoe as the paymaster for the series of vandalistic acts. Defense Attorneys Thomas D. Nash, Michael Ahern and James J. McDermott said they are awaiting their opportunity to cross-examine Renner, which opportunity may come tomorrow.

The prosecution said it expects, through other witnesses, to link Taber to the conspiracy, and thereby incriminate him in the murder of Kelly, although to date no evidence of this nature had been presented against the union official.

FRANCE VINDICATES MEMORY OF COUPLE WHO DIED IN PRISON

PARIS, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Tardy vindication of the memory of a French family, two of whom died in jail for spying and aiding the enemy in war time, was granted today in a military court.

A total of 28,000 francs in damages was awarded to surviving members of the family of Louis Moreau, who had been fighting for twenty years to clear their name.

Moreau and two of his sons were sentenced to hard labor in French Guiana, while his wife got a prison sentence for allegedly signaling to Germans with a bicycle lamp.

Moreau and his wife died in jail. The two sons later were pardoned by a post-war premier as victims of "war hysteria."

MUSSOLINI AIMS BLOW AT COTTON TRADE WITH U. S.

Italy Acts to Cut Annual Business of $25,000,000

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 19.—The textile corporation, one of 22 into which Premier Mussolini has divided his so-called corporative state, set its hand this week to solve Italy's cotton import problem and the prospect is for curtailment of the United States $25,000,000 annual business in that commodity with Italy.

Italy's action to cut her cotton imports in the interests of a more even trade balance comes at a time when President Roosevelt wants to call a conference to control the export of surplus cotton. It is also simultaneous with the announcement here that Italy and the United States will negotiate a new bilateral trade treaty next May.

This week's meetings of the directors of the textile corporation stressed the necessity of substituting home grown products, such as hemp, jute, flax and artificial fiber, in textile manufacture for the cotton now used and of educating the Italian public to use the fabrics of these materials instead of cotton.

U. S. to Be Affected.

Should this plan succeed, it will largely affect the United States since Italy buys practically all her cotton raw materials from America, and the bill she pays is an important item in her total of imports.

According to the Italian figures, Italy's payments for cotton and wool are 1,500 million lire of the total of 6 billion lire for all imports.

The United States sells Italy twice as much as it buys here and Italian statisticians say that on the monthly basis, Italy buys from America about 50 million lire more than she sells. Italy's purchases from the United States are mostly raw materials. One item which has cut into the drop in her sales to the United States is silk. Japanese competition has hit the Italians in this commodity.

Experts Boost Hemp.

Something to balance her cotton purchases from the United States will bulk heavily, accordingly, in Italy's bargaining in new trade treaty negotiations.

Experts here are now saying that hemp, which is largely produced here, can be utilized to replace cotton for all but the finer fabrics. A campaign is also under way through the machinery of the textile corporation to stimulate the use of rayon and artificial silk, the public being urged to use this in preference to cotton fabrics as a matter of national patriotism.

Another Mussolini organization known as the National Council of Research is studying ways and means of finding other national substitutes for cotton and wool.

Free McFadden, Touhy Gangster, in $4,000 Bail

Edward [Father Tom] McFadden, member of the once powerful Touhy gang of Chicago, was freed in bail yesterday in Elkhorn, Wis., where he was being held for possession of a machine gun and for carrying concealed weapons. His bond was $4,000, and Judge Roscoe Luce accepted real estate valued at a total of $11,000, instructing McFadden to return Jan. 28 for trial.

UNION PICKETING WITH PLACARDS RULED UNLAWFUL

Superior Judge Joseph B. David dissolved yesterday an injunction restraining the state's attorney's office and police from interfering with the picketing by members of the Poultry Handlers' union of 20 commission firms where members of the union have been on strike since last Dec. 12. The court held that the carrying of placards by pickets in front of a place of business amounts to a boycott and is illegal. "I will not allow any provision of the injunction which permits pickets to intimidate or coerce the public by means of signs from entering a man's place of business," said the judge. In dissolving the restraining order the court dismissed also the bill filed by the union so that a quick appeal could be taken from his ruling.

PRINCETON GETS 'ORACLE BONES,' ANCIENT MONEY

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Two hundred pieces of divination, known as "oracle bones," and 2,500 ancient Chinese coins dated from 500 B. C. have been presented to the Princeton university library, Dr. James Thayer Gerould, the librarian, announced today.

Through the study of the "oracle bones," Dr. Gerould said, the knowledge of Chinese history has been pushed back more than 1,000 years, and the coins, when fully cataloged, will prove highly valuable to the subject of numismatics.

The gift was made by Dr. Frederick J. Tooker of the class of 1894 in the name of the Princeton Alumni Association of China.

IL DUCE'S DRIVE FOR JOBS PUTS 160,907 TO WORK

Fascists See Permanent End of Unemployment.

ROME, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A Fascist drive against Old Man Winter and his twin terror, unemployment, was under way today. To raise the hopes of Italians, meanwhile, were official figures showing the unemployed on Jan. 1 numbered 961,705, a decrease of 160,907 from the total for the same date last year.

Officials said the reduction was due to the national preoccupation over the question and the campaign launched late in the fall of 1934 which brought the following response, in provision of jobs:

From industry—120,237.
From agriculture—15,985.
From commerce—14,723.
From credit and insurance—962.

Working Hours Cut.

Before the groundhog shows his shadow, the Fascist regime hopes to bring the figure down another 100,000 or more. And with this momentum behind them, Premier Mussolini's lieutenants are confident they will be able to drive the specter of unemployment completely off the sky line.

Mussolini's program of providing employment for the jobless involved the redistribution of labor. He cut working hours in every economic sector from 48 to 40 per week. A contribution penalty was placed on overtime work.

By this means, it was estimated by Achille Starace, federal secretary of the Fascist party, 130,000 new jobs were created. At the same time, he asserted, the economic security of 600,000 already employed—and the 2,400,000 or more dependent upon them—was not menaced.

Obligatory Aid Fund.

However, every workman whose family numbers more than his reduced earning hours will support is compensated by obligatory contributions from those who have been able to secure jobs under the new ruling. Skilled overtime workers must contribute up to 5 per cent of their overtime earnings to this mutual scheme, and the ordinary 40 hour per week worker, with small family responsibilities, up to 10 per cent.

This mutual fund, Starace announced, would reach an average of 200,000,000 lire [about $17,000,000] annually once the scheme gets working. Fascist prefects and secretaries in the kingdom's 93 provinces and hundreds of towns have been charged with the responsibility of carrying out the plan.

The employers' confederations and employes' syndicates in the whole vast range of national life have been instructed to draw up their methods of procedure, and black shirt officers say there can be no slackening in the campaign.

U. S. AGENTS RAID TWO BIG STILLS; SEIZE SUSPECT

Two large illicit stills were raided yesterday by federal agents under E. C. Yellowley, district supervisor of the alcohol tax unit, a quantity of alcohol was seized and one man taken into custody.

The first group of agents, led by G. J. Simons, raided a garage at 2406 La Salle street, after police received a call that suspicious persons had been seen nearby. The agents found a 2,000 gallon recooker, a 2,000 gallon still, 5 gallons of alcohol, and 56,000 gallons of molasses.

The second raid was in a building in an abandoned lumber yard near 146th street and Princeton avenue, Dolton, where Bartisiano Choropo, 3332 State street, Calumet City, was arrested. In the building agents found 100 gallons of alcohol, a 2,000 gallon recooker, a 1,500 gallon still, and 600 drums of molasses.

SUPREME COURT JUSTICES MEET FOR GOLD RULING

New Dealers Unworried by Momentous Case.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The nine justices of the Supreme court of the United States met behind closely guarded doors today to discuss their decision on the 69 billion dollar gold clause cases.

An agreement between the justices today on how the cases should be decided, and an announcement of their verdict on Monday is possible, but most observers believe that the decision, destined to be one of the most vital ever penned by the court, will be held up until Feb. 4 or even March 4.

At the close of the meeting it was believed the justices had reached a decision, although the nine were silent, as always.

New Dealers Unalarmed.

Administration monetary experts, meanwhile, were unalarmed over the possibility of a decision voiding the dollar devaluation which President Roosevelt proclaimed a year ago. They are confident that literally overnight they can push through congress new legislation of another type which will maintain the New Deal monetary system despite the Supreme court dictum.

The legislation which the New Dealers have concocted to reëstablish their devaluated dollar and revised gold price, should the Supreme court knock out the existing laws, already is drawn and waiting.

Many administration advisers, including Prof. Irving Fisher, are seeking to persuade the treasury that the proposed laws should be made public at once so that people will not be disturbed over the possible reactions from an adverse decision.

Congress Found Ready.

A private poll of congress has shown that a majority of senators and representatives are willing to pass any reinstating money legislation which the White House suggests. The nature of the measures which have been drafted and discussed by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., and Attorney General Homer S. Cummings is being closely guarded. It is believed several alternative bills have been drafted in order to be prepared for the various types of adverse decision the court might render.

If the court rules out the gold revaluation, its decision may take any one or all of the following positions: That congress cannot use its power over money to breach contracts between private citizens; that congress cannot repudiate the government's own promise in its Liberty bonds to pay in dollars of the original standard; or that congress cannot repudiate this government promise in so far as it will affect foreign holders of government bonds.

100 Billion Outstanding.

There are estimated to be 100 billion dollars in gold contract obligations outstanding, and their value, in terms of the devalued dollar, would rise to 169 billion if the court declares that the old amount of gold or its equivalent must be paid to discharge the contracts.

The room in which the court met today for its conference on the gold decision is a plain, unpretentious chamber in the basement of the ancient Capitol building. The real work of forming decisions is done in these conferences.

The justices seat themselves in swivel chairs around a large table and the chief justice brings up the first case.

"Juniors" Speak First.

He first asks the views of Justice Cardozo, the "baby member" in point of seniority, though he is 64 years old. Those with the shortest service are called on first. The idea is that this prevents them from being influenced by the beliefs of those with greater experience.

After Cardozo finishes the other talk in this order: Roberts, Stone, Butler, Sutherland, Brandeis, McReynolds, Van Devanter, and Hughes.

If there is a marked division of opinion a general discussion follows, and usually the difficulties are adjusted and unanimity results. In some cases it is more difficult to obtain unanimity. Then numerous conferences may be held.

VALUE OF GOLD FOUND IN CELLAR JUMPS TO $27,000

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Value of the old gold coins unearthed last summer in the cellar of a South Eden street house here today jumped to $27,872.50 under a collector's price, instead of the $11,427 face value of the old coins which comprised the treasure.

Judge Eugene O'Dunne, hearing arguments over possession of the treasure, which was found by two boys, Theodore Jones and Henry Grob, was informed of the numismatic value of the coins by Bartholomew Bratton, a federal agent.

It was indicated that Judge O'Dunne would withhold his decision in the case pending an inquiry into the law on the subject, and the forthcoming decision of the Supreme court on the federal government's gold policy.

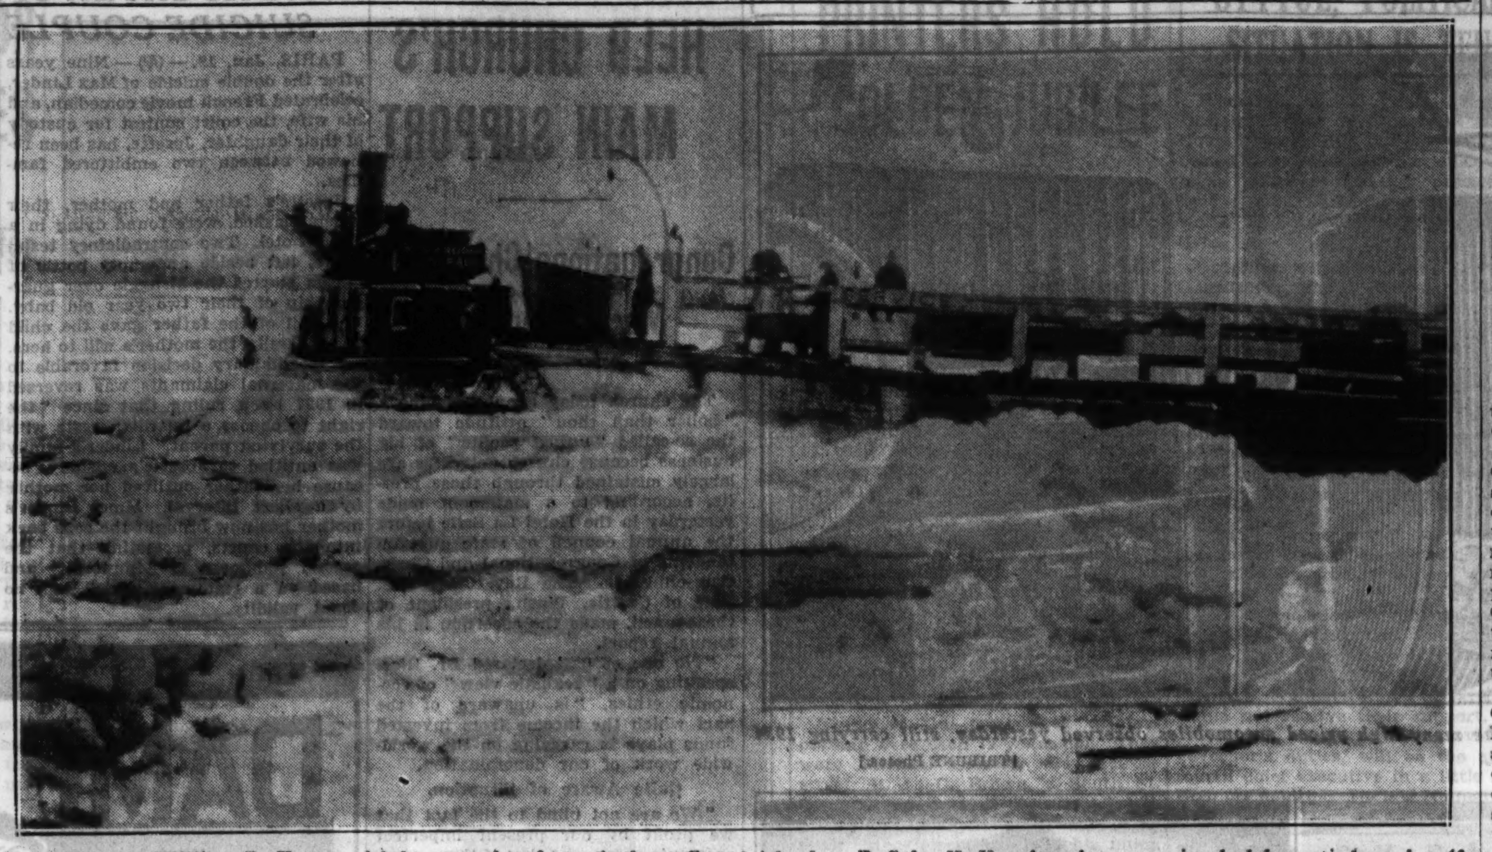
NIAGARA ICE JAM BROKEN; FERRY SERVICE RESUMED



The tug William D. Kropp with barge makes first trip from Grand island to Buffalo, N. Y., after ferry service had been tied up for 48 hours. A gale of 61 miles an hour sent huge ice floes from Lake Erie into the river. The ice so clogged the shallow rapids above Goat island that the American falls were left almost dry.

VERSATILE COP COOKS UP LOT OF GRIEF FOR FRANK

Disguised as Chef, He Gets His Man.

For a long time Frank Rossi, 24 years old, 1104 Lytle street, paroled convict from the Joliet penitentiary, insisted to his companions that he was psychic.

"I can tell a copper as far as I can see one," he asserted.

His prescience was working yesterday afternoon as he sat with another man and two girls in Pete's Place, a restaurant at 1163 West Harrison street. Two inconspicuously dressed men passing the restaurant [Sergts. John Hanrahan and Thomas Fallon of the detective bureau] glanced in and Rossi became alert.

He Knows When to Retreat.

"Cops," he murmured. "I can tell 'em as far as I can see 'em, and I am going to take a duck."

With that he seized his hat and fled through the kitchen, leaving his overcoat behind him. The sergeants, who had not intended to enter, were intrigued by the psychic's actions. They questioned the other man, Michael Rombanelli, 22 years old, 911 South Bishop street, and the girls, Audrey Tyler, 20 years old, 1641 Warren boulevard, and Mary Vera, 21 years old, 1129 South Wood street.

Exit Three—Enter the Chef.

Their answers concerning their companion were not entirely satisfactory, so Sergts. Hanrahan and Fallon called for a patrol wagon, in which the prisoners were ostentatiously driven away.

A few minutes later Rossi cautiously poked his head in the kitchen door. No one was in the kitchen but the chef. clad in a long white apron and a white cap and chopping away at a side of beef.

"Pst! chef," said Rossi. "Hand me my hat and coat."

"Ontray," replied the chef, with a strong French accent. He pointed with his cleaver to the customers' room. "Ze law, he is gone."

He Cleaves to Truth.

"O. K.," said the fugitive. "Glad of it. I can tell a copper as far as I can see one."

He stepped in. The chef stepped forward. He raised the cleaver.

"Stick 'em up, you," he commanded. "Or I'll have to split your head." The strong French accent was altered.

Rossi obeyed. The voice was not that of a sauce making monsieur. It was the voice of Detective Thomas Fallon. The crestfallen Rossi was taken to the detective bureau, where he admitted the police had been seeking him for months on a charge of rape.

"How," he asked Detective Fallon, "did you learn to speak French so well?"

HANDBOOK BAR AND 25 PATRONS ROBBED OF $915

Their movements cloaked by the heavy fog which spread over the north shore last night, seven gunmen, riding in two automobiles, swooped down on the Mid-Nite Club, a tavern and bookmaking establishment just outside North Chicago, and escaped with $915.

Two of the gang remained outside, one at the wheel of each car. The others—three armed with submachine guns and the other two with pistols—entered the betting room, where some twenty-five patrons were still listening to race results.

The patrons were forced to lie on the floor while one of the gang robbed the cashier, Howard Redding, of $760. The gang then went to the tavern room and took $155 from the till.

The bandits were apparently indignant over the small haul, and kept declaring that there was "another thousand dollars" hidden somewhere and they would find it. They departed, however, after thirty minutes of searching, threatening to return.

Ship Wrecked in Blizzard Off Nova Scotia; Save Crew

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 19.—[U. P.]—The 700 ton motor ship Hurryon, laden with herring for New York, crashed on the rocks in St. Francis harbor today during a blizzard. Meager reports reaching here said the crew of eight was rescued by villagers, but that the ship, commanded by Capt. Cruickshanks, was a total loss.

Police Captain Egan's Wife Robbed of Purse

A youthful robber last night snatched the purse of Mrs. Mary Egan, 6012 South Talman avenue, in the street near her home. Mrs. Egan, wife of Lieut. William Egan of the Woodlawn police, was on her way to visit a relative ill in the Mercy hospital. Her purse contained $60.

Only Wading Depth

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Jan. 19.—(AP)—An ice jam in the upper Niagara river made the American cataract of Niagara Falls so low today that state reservation police could wade from Prospect Point to Goat Island in rubber boots, they said.

Prospect Point is where tourists get their closest view of the falls from the United States shore. Goat Island is in the center of the river.

The American falls was three-quarters dry, not an unusual occurrence in winter, and the Horseshoe falls was beginning to dry at a point about fifty feet out from the Canadian shore. The only streams over the American cataract were trickles at Prospect Point and at about the center.

The ice bridge at the base of the falls was firmer, watchers aid, but had not increased in size. They also said less ice was running in the lower river than yesterday. American and Canadian channels of the stream above the falls were still choked with the big ice, cakes.

DASH WITH CASH SAVES HOSPITAL FROM COLD WAVE

John D. Thomas, chairman of the finance committee of the Lake county board of supervisors, won a close race over the cold wave last night. Consequently, the patients at the Lake County General hospital in Waukegan won't freeze for a week or so, at least.

A week ago the Waukegan coal dealers cut off the county's credit, asserting that they hadn't been paid since last June.

The hospital used the last of its coal last night.

The patients read of the approaching cold wave reports and felt very unhappy.

But Mr. Thomas was on the job, and by dint of some persuasion, and a promise to pay something very soon, he found a dealer who would advance twenty tons of coal.

So the furnaces were restoked, Mr. Thomas said that some of the money owed to the county was coming in, and all was well.

U. S. Rushes 2 Porto Rican Convicts to Atlanta by Air

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Jan. 19.—(AP)—United States Marshal Draughon tonight was flying to Atlanta with two convicted criminals in his custody. He considered the two—Juan Garcia and Mariano Petrovit, convicted of impersonating immigration officers and attempted extortion—too dangerous to travel by steamer. So he asked and received permission from Washington to fly his prisoners to the federal prison.

SAYS BROWNING BELIEVED SELF U. S. PRESIDENT

Nurse Is a Witness at Will Inquiry.

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Edward W. [Daddy] Browning was irrational at times shortly before his death and on one occasion announced that he was President of the United States, according to testimony introduced today before surrogate James A. Delehanty, who is making an inquiry into the mental and physical condition of the real estate dealer, who died on Oct. 12.

Upon this inquiry will depend whether the surrogate will admit to probate a second codicil to Browning's will, made on Oct. 1 at Scarsdale.

Capital Jobs Pledged.

Mrs. Orline Lane, one of Browning's nurses, testified today that Browning had told her on one occasion that he was President of the United States. He promised her and other nurses good jobs in Washington, she said. On Sept. 30, however, the day before the codicil was signed, Browning complained that he was a ruined man and that he had no money to give any one, she said.

Browning's condition, she testified, varied from day to day. He "acted strange" on Oct. 6, and on the morning of Oct. 8 he was irrational, she testified.

Tells of "Distorted Mark."

Miss Lane when asked whether she had knowledge of any papers being signed testified she had seen the codicil on a table beside Browning's bed but that she was not present when the signature and what she termed a "distorted mark" were placed on the document.

She reproduced the mark as closely as possible and it was admitted as an exhibit.

In the event that the second codicil is denied, probate of part of the estate, totaling nearly $300,000, will be distributed as interstate property.

U. S. ARMY PILOTS TO TAKE RIGID FLYING TESTS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—All 1,228 pilots in the army air corps must prove before June 30 that they can "take it."

Secretary Dern has ordered a "rough ride" test. Those who pass will remain flyers. Those who don't will be transferred to some other duty.

Following the advice of the Baker aviation commission, the department will require annual tests hereafter. They include blind, night, instrument, cross-country, and formation flying.

VEILED KIDNAP THREAT SENT TO EMERSON WIDOW

Note Writer Will Tell of Plot for Pay.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A letter, warning Mrs. Anne Preston McCormack Emerson, widow of Capt. Isaac Emerson, millionaire drug manufacturer, that she might be kidnaped, was made public tonight by Charles D. Gaither, police commissioner of Baltimore.

MRS. ANNE P. EMERSON.

Commissioner Gaither said Mrs. Emerson received a strange letter early this week, causing him to start a secret investigation.

"The letter informed Mrs. Emerson," Gaither said, "that she might be kidnaped, and there might be men in Baltimore who would kidnap her.

"The writer also said that he might be able to tell her about it if she would pay him a certain amount of money. This is not an extortion threat.

Seek Note Writer.

"The purpose of our investigation has been to find the writer so that we might question him and learn if he knows anything—if anything."

Commissioner Gaither declined to comment on the report that the price asked by the writer was $5,000.

First intimations that there was police activity at the Emerson estate, Brooklandwood, a show place of the Green Spring valley, was on Wednesday night, when the mansion was illuminated brilliantly inside and the grounds and outbuildings were lighted by flood lamps.

The gates were not locked, but visitors to the mansion on Wednesday and following nights were stopped near the main entrance to the house by armed men. All persons were questioned by these men, who identified themselves as private detectives.

Spokesman for Family.

Frederick C. McCormack, son of Mrs. Emerson, said an arrangement had been made with Commissioner Gaither by which only he would be the spokesman for the family.

Mrs. Emerson is considered one of the wealthiest women in Baltimore, having inherited a large portion of her husband's estate, which was estimated at $20,000,000. She and Capt. Emerson were married in July, 1911.

PREDICT VITAMIN E WILL PROVE WAY TO PREDETERMINE SEX

Predetermination of sex through the use of vitamin E, found chiefly in the oily substance of wheat, is predicted in the Journal of the Illinois State Medical society, published yesterday, on the basis of a report of experiments conducted in America and abroad.

Research with rats has demonstrated that the birth of males and females can be regulated through the introduction or withholding of vitamin E, the Journal says.

Experiments on women with vitamin E have ended sterility and children born following such treatment appear more intelligent than others, the Journal says. "Obstetricians, by supplying vitamin E liberally to expectant mothers, have a great opportunity to enhance the child's capacity for learning," it declared.

The powers of vitamin E were discovered through studies of the reproductivity of bees, the article said.

HIJACK TRUCK OF DRUGS.

Three robbers seized a truck containing $400 drugs yesterday at 2701 Cermak road and took $40 from the driver, Robert Wangrow, 3237 Le Moyne street. The truck belongs to the Gazzolo Drug and Chemical company, 123 South Green street.

ITALY, ABYSSINIA AGREE TO SETTLE ROW PEACEFULLY

GENEVA, Jan. 19.—[U. P.]—Another threat to peace was removed today when Italy and Abyssinia agreed to negotiate a settlement of their boundary dispute in Africa, in which many persons have been killed in clashes.

Under the preliminary understanding, Italy and Abyssinia agreed that both would write to Joseph Avenol, secretary general of the league, stating it would be useful at present to negotiate under the treaty of 1928 betwen Italy and Abyssinia. The treaty is one of friendship and arbitration, providing for arbitration of all disputes for 20 years. Both nations meanwhile agreed to take measures to prevent further clashes.

In an agreement of 1906, Great Britain, France and Italy undertook to respect and preserve the territorial integrity of Abyssinia. Great Britain was understood today to have prepared a plan for solution of the Italian demand for compensation of 1,000,000 francs [$15,180] damages in the present dispute. Italy accused Abyssinia of aggression and demanded indemnity and apologies. Abyssinia consistently demanded settlement of the dispute under the 1928 treaty, but Italy so far refused, contending there was nothing to arbitrate.

PARAGUAY AIMS BIG PUSH AT KEY TOWNS IN BOLIVIA

Defies League of Nations' Threat of Sanctions.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Jan. 19.—(AP)—With the possibility of league of nations interference hanging over its head, Paraguay apparently was preparing today for a decisive military blow at Bolivia's Santa Cruz province.

The capture of Santa Fe, which Paraguay claims was Bolivia's most important town within the Gran Chaco, placed Paraguayan troops in a position to strike at San Francisco and Charagua, important communications centers in Bolivia proper, only 25 or 30 miles distant from Santa Fe. Santa Fe is situated on the left bank of the Parapiti river, which is generally considered the northwestern limit of the Chaco.

Faces League Sanctions.

The Paraguayans also have captured Palcomarcado, in the Pilcomayo sector, 100 miles south of Santa Fe, but this is considered a minor victory inasmuch as numerous Bolivian posts still block the way to Villa Montes, the prime objective of recent Paraguayan attacks.

Paraguayan military moves were being closely followed, especially in view of the league's lifting of the arms embargo against Bolivia and maintaining it against Paraguay, and the threat that sanctions will be applied to Paraguay on Feb. 24 if it does not accept the league's peace plan by that time.

In diplomatic circles the opinion was expressed that support of the league's sanctions threat by South American neutral nations at Geneva was conjectural at best.

Meanwhile, the Paraguayan press was attacking the league ferociously, intimating that Paraguay will not yield to pressure unless the peace formula is changed, while the press of Bolivia is claiming that the league is supporting Bolivia's arguments.

Asks Probe of Responsibility.

The newspaper El Diario at Asuncion, Paraguayan capital, asserted that "the biggest favor the league has done Bolivia was to refuse to investigate the responsibilities for the war."

The Paraguayan press generally declared that country, which was virtually disarmed at the start of the war, is "now in danger of being condemned as the aggressor."

In this connection La Nacion at Buenos Aires pointed out editorially that it was doubtful if sanctions, if applied, "wi contribute to the solution," since the war has been going on for more than two and a half years, during which time Paraguay has accepted several peace propositions. If Paraguay was not branded as the aggressor in the early days, it was asked, "can it be classed as the aggressor now?"

Neutral diplomatic circles pointed out that the peace making efforts of the league, in addition to those of other neutrals, have been unsuccessful owing to the changing stands of the belligerents in accordance with the fortunes of war, first one and then the other rejecting peace proposals.

War to Finish—Paraguayans.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Paraguayan Liberal party convention tomorrow will hear a declaration of the directorate urging "total liquidation of the war in a form to satisfy the legitimate aspirations of the people."

The declaration continues: "The actual slogan is: win and expel forever the Bolivians from invaded soil with the certainty they cannot renovate aggression."

Sees League Backing.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Juan Maria Zalles, Bolivian war minister, said today his country is satisfied the attitude of the league of nations on the Chaco question "shows clearly moral support of our defense."

"Bolivia is united to continue the defense," he asserted. "Paraguay never will reach our soil, nor conquer the Bolivian mountain slopes. We accepted all peace offers, but we are disposed to continue the fight if Paraguay continues its attacks. Bolivia is under a constitutional regime."

Zalles came here by plane to take his wife back to Bolivia.

REPORT SHOWS TAX INCREASE FOR CAR USERS

The total of motor vehicle users' taxes in 1934 increased by approximately 40 million dollars over those for the preceding year. In 1933 the collections were $1,170,000,000, while last year they were $1,214,000,000.

Gasoline taxes, federal, state, and municipal, for 1933 were 716 million dollars, while last year they were 750 millions.

The tax report, made made by the Automobile Manufacturers' association, showed that in 1933 the percentage of motor user taxes, from all sources—federal, state, and municipal—was 11 per cent, while last year the percentage rose to 12 per cent.

HIGH PRICED CARS STILL CARRYING OLD LICENSES

While many newer and costlier automobiles bore old licenses yesterday, these cars were among the older models whose owners have purchased 1935 licenses. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

MOTORISTS RUSH TO BUY LICENSES; DEADLINE NEARS

Lines Wait at State and City Offices.

The office of City Clerk Brady in the city hall and Secretary of State Hughes' city office at 120 South Ashland boulevard, did a thriving business yesterday in the sale of vehicle plates and stickers for 1935 as motorists began to heed the warning issued Friday that they must have their city and state licenses by Jan. 25.

The city clerk's office closed at 1 p. m., but will remain open on succeeding Saturdays if it is deemed necessary, Mr. Brady said.

Four Lines at Windows.

Collection windows were opened for four lines of motorists, one more line than on Friday, and the total of vehicle fees paid increased by nearly $5,000 over the preceding Saturday.

Stickers were obtained by 1,680 persons yesterday, an increase of 630 over last Saturday. The amount paid totaled $17,960, an increase of $4,960 over the amount collected a week ago.

The Chicago office of Secretary Hughes remained open until 5 p. m.

Heaviest Day for Tags.

At mid-afternoon it reported that it was having the heaviest day's business since the state began to issue vehicle plates on Dec. 26.

Many 1934 licenses, however, still are to be seen on the streets. A few of the more expensive cars noted yesterday with 1934 plates were the following: La Salle, 408-784; La Salle, 735-545; Lincoln, 282-888; Cadillac, 337-463, and Packard, 487-135.

Although the Illinois motorists have until Jan. 25 in which to procure their licenses, they are likely to run into trouble if they travel through Gary with 1934 plates. Police Chief Studness ordered his force there to arrest all motorists using 1934 plates whether they are from Indiana or Illinois.

SOCIETY LEADERS BUY BOXES FOR BIRTHDAY BALL

Chicago society leaders already have purchased more than 100 boxes for the President's birthday ball at the Union stock yards pavilion Jan. 30, the Chicago central committee for the ball reported yesterday. In addition, the city administration, headed by Mayor Kelly, will be present. Among the officials who have bought boxes are Sherif John Toman, Clayton Smith, Otto Kerner, James B. McCahey, Robert Upham, Judge Joseph Sabath, Nathan Balter, W. D. McJunkin, Robert Sweitzer, Patrick Nash, J. C. Christensen, and Jacob Arvey. All ticket sellers or solicitors for the fund, 70 per cent of which will remain in Chicago for direct infantile paralysis relief, will bear written authorization from R. E. Vogel, vice president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, who is treasurer of the fund.

LAUNCH BATTLE TO CANCEL U. S. TAX ON GASOLINE

Motor Club Appeals to Congressmen.

BY HAL FOUST.

The Chicago Motor club yesterday addressed a protest to all Illinois congressmen and both senators against continuation of the federal 1 cent a gallon gasoline tax. The excise, unless a new imposition is enacted, will expire on July 1.

Reports from Washington indicate that the New Deal contemplates a measure even worse than a two year extension of the 1 cent levy. The brain trust, according to these reports, plans to boost the federal motor fuel tax to finance unemployment relief construction.

Assails Law as Unsound.

"It's not a sound recovery measure," George Barton, engineer for the motor club, said of the proposed raise, "because the gasoline tax in many states is already so great that it is discouraging automobile usage. The federal plus the state levy is so high that the total revenue is diminishing.

"The government has attempted to defend its gasoline tax by pointing to the 'easy money' it allots to states for road building. The motor fuel revenue may be returned in part to the states but the government retains a string on the funds that prohibits their use on projects that would most benefit the motorists who pay the bill.

Failure to Build Bridge.

"The failure of the federal administration to finish the Outer Drive link bridge and to begin construction of an elevated highway system in Chicago is an outstanding example of objections to this federal collection and disbursement of gasoline tax revenue. It is an outstanding argument against continuing the federal gasoline tax."

The federal motor fuel excise in 1932 raised, for only part of the year, $63,000,000; in 1933, $181,000,000; and in 1934, with the rate reduced from 1½ to 1 cent, an estimated $170,000,000.

YEAR'S IMPROVEMENT OF ROADS IN NATION SET AT 40,000 MILES

Forty thousand miles of road were built or improved in the United States last year. Authority for the figure is Roy D. Chapin, chairman of the Automobile Manufacturers' association's highway committee. Unemployment relief was a stimulant to construction as well as trafic demands, it was declared.

SAFETY GROUP ANNOUNCES 3 NEW CONTESTS

Three new contests designed to promote interest in trafic safety were announced yesterday by Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee. They include a radio script competition, a high school oratorical contest, and an elementary school essay contest, and are in addition to the present safety song writing contest now being conducted by the committee.

Any one in the city is eligible to enter the script writing contest, said Barnet Hodes, chairman of the safety committee. The script must deal with safe driving and pedestrian safety, must require not more than ten minutes to broadcast, and must provide for not more than ten players. The prize winning sketch will be broadcast over a chain outlet. Manuscripts must be sent to the committee at 33 North La Salle street by midnight, Feb. 15.

The elementary school safety essay contest will be limited to manuscripts of 2,000 words to be submitted through the schools. Five divisional preliminary contests will be held in the oratorical competition, and winners will compete for medals in a final city-wide contest.

PROFIT SYSTEM HELD CHURCH'S MAIN SUPPORT

Congregational Chief Sees Moral Dilemma.

The church today cannot assume a "holier than thou" attitude toward the so-called "unjust profits" of big business because church activities are largely sustained through those profits, according to a statement made yesterday in the Hotel La Salle before the annual council of state superintendents of Congregational and Christian churches. The Rev. Clayton S. Rice of Seattle, Wash., president of the council, made the assertion in his annual report.

"No one of us," declared Dr. Rice, speaking on a "realistic view" of economic ethics, "is unaware of the part which the income from invested funds plays in carrying on the world-wide work of our denomination.

Quite Aware of Situation.

"We are not blind to the fact that we profit by our present imperfect economic order, and that if these questionable sources of income were withdrawn, the remaining support would be so meager that we probably could not continue our present pretentious programs."

And yet, he commented, the order from which church institutions draw their financial lifeblood is, in its motivation, largely un-Christian, placing the church in an anomalous situation. On one hand it benefits from this un-Christian order, while on the other hand it must retain its self-respect and Christian idealism.

"There is no value in attempting to rationalize and make ourselves believe that all is well," he told his fellow superintendents, representatives of some 6,300 churches. "We cannot do that. We have done that for generations. Our eyes are wide open now. The chief virtue of our present attitude of mind lies in the fact that we are not rationalizing.

Finds No Solution to Problem.

"If we feel oppressed because of this situation," he continued, "we may feel sure that the Christian business man finds himself in the same position and often in a much worse one, for I am confident that the average business man recognizes the existence of a most unfortunate hiatus between Christian idealism and his business ethics."

Although frankly admitting that the church ethically was in a dilemma, Dr. Rice offered no solution of the problem, other than saying that the "very Christianity which we claim" forces the church to work toward building a new order.

Laity and clergy alike recognize, he said, that the present un-Christian order is going. Consequently, the churches feel free to ask for help from business men—"realizing as we accept it," he concluded, "that our order is partly un-Christian, and retaining our right to work and plan for a better order."

Her Marriage "a Joke," Says Wife; Judge Disagrees

Mrs. Helen L. Schmidt, 1824 Hood avenue, testified yesterday in her annulment suit before Circuit Judge Finnegan that her marriage Sept. 28, 1932, to John K. Schmidt was just a joke after she and her husband had attended a party. "I saw my husband twice afterwards and he said I should consider our marriage as just a joke," she testified. The court refused to grant the annulment, but permitted an amended bill for divorce on a desertion charge.

2 FAMILIES FIGHT FOR DAUGHTER OF SUICIDE COUPLE

PARIS, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Nine years after the double suicide of Max Linder, celebrated French movie comedian, and his wife, the court contest for custody of their daughter, Josette, has been renewed between two embittered families.

Josette's father and mother, their wrists slashed, were found dying in a Paris hotel. Two contradictory testaments left beside an empty bottle of poison started the struggle over guardianship of their two year old baby. The will of the father gave the child to his family, the mother's will to hers.

A preliminary decision favorable to the maternal claimants was reversed in 1927 by a ruling that since "the right to choose a guardian rests with the surviving parent," Linder's family was entitled to Josette's custody, because her father outlived her mother by a short interval. Mme. Linder's mother has now brought the case back into the courts, protesting that the second judgment is "immoral" and based on a testament which has no legal validity.

FRANCE DEMANDS LEAGUE AID FOR SAAR REFUGEES

Urges Geneva to Pay for Upkeep of Exiles.

GENEVA, Jan. 19.—(AP)—France requested today that the league of nations assume financial responsibility for the upkeep of the thousands of refugees fleeing from the Saar territory into France, since the territory is still technically administered by the league.

A French memorandum to this effect was presented and will be discussed by the league council on Monday. The council must decide whether the refugees will be handled by the Organization for the Relief of Refugees from Germany, headed by James G. MacDonald of New York, or handed over to a new organization.

It was estimated 1,500 Germans who took refuge in the Saar from Germany will be among those to flee from the Saar to France, together with an unestimated number of Saarlanders.

Nazi "Revolution" in Saar.

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A virtual Nazi "revolution" in the Saar, effecting changes similar in many respects to those of the January, 1933, upheaval in Germany proper, tonight saw the basin's league of nations government almost completely effaced.

So completely were Adolf Hitler's adherents in the saddle this sixth day after the smashing Nazi victory in the Saar plebiscite that Socialists were frankly advising anti-Nazis to get out of the territory "until things blow over."

Public officials who backed the losing "status quo" cause were ousted, and anti-Nazi laborers claimed they also had been "victimized," losing their jobs to those who voted for Germany.

Socialists Urged to Flee.

Amid reports that Hitler's opponents had been threatened by neighbors or business rivals the Socialists told the men in their ranks they would be wise to leave for the present.

Women and children were told they might safely remain, however, since feeling in the basin appeared to be aimed directly at the men.

An American plebiscite official declared all reports of violence he had investigated were false.

Behind the Nazis as they set about clearing out their opponents was the tremendous power of the more than 90 per cent pro-German vote registered in the plebiscite. It enabled them to hoist the swastika banner everywhere without fear of reproach, and to apply the spoils system unmercifully with the applause of the overwhelming majority.

Their jobs, anti-Nazi laborers assert, are being given to the unemployed who voted for Germany, and these men, fearing further reprisals, are joining the steady line daily crossing the French frontier toward an unknown land of exile. Three thousand, it is estimated, already have gone, and anti-Nazis sources say the trek has just begun.

All Must Follow Suit.

The "tyranny" in the Saar, neutral observers say, is based on the fact that "every one has to do what his neighbor does."

Scarcely a window in the entire territory is without flags. The red, white and black flag of the reich unaccompanied by the Nazi swastika is quickly noticed, and the transgressor is rebuked. Natives rush home at dusk to light candles in their windows "lest neighbors notice their absence," these sources said.

Faced with the clear-cut desire of the Saarlanders to be ruled from Berlin, the league governing commission and the neutral police have stepped right out of the picture, although they have six more weeks in office.

They are cleaning out drawers in desks and brushing down cobwebs which have gathered during the 15 years that the Saar was internationally governed.

The basin is being scrubbed and cleansed for the coming of Adolf Hitler soon after March 1, when the basin will be delivered to Germany.

Alsace-Lorraine Opposes Nazis.

FORBACH, France, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The hapless line of emigrants from the Saar doubled today as feeling against Saar Nazis grew in Alsace-Lorraine.

Rumors of impending "preventive" arrests of anti-Nazis in the Saar and the announcement that Adolf Hitler himself soon would visit the territory were said to have swelled the exodus of refugees.

A full thousand, it was estimated at sundown, had crossed the frontier at Forbach and Sarreguemines, most important French frontier points, during the day.

3,000 Have Fled Territory.

About 3,000 in all now have left the territory, and Max Braun, Socialist leader who headed the fight in the Saar for retention of league of nations' rule, returned here today from Geneva to repeat his assertion that 17,000 would depart before the Nazis take over.

German speaking residents of Alsace-Lorraine, meanwhile, said emphatically they have no intention of replying affirmatively to invitations from Berlin to join the Pan-German movement. On the contrary, they were clamoring for protection for French products now that the Saarlanders have clearly chosen German sovereignty.

Reds and Socialists Fight French Fascists; 3 Injured

TOURS, France, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Two communists and one Socialist were seriously injured in a battle today with Francists, who are French Fascists. The communist and Socialist forces were led by the mayor of Saint Pierre des Corps village, who was arrested together with several others.

French Schools Invaded by Nazi War Cry, 'Heil Hitler'

METZ, France, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Nazi war cry, "Heil, Hitler," found its way into French schools here today much to the annoyance of authorities. Many small sheets of paper with the two words printed upon them were scattered in classrooms by unidentified persons. Police started an investigation.

MEMEL'S RETURN IS DEMANDED BY GERMAN PRESS

Nazis Covet Strip of Land Lost in War.

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—(AP)—German Nazis, victorious in Sunday's Saar plebiscite, today turned speculative eyes toward Memel, another bit of pre-war Germany lost to her in the peace treaties.

A sensational report published with singular uniformity by all Berlin's Nazi-controled newspapers to the effect that Lithuanian troops were massing at Taurow, near the German frontier, was accompanied by expressions of the view that Memel [or Klaipeda], now nominally an autonomous city, should be restored to the Fatherland.

The press, assailing Lithuania for numerous asserted breaches of trust in connection with Memel, said Lithuanian reserves had been called to the colors for three months, doubling the peace strength of the Memel garrison.

"Saber Rattling" Charged.

This alleged "saber rattling" indicated bad conscience, the newspapers asserted, declaring Lithuania's excuse for bringing troops to the borders was the report that Prussian Storm Troops intended to cross the border and capture the mandated city. This excuse, it was said, is "old, but none the less ludicrous."

[Dispatches from Riga, Latvia, said the reported massing of Lithuanian troops was considered there and in other Baltic capitals as entirely inaccurate. Kaunas, capital of Lithuania, has no knowledge of any concentration of German forces in East Prussia.]

The German viewpoint, as reflected in the press, is that the Lithuanian government has so often violated the guaranteed rights of the residents of Memel that the present state of affairs is virtual anarchy.

Asserting this to be the case, the Nachtausgabe observed:

"Under these circumstances it is no wonder if the Lithuanians fear, in view of Germany's victory in the Saar, that a plebiscite might become a reality in connection with the reorganization of things in Memel."

See Victory in Plebiscite.

"Such a plebiscite," the newspaper added, "would certainly show the same result as in the Saar."

Lithuania's breaches of trust in connection with Memel, the press said, which amount to "complete destruction of self-government in the Memel region," have been recognized by the nations which act as guarantors of the Memel treaty.

"The Memel territory was assigned to the Lithuanians, according to article one of the Memel statute, only on condition that it fulfils the conditions guaranteed to the autonomous state of Meneml," the Nachtausgabe said.

"It follows that, according to the German viewpoint, Memel should be returned to Germany," it concluded.

IMPORTANT PORT.

Memel, the population of which at the last census was 38,000, is situated on the bend of the sound through which the Kurische Haff and the Niemen rivers empty into the Baltic. An important port, it also has iron foundries and other industries.

Before the world war the town of Memel [subsequently renamed Klaipeda] belonged to Germany, together with a strip of territory east of the river. This territory Germany ceded under the treaty of Versailles, and the allied powers' conference of ambassadors proposed that the territory be handed over to Lithuania, subject to local autonomy. This the league of nations approved in 1924.

HE KNOWS IT ALL; NAZIS SEND HIM TO SANITORIUM

LEIPZIG, Germany, Jan. 19.—[U. P.]—Indefinite confinement in a sanitarium was decreed by the Supreme court today for a Hanover merchant who incessantly showered authorities with complaints.

The court held that such "habitual fault finders" menace public safety.

"The defendant," the court declared, "knows everything better than any one else, cannot learn to obey the authorities and is inclined always to push himself into the foreground, without justification, to denounce honorable people. He formerly denounced the old government and now disagrees with the ways of the new régime."

PLAN PROTECTION OF JEWISH FAMILIES IN GERMANY A CENTURY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 19. — Conservative Nazi circles have been preparing a special law to protect the rights of Jewish families which have been in Germany for more than a century. They declare that the ministry of interior is in sympathy with the project, but it has not yet received Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's approval.

A less conciliatory project was revealed in an advertisement in the magazine Photographer, official organ of the Nazi guild of photographers. It requests "sharp photographs" of "Jews at the beach and in dancing parties, Jews associating with gentiles, and particularly photographs of Jews married to gentiles and their children."

It also would like to have photographs of "colored persons of different races associating with gentile girls, with summery beach photographs preferred."

CITY'S OLD TIME PRINTERS HOLD GOLDEN JUBILEE

Col. McCormick Speaks on Franklin's Birthday.

Members of the Old Time Printers' association of Chicago celebrated with a dinner-dance at the Palmer house last night the golden jubilee reunion of their organization and the 229th anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin, printer, whose bust and portrait adorned the room.

More than 800 were present, including printers, newspaper men, and their families. Among them were many old-timers in the printing business as membership in the association is limited to printers and newspaper men who have engaged in the business more than twenty-five years.

Real Veterans of Type Case.

Three of the most aged printers present were each 79 years old. They were Michael Colbert, 424 Melrose street; R. L. C. Brown, 2 South St. Louis avenue, and William A. Cahill, 419 South Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park. Mr. Colbert has held his union card for fifty-nine years, Mr. Cahill for fifty-six years, and Mr. Brown for more than fifty years.

Other old-timers were John C. Harding, 76 years old, 110 North Pine avenue, and O. W. Butts, 67 years, 4426 Lowell avenue. Harding has held his union card for fifty-four years and Butts for forty-six years. Colbert, Brown, and Harding had worked for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in their day.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, gave the only address of the evening, and his tributes to the printing occupation and its contribution to civilization were accorded hearty applause.

Purpose of Organization.

The association came into being at an organization meeting in the old Sherman House on March 21, 1885. The objects of the organization as originally stated, and changed but slightly since then, were to "promote a feeling of sociability and good fellowship among the old-time printers of this city, and to arrange for an annual meeting."

Joseph Medill, former editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, was actively interested in the association. In 1896 a statue of Franklin, given by Mr. Medill to the association, was unveiled in Lincoln park.

Nervous Robber Shoots Grocer in Store Holdup

Harry Green, 47 years old, owner of a grocery at 60 West 37th street, was shot in the abdomen last night by one of two colored robbers. The Negroes were in the store when Green entered from the street and apparently fired from nervous fear, the groceryman having made no attempt at resistance. Green was taken to the Chicago Memorial hospital. The robbers fled without getting any money.

GOV. MOODIE HOLDS OFFICE; POLITICAL SITUATION IS TENSE

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Disdaining any but peaceful means, Gov. Thomas H. Moodie today retained possession of his office in a tense political situation precipitated by his impeachment yesterday in the North Dakota house of representatives.

Ordering withdrawn two National Guardsmen who had been on watch against possible attempts to remove him, Moodie declined to give up his office to Lieut. Gov. Walter H. Welford until the situation was clarified. He said he contemplated legal action.

Opinions differed whether his suspension—provided in the case of impeached officers until their cases are tried by the senate—would take effect immediately. Attorney General P. O. Sathre, affiliated with the Nonpartisan league group which sponsored the impeachment, advised the governor yesterday's action was incomplete.

This opinion led to rumors, quickly denied by leaders, that impeachment of Sathre was planned. Admitting privately such action had been considered, Nonpartisans declared it would not receive their support.

Welford, when he takes over the governor's duties, will be the state's fourth chief executive in a little more than six months. He is a Nonpartisan leaguer.

Typewriter Strike Ended; Both Sides Claim Victory

Members of the Office Machine Mechanics' union, local 717, who went out on strike against four large typewriter companies in Chicago last October, will return to work tomorrow. They settled their dispute at a hearing before H. L. McCarthy, regional director of the national labor relations board. More than 200 employés demanded a higher minimum wage and a further restriction on the number of apprentices. Some wage adjustments were made, and both the union and the employers claimed a victory.

HOSPITAL MARKS BIRTHDAY; PLANS BENEFIT SHOW

The sisters of the Little Company of Mary hospital at 95th street and California avenue celebrated the institution's fifth birthday yesterday. A recent audit of the hospital's books showed that 12 per cent of its service was rendered to charity, and 43 per cent of its patients paid only a nominal charge.

Mother M. Stanislaus, the sister superior, announced that the hospital had met its interest payments regularly, despite being erected before the 1929 crash when building costs were high.

Fund raising activities of sponsors and friends of the hospital are continuing in order to provide for the charity work. A benefit performance of the Abbey Theater players of Dublin will be held Jan. 28 and 29 at the Harris theater. Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody heads the committee in charge of arrangements.

SCIENTIST FINDS ACTIVE CRATERS ON FLOOR OF SEA

RECIFE, Brazil, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Volcanic tremors and active craters at the bottom of the Atlantic ocean between this easternmost port of the Americas, and Dakar, farthest west in Africa, were revealed today by Vening Meinesz, Dutch scientist.

The Dutch submarine K-18 arrived en route to Buenos Aires from Java in a 23,000 mile scientific and good will cruise. The scientist said soundings were made at the lowest depth of the ocean, the celebrated Romanche pit, 4.72 miles below the level of the sea. The pit is between two mountain ranges, one 1.615 miles below the level and the other 1.992 miles below.

"The hitherto unknown volcanic region as well as the enormous craters apparently vomiting water into the very ocean," Meinesz said, "have been discovered for the first time."

He expressed the opinion central Brazil probably is the oldest geological region in the world.

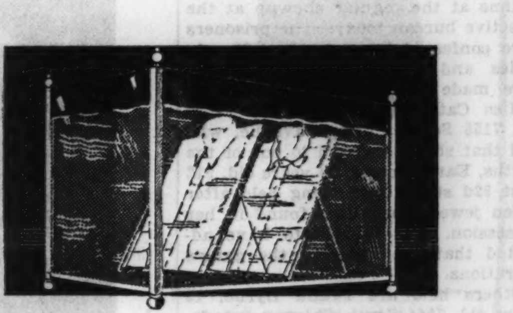
The FIRST Chicago Showing of The Jayson* SHIRT
The Greatest Advance in Collar Comfort Since the Founding of the Industry
The revolutionary Jayson collar idea can be described in a few words—FOR THE FIRST TIME YOU CAN ENJOY A SHIRT WITH A COLLAR THAT LOOKS LIKE IT HAS BEEN STARCHED YET IS NOT STARCHED. For years shirt and collar craftsmen have been seeking a method which would provide a collar with stiff collar appearance and soft collar comfort. Starching has never been satisfactory because it makes a collar airtight, stiff and uncomfortable—and a starched collar quickly wilts, wrinkles, curls or blisters in use. But now, by the Jayson method—the collar is NEVER starched, is porous, pliable and permanently neat. . . . If you want a revelation in what collar comfort can be—by all means see the Jayson shirt tomorrow.



SEE THE FISH TANK IN OUR WINDOWS
No matter how much you perspire, you can never give your shirt more of a soaking than it gets in the fish tank displayed at THE HUB. Here a Jayson Shirt and an ordinary shirt have been soaking for several days—the Jayson Collar is still as neat as before the test—the ordinary collar has wilted, wrinkled and curled. See for yourself.

HOMESTEAD PLAN LIKENED TO NAZI CAMP BY LOBBY

Program Is Called Exile Plot of New Deal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The federal subsistence homestead program was likened today to Hitler's concentration camp by the People's lobby, of which Prof. John Dewey of Columbia is president.

The group charged the administration program is a plot to exile millions of loyal Americans to outposts of isolation. This, it was said, will create a permanent army, half as large as the country's world war forces, of "forgotten men."

"Biggest Pork Barrel."

The proposed land purchases under the New Deal scheme were attacked as "the world's biggest pork barrel." It was estimated that the cost to the American people for such purchases will be between one-third and one-half of the war cost, and an annual interest charge of 3 per cent would be about a tenth of the total increase of pay rolls under the New Deal.

"The proposed expenditure of some ten billion dollars to bribe farm land owners in the economic insanity which is euphemistically called a New Deal will be a terrific assessment on taxpayers," the statement of the lobby said. "The government gave away millions of acres of land or sold it at 50 cents to $1.25 an acre.

"It now proposes to buy land at $3, and probably to $15. Incompetent and acquisitive farmowners can be made deserving Democrats by this orgy of perversion of government and allowed to dump their worthless goods on Uncle Sam.

Called Isolation Scheme.

"This subsistence farming scheme of isolation is just as cruel as Hitler's concentration camps, and has the same objectives—to remove dangerous elements. The farms are a cruel method of reducing living standards for the victims living upon them and increasing costs of food to city dwellers—just another scheme to perpetuate shortages, keep up prices, and so keep up farm values.

"A new cabinet post should be created with a secretary of destruction of food and of hope to administer the subsistence homesteads."

The group pointed out that it is significant that the administration is greatly increasing the number of civilian concentration camps. This is being done, the group alleges, so that the administration will have an extra army to control opposition to the New Deal's betrayal of the people.

FORMER MAYOR RETURNS CITY'S MISSING BOOKS

Gulfport, Miss., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Before a courtroom crowded today with substantial citizens of Biloxi, the riddle of what became of that city's books and records at the Jan. 7 change in city administration was solved.

R. Hart Chinn admitted he took them with him when he was forced into retirement as mayor by the guns of Mayor-Elect John A. O'Keefe, who marshaled his followers and seized the city hall and has held it ever since under armed force. Chinn had the missing records hauled into court today.

Chinn, through his counsel, former Lieut. Gov. Bidwell Adam, made the admission of carting away the books at a hearing citing him for contempt of court for not returning them to Biloxi city hall under mandatory order of Chancellor D. M. Russell.

Adam said Chinn considered himself technically in contempt of the court and stood ready to accept "whatever punishment the court might see fit to impose."

HOLDUP VICTIMS TO SEE 6 ROBBER SUSPECTS TODAY

Six youths of a robber band under arrest at the Grand Crossing police station will be paraded before holdup victims at the regular showup at the detective bureau today. The prisoners have confessed to more than 31 robberies and additional identifications were made at the station yesterday.

Miss Catherine Hopkins, 18 years old, 7155 South Chicago avenue, who said that she is engaged to one of the youths, Earl Thomas, 19 years old, 912 East 92d street, was being held after stolen jewelry had been found in her possession. She is said to have admitted that she knew of the gang's operations.

Others held are Frank Byrne, 18 years old, 7144 South Chicago avenue; Ralph Williams, 17 years old, 7114 Cottage Grove avenue; Miles Hoff, 22 years old, 7160 South Chicago avenue; Lawrence Chelmont, 19 years old, and his brother, Norman, 18 years old, both of 6604 Langley avenue.

FALL ON ICE IS FATAL.

Joseph Lulinski, 39 years old, 8358 Green Bay avenue, a laborer, died in the county hospital last night of injuries incurred on Jan. 16 when he fell on an icy pavement.

Chicagoan Swears Off Stomach Pain

James Smith, 632 N. Troy St., Chicago, has submitted a sworn affidavit that after twenty years of severe stomach suffering he has found complete relief. He says—"Have had temporary relief from various remedies but the effect would wear away and my trouble would return. Udga has worked like magic." Thus another letter is added to over 54,000 letters that praise the results of Udga, a stomach specialist's formula. If acid stomach, indigestion, heartburn, gas pains, belching and other symptoms of excess acidity persist, it's a warning that you need more thorough medication than baking soda, common tablets or powders. Get Udga at your drug store. One trial proves quicker, lasting relief or your money is refunded.

'SPOILS SYSTEM' CURBS RECOVERY, ASSERTS TAFT

Farley Assailed for Patronage.

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt, as leader of the Democratic party, no longer should allow the political employment policy of Postmaster General Farley to "hamstring" his efforts to lead the country to honest and decent standards of living, Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, son of former President Taft, asserted today. He spoke at a luncheon at the National Republican club.

Discussing the President's recent proposal for a four and a half billion dollar appropriation to provide work for the unemployed, Taft declared that before the appropriation is granted the taxpayers of the nation are entitled to know whether the expenditure will be placed at the disposal of Farley and "his spoils system" or in the hands of the official employment agencies of the government, the United States civil service and the department of labor.

Assails "Spoils System."

"Must applicants either for this work or for administrative positions have the proper political sponsorship?" Taft asked. "Reassuring words will be said, but will the administration keep the hands of Mr. Farley and the rest of the Democratic spoilsmen in congress, and in each little hamlet and metropolis of the land, off these jobs?

"Is the political employment policy of Mr. Farley and New York Democracy with a capital 'D' going to govern the spending of that four billion for putting 3,500,000 unemployed to work? Is the spoils system to provide security for the Democratic party?"

Taft contended that the growing interest of ordinary citizens in the expenses of their state and local governments is leading to a corresponding growth in the number of supporters of the merit system.

He said the present administration, "elected because of its idealism and living up to its ideals in many respects," should be one that would naturally support this system.

"Instead, the hold which the strictly political has upon the personnel of government is today more pervasive than at any time within the last 25 years," he continued. "Instructions have gone from Mr. Farley to appointing authorities, 'It has to be a Democrat and a good Democrat,' and only a few, such as Miss Perkins and Secretary Ickes, have withstood the pressure.

"The creed up to date of this administration as a whole is 'to the victor belongs the spoils.'"

A la Shirley Temple

The Chicago and Illinois Hairdressers' association, at its third annual children's hairstyle revue in the Hotel Sherman yesterday advocated that little girls return to the soft curls, exemplified by Shirley Temple.

To exemplify the charm of this style, they produced little Miss Jeanne De Vanney, 1744 Juneway terrace, whose blonde ringlets had been fashioned into a coiffeur, similar to Shirley's.

Using as its theme, "Keep the child natural while you can," the association is opposed to the use of cosmetics for children under 10, and favors hair treatment which retains childish innocence.

"We find that the modern child has a tendency to be very style-conscious," Miss Esther Johnson, mistress of ceremonies, said in opening the revue. "The modern mother, however, can combat this by picking out a suitable hair style for her child and then clinging to it."

'JEHOVAH' NAMED SOLE BENEFICIARY IN GEORGIA WILL

Dublin, Ga., Jan. 19.—[U.P.]—"Jehovah, the most high God," became the legal owner today of all the property of John McDaniel of Folkston.

McDaniel, member of a religious sect known as the Church of God, today filed with the clerk of the Laurens Superior court a deed giving all his real and personal property to God. The recorded deed also makes his home the church for the sect.

"Nothing like it has ever been recorded here before," commented Clerk E. S. Baldwin.

FREED IN RAID; NO WARRANT.

James Lynch, 22 North Elizabeth street, who was arrested by the Desplaines street police Jan. 11 for selling liquor without a license, was discharged by Municipal Judge McGarry yesterday because his place was raided without a search warrant.

RIFT BETWEEN RICHBERG, NRA OFFICIALS BARED

Disagreement Over Auto Code Revealed.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Donald R. Richberg was disclosed today to be in disagreement with officials of NRA's administrative board.

This development followed persistent reports that there was sharp divergence of opinion among members of the board itself.

Richberg, head of the national emergency council and also of the group named to draft NRA policy, said at the White House it was "an unfortunate impression" that the automobile code was to be renewed automatically on Feb. 1.

Members of the board had said they knew of no difficulties in the way of renewal.

Members' Opinions Vary.

An indication that members of the board itself have opposite viewpoints followed a recent speech by S. Clay Williams, board chairman. He said that NRA should be continued on a temporary basis, substantially without change. Other members of the board, questioned as to whether this speech represented the board, said no emphatically.

Blackwell Smith, NRA acting counsel, said recently the board would make no recommendations on the question of legislation. Another official said any recommendations would be strictly informal in nature, and that more or less formal suggestions would be made on whatever legislation was shaped by congress.

Richberg said the automobile code would be carefully studied before a decision was reached on its renewal.

Discusses Group's Work.

Discussing the work of an NRA committee, which is studying the possibility of smoothing out employment fluctuations in the industry, he said the committee was "named particularly to report on working conditions, and more specifically to study the possibility of regularizing employment."

He said the automobile employers had shown an interest in the regularization of employment, "but the main question is the speed with which it is to be done."

A spokesman for the automobile industry said that so far as he knew the industry expected to renew the code without change on Feb. 1.

Whatever the result of the NRA study, it was his opinion that proposed changes could not be made in time to include in the code, and that changing of the code presumably would necessitate hearings. Usually a 20 day notice is given for such hearings, more time than is available between now and Feb. 1.

PAROLED CONVICT SURRENDERS AFTER LOOP GUN BATTLE

Trafic Policeman Adolph Schnaitman and Stanley Lipka, 24 years old, a convict paroled from the Stateville penitentiary, engaged in a pistol battle in the loop yesterday after Lipka had attempted to rob employés of the Neumode Hosiery shop, at 80 West Washington street. Lipka, taking cover behind a post, emptied his weapon, but failed to hit the policeman, and surrendered.

In the store Lipka had ordered Mrs. Ernest Mitchell, the manager, to hand over the contents of the cash register. She was slow in complying, and Mrs. Gertrude Lairtzen, a clerk, ran out to notify the policeman, who was on duty at Dearborn and Washington streets. Observing her departure, the bandit fled.

Policeman Schnaitman followed him south half a block in Dearborn street to an alley, where the shooting occurred. Lipka's criminal record showed that he was convicted for robbery in August, 1932, and sentenced to one year to life in prison. He was paroled on Sept. 12, 1934.

Joseph Matlak, 17 years old, 2315 Custer street, and Theodore Bulsiewicz, 21 years old, both recently paroled from state institutions where they had been sent for burglaries, were seized yesterday morning after they had broken into a meat market owned by Adolph Schlesinger at 2001 North Western avenue.

The Spakespeare avenue police, who are holding the youths, believe they may be responsible for a large number of burglaries in the district.

Matlak was paroled last September from the detention home at St. Charles. Bulsiewicz, who was carrying a loaded revolver when he was arrested, had served three and one-half years of a one year to life sentence when he was paroled from the Pontiac reformatory last Dec. 15.

Chinese Firecracker Attack "Scares Off" Celestial Dog

SHANGHAI, Jan. 19.—(AP)—China's heavenly dog swallowed the moon tonight. A firecracker barrage from the native population was occasioned by a total lunar eclipse, which was interpreted as a mythical celestial canine devouring the moon. As the eclipse receded, credulous ones considered that the firecracker attack had scared off the heavenly dog, saving the moon for the world.

WARNING RAISED AGAINST HASTE IN SECURITY PLANS

J. L. Donnelly Urges U. S. to Encourage Capital.

A warning against haste in adopting a social security program and against letting sentiment and expediency play too great a part in shaping public policies was sounded yesterday by James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

Mr. Donnelly's statement was made in his own behalf and on the basis of President Roosevelt's message to congress. He said the association's directors would express their views on the program as soon as copies of the measures introduced in congress are available.

"It is well to keep in mind," said Mr. Donnelly, "that reform programs, however commendable their motives, which are impractical in operation, will destroy confidence and present further obstacles to real business recovery.

"The only permanent and dependable solution for the problem of unemployment and relief is the adoption by the government of such policies as will create confidence and stimulate private initiative to a point where private capital will move freely in the investment field and business can proceed with assurance. Industry is ready to coöperate in any sound program.

"On the other hand, industry will vigorously oppose any reforms which may impose intolerable burdens upon all concerned and which may undermine the fabric of our economic and social life by destroying initiative and stifling individual responsibility.

"Irrespective of the merit of the social security program, it is recognized generally that it cannot afford any immediate help in relieving unemployment. Therefore, it should not be too hastily adopted."

The President's program was criticized by Julius Savit, president of the National Alliance of Agencies for Care of Aged, who declared the plan proscribes any aid to dependent aged persons who need institutional care.

CAROL'S EX-WIFE MAY WED ITALIAN, LONDON REPORTS

Princess Helen Is Linked to Unnamed Prince.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Former Queen Helen of Rumania, divorced wife of King Carol, was reported to have accepted a proposal of marriage from an Italian prince, according to a special dispatch published in the Sunday Express today.

The Italian prince was identified merely as an ex-cavalry officer, member of the princely Roman house of Colunna.

The paper published a rumor from Rome that Helen was about to enter the Roman Catholic church. A rumor from Florence added that the step was preliminary to a marriage and that the Vatican, which does not recognize divorce, may consider annulment of her marriage to King Carol.

It was stated the Italian nobleman visited Brioni Island when the former queen and Prince Michael, Carol's son, were there together during the Christmas holidays.

The article said the courts at Bucharest and the Orthodox church synod of Rumania had been asked to send copies of all relevant papers in connection with Helen's divorce to the Vatican.

No Information in Rome.

ROME, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A spokesman for the ancient Colunna family tonight said the family knew nothing of reports that Princess Helen was engaged to marry an Italian prince of the Colunna line.

He admitted the possibility, however, that the divorced wife of King Carol of Rumania might be engaged to some member of one of the more remote branches of the family.

Prelates at Vatican City likewise were ignorant of any plans Helen, who has been living at Florence since her self-imposed exile from Rumania, might have to enter the Catholic church, and seek an annulment of her marriage to Carol.

Helen went to the theater this evening with Crown Prince Michael, who has been visiting his mother, and no one of her suite could be reached for comment on the reports.

Bucharest Is Incredulous.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Informed circles received with the greatest incredulity today reports published in London that Princess Helen was engaged to an Italian prince.

It was admitted that Princess Helen long has been in Italy and has been consistently frigid toward any suggestion of a reconciliation with the Rumanian king.

Rumanians were reluctant to believe Helen would renounce the Orthodox faith and enter the Roman Catholic church, as was reported from London.

Any marriage of Helen would be a blow to the hopes of the Queen Mother Marie, who is now here and is reported to be immersed in plans to sidetrack Mme. Magda Lupescu, mistress of the king, and bring back Helen as queen.

MICHIGAN FRATS MUST "CLEAN UP," PRESIDENT SAYS

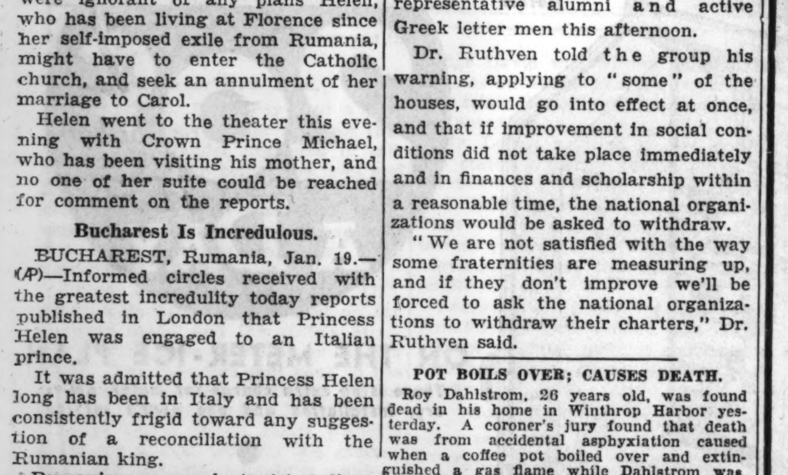
Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—University of Michigan fraternity chapters must raise their standards of financial responsibility, scholarship, and "social conduct"—in other words, must clean up—President Alexander G. Ruthven told a group of 300 representative alumni and active Greek letter men this afternoon.

Dr. Ruthven told the group his warning, applying to "some" of the houses, would go into effect at once, and that if improvement in social conditions did not take place immediately and in finances and scholarship within a reasonable time, the national organizations would be asked to withdraw.

"We are not satisfied with the way some fraternities are measuring up, and if they don't improve we'll be forced to ask the national organizations to withdraw their charters," Dr. Ruthven said.

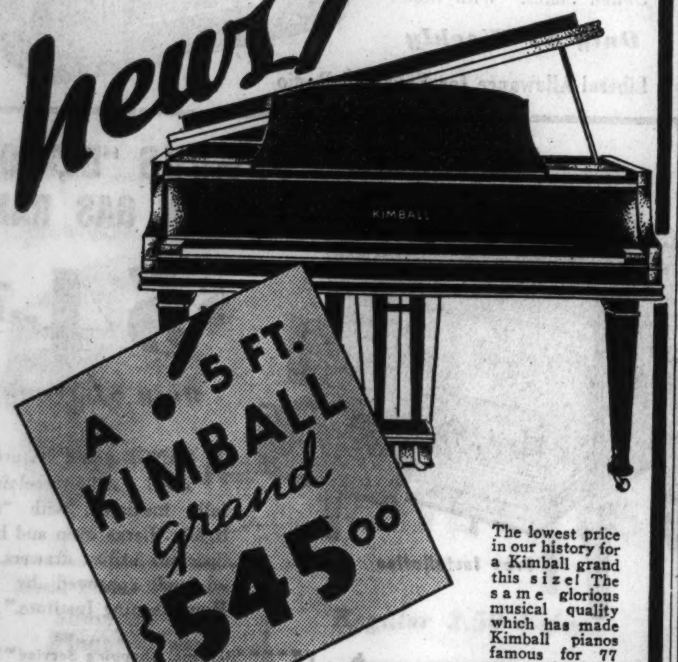
POT BOILS OVER; CAUSES DEATH.

Roy Dahlstrom, 26 years old, was found dead in his home in Winthrop Harbor yesterday. A coroner's jury found that death was from accidental asphyxiation caused when a coffee pot boiled over and extinguished a gas flame while Dahlstrom was reading in bed.



Let's Look at the record

- W. W. Kimball Co., founded by W. W. Kimball, has been in existence 77 years without reorganization or change of family ownership
- W. W. Kimball Co. owns and operates the world's largest piano and organ factory
- Kimball's sound financial position is second to none in the music industry
- Kimball—the make which has outsold any of the nation's leading pianos
- Kimball pianos, from case, action, plate and keys, are made by Kimball (not assembled)
- Kimball pianos have been used and endorsed for generations by the world's leading artists.



The lowest price in our history for a Kimball grand this size! The same glorious musical quality which has made Kimball pianos famous for 77 years. A thrilling value for sincere music lovers.

SCIENCE TRAILS COSMIC RAYS IN NEW BORN STAR

Stellar Explosion Theory Braced, German Says.

POTSDAM, Germany, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A new star that flared up in Hercules constellation just before Christmas furnished Prof. Werner Kohlhoerster new evidence today to support the theory that vast stellar explosions create cosmic rays.

Prof. Kohlhoerster, noted savant, gave over his Christmas holidays to careful observation of the "Nova" star, which appeared Dec. 14. He describes his experiments in tomorrow's edition of the Berlin Tageblatt.

He declares himself satisfied that such new stars, brought into being by explosions, are the source of the energy for the minute, invisible cosmic rays, ten or more of which pass painlessly through the body of every human being every minute, day and night, of his life.

New Field Opened.

A new field for astro-physical research has been opened up by the observations he and his associates made, Kohlhoerster believes.

[Cosmic rays not only pierce the body of every living person, but penetrate nearly 1,000 feet into the earth. A few atoms are destroyed in their passage through the body, and scientists believe this sometimes may cause slight changes in hereditary. Their energies, measured in electricity, are the largest yet discovered, running up to 10 billion or more volts.]

Discarding other theories as to the origin of the rays, Kohlhoerster observes:

"Of uncounted hypotheses, only two remain; first, that the particles of cosmic rays receive their energy from electric fields of power [Kraftfelder] existing between individual milky way systems of the universe; and second, the opinion uttered years ago by Nernst that catastrophes among stars by explosions yield the necessary energy."

Holidays Ruined.

Humorously describing his chagrin and that of his associates that their Christmas holidays were ruined by the discovery of the new star—"for all measurements had to be made then"—the scientist continues:

"Besides registering the continuance and unusual obsolescing of the Nova, we measured forthwith and continually day and night, with coincidences [koinzidenzen], for only in this way could the star be directly contacted."

The labor of many days and nights, Koehlhoerster writes, "appears to be worth while, for our experiments could be conducted under unusually favorable circumstances so that only 589,704 coincidented cosmic rays had to be counted to ensure the result."

Sun Eliminated.

The scientist writes that he found the sun could be eliminated as a possible influence on his observations, since it stood too low and shone too briefly.

"We found during the days when the Nova was brightest, especially when it could shine fully into our apparatus, that its brightness was 1 or 2 per cent greater than ordinarily," he says.

"It is therefore not entirely impossible that this new star furnished some cosmic rays, and that their origin is to be found in such exploding stars in which the necessary quantities of energy for producing cosmic rays are inhered.

"Assuming all cosmic rays originate from Nova stars, 50 or 100 such stars are the origin. That coincides with astronomic estimates concerning the frequency of these new stars."

MUSK OXEN ARE BORN IN ALASKA FOR FIRST TIME IN A CENTURY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The first musk oxen born in Alaska in a century were reported today in the annual report of J. N. Darling, chief of the biological survey. The blessed events occurred in the herd which the bureau introduced in Alaska since 1930.

"The calves were subject to attack by the older animals, particularly the bulls," the report said, "and the last calf born was killed."

Destruction of 7,500,000 rats in Georgia, Alabama, and Texas reduced the cases of endemic typhus fever in those states from an anticipated 630 to 47, the report said. The work was carried out under the bureau's direction with CWA funds.

U. S. Flyer Drowns When His Plane Crashes

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Coast guard headquarters tonight announced the death of Lieut. Charles T. Thrun from drowning. Efforts at resuscitation were abandoned seven and one-half hours after he was removed from the wreckage of his plane, which crashed today at Cape May, N. J.

EVANSTON BANK CLERK ADMITS $22,500 THEFTS

Edward A. Heinze, 28 years old, 2018 Farragut avenue, a clerk in the clearing house department of the State Bank and Trust company of Evanston since September, 1929, has confessed embezzling $22,500 from the bank in the last two years, according to an announcement made yesterday by George C. Williams, executive vice president of the bank.

Mr. Williams said the bank's auditors discovered the shortage Thursday and Heinze admitted his guilt. Heinze, who is married, told the bank's officers that he had used the money for living expenses and to lend to relatives and friends. Mr. Williams said Heinze is in the custody of private detectives and agents of Lloyds of London, with whom the bank carries full insurance for the money taken by Heinze.

Winston Churchill's Son Enters British By-Election

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Randolph Churchill, son of Winston Churchill, a die-hard Conservative, is contesting Wavertree in the by-election caused by the elevation to the peerage of Ronald Nall-Cain. Young Churchill said he would run as an independent Conservative.

NEW CONTRACTS ON SANITARY JOB HERE TO BE LET

Project Will Be Pushed with PWA Fund.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The greatest sanitary engineering job in history will be under way in a few months with the award of new contracts totalling $21,646,000 under the Public Works administration's loan and grant to provide the sanitary district of Chicago with the finest metropolitan sewage disposal system.

This was announced today by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes. He disclosed that contracts may be awarded within two weeks for the first units of the district's southwest side intercepting sewer and treatment works. This is the second and largest development under a $41,938,000 project, developed by the district and financed by the PWA.

Completed by End of 1937.

The entire project will be completed by the end of 1937, district engineers estimate. It will be in operation by 1938—the year set by the Supreme court for the reduction of lake water withdrawals.

The completed sewage system will benefit not only residents of the Chicago area. The system will answer complaints of neighboring Great Lakes states that alleged excessive diversion of Lake Michigan waters is lowering the lake levels. It also will still the protests of Illinois river valley cities that their streams are being polluted by partly treated sewage.

Joshua d'Esposito, PWA resident project engineer, and Carl H. Baurer, PWA state engineer inspector, report that 3,600 men are now employed on limited winter construction of tunnels and plants under the program. Projects already under way have given direct employment to as many as 5,000 men daily during the summer.

Jobs for 5,000 More Men.

With the launching of the southwest side development, Philip Harrington, chief engineer for the sanitary district, estimates that there will be direct employment for 5,000 additional workers. The phase of the program is the final link in the all embracing plan developed by the district's engineering staf.

This staf is recognized throughout the world as an outstanding group of sanitary engineers. It was developed under the late George Monroe Wisner, ably built up under Edward J. Kelly, now mayor of Chicago, and is now capably directed by his successor, Mr. Harrington.

Far beneath the city's streets miners are at work day and night digging through clay and dirt, blasting through solid rock to complete a project unparalleled in size and in the variety of sanitary engineering problems presented. Under way are two treatment plants, and 20 miles of intercepting sewers.

Work on Calumet Plant.

Starting from the lake front the sewer maze inclines gently under water pipes, utility conduits, the river and the freight subway until widening tunnels reach a depth of 60 feet at treatment plants. The district is also completing additions to the west side plant and construction is under way on the Calumet plant, whose first unit will double the size of the largest activated sludge works now in operation in the world.

The system, designed by sanitary engineers with Chicago's future growth in mind will be ample for a population of 4,815,000 anticipated by 1940. The southwest side plant alone will have a capacity of 400 million gallons of waste daily.

Into the construction of this plant will be poured 60 million cubic yards of concrete, 8 million pounds of reinforcing and miscellaneous steel and more than 4 million pounds of cast iron pipe and fittings. Its construction was recommended by a special board of engineers appointed by Secretary Ickes to study the district's plans.

Start Long Sewer Soon.

First bids for the southwest side system were received Dec. 27. Following their award this month work will be started on $650,000 in heavy treatment machinery and an 18 foot intercepting sewer 8,000 feet long to cost $1,500,000 Full drawings for this plant have not been completed as engineers are awaiting results of experimentation at the Calumet plant.

Behind the sewage project is the city's old problem of disposal. Less than a half century ago waste emptied into Lake Michigan. Later the flow of the Chicago river was reversed, a phenomenal engineering project, and the stream, carrying sewage, was directed into the Illinois river. Then the drainage canal was dug to carry other waste into the Illinois river.

Water was diverted from Lake Michigan to sweep the waste on its way. Lake states howled protests that the diversion lowered the lake levels, ruining miles of beaches and menacing harbor navigation even in years when the water level reached unprecedented heights.

Carried to Supreme Court.

The states carried their complaint to the United States Supreme court, which in 1930 ordered the reduction of diversion of water from 6,500 cubic feet a second to 1,500. The decision gave the sanitary district until 1938 to reduce the diversion.

Protests also came from another quarter, towns in the Illinois river valley. They argued that poorly treated sewage brought danger of pollution to their water supplies and increased flood hazards.

In a move to comply with the court order the sanitary district planned to treat waste before discharging it into the drainage streams. This program was advocated as a means of silencing the protestors, who refused to listen to answering arguments, and reducing diversion.

No Market for Bonds.

Plans were drawn up for the necessary huge expenditure. Bond issues were authorized and work was started. Tax collections fell off with the depression and the financing bonds could find no market. The "whoopee era" of wasteful expenditure of funds by a former administration of the district contributed to the district's acute financial situation.

It was then that the PWA came to the aid of the district with its loan and grant. On Dec. 20, 1933 the PWA purchased sanitary district bonds covering the $41,938,000 loan and grant. The terms of the grant provided that work be completed within thirty-one months.

Fourteen projects were undertaken with PWA funds. Construction is being carried on in all but two of these projects. In the remaining projects, the southwest side treatment plant and its sewer system, work will be well under way by June, with the award of contracts in the next two weeks.

Work is up to schedule on every project and in many is ahead of schedule; the progress guarantees completion, according to engineers, by the expiration of the set time—the end of 1937.

EXPECT PWA COUNSEL HERE.

Lloyd H. Landau, general counsel for the public works administration at Washington, is expected to come to Chicago early this week to confer with sanitary district officials on a supplemental agreement on sewage treatment works construction.

Tour to Be Repeated

Two hundred fifty Chicago high school students who are classed as "outstanding scholastically" made a tour of the Northwestern university campus in Evanston yesterday as guests of the university. The group was received by President Walter Dill Scott, who addressed them in Harris hall. In his speech Dr. Scott said the university planned to conduct a similar tour each year. The purpose, he said, was to establish a definite relationship between the high school and university and to acquaint high school students with the possibilities of higher study.

Judge Offers Candidate for World's 'Meanest Man'

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A candidate for the world's "meanest man" was offered today by Magistrate Overton Harris when faced by Gernaro Pescia, charged with refilling genuine liquor bottles with alcohol and coloring matter.

"After the American people have fought so hard for the liberty to drink," observed the magistrate, "such a man would rob a poorhouse."

Pescia was held on three counts.

F. Ralph Barnum, a salesman, said to be related to the late P. T. Barnum, the showman, was arrested yesterday on a writ issued a year ago for falling behind $1,325 in his alimony payments to Mrs. Vera Barnum, 37 years old, of the Allerton hotel.

BRITAIN REPORTS PUBLIC WORKS AS AID TO IDLE FAIL

GENEVA, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Great Britain has tried the system of public works as a remedy for unemployment and found it wanting. The experience is set forth in a 300-page volume, "National Public Works," published by the league of nations on the basis of replies from 29 nations, including the United States.

Britain's reply was that "the experiment of large public works as a method of dealing with unemployment has been tried and has failed, and it is not intended to repeat it." It said the British view was that the ultimate test of each work must be its social or economic value.

The reply added that England's experience showed that the stimulation of public works selected primarily in respect to their employment-providing capacity had little effect on unemployment in proportion to the heavy expenditure incurred.

"The works when completed leave burdens on national and local finance which impede the recovery of normal activity," the reply said.

PLEA TO ICKES FOR OUTER DRIVE BRIDGE MAPPED

Igoe, McAndrews to Seek Federal Funds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—A plea for completion of Chicago's Outer Drive bridge from funds in the President's 4 billion dollar work relief treasure chest, soon to be voted by congress, will be made this week.

Congressmen Michael L. Igoe and James McAndrews will seek an appointment early this week with Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, administrator of public works funds, who has issued a call for projects available under the new program. The administrator of the huge spending program has not been named, however.

Kelly Suggests Plan.

The suggestion that funds to complete the span linking the south and north sides of the city at the mouth of the Chicago river be taken from the new outlay of federal cash was made last week by Mayor Kelly.

In line with the mayor's request, Igoe, who as a former south park commissioner was active in negotiating for the project under the old PWA, and McAndrews, who represents the Lincoln park district, have conferred with PWA attorneys.

"The only possible stumbling block would be in the bonding power of the new consolidated park district," said Igoe, "but this easily could be corrected through legislation."

Will Urge Bond Issue.

Igoe explained that under the park act the district was authorized to issue 1½ per cent in bonds over and above the bond issues of the superseded park systems so long as the total remained within the constitutional limitation of 5 per cent of the assessed valuation of property in the municipality.

"There is $6,878,000 needed for the bridge," said Igoe. "I will suggest to Secretary Ickes that the Illinois legislature be asked to pass an issue of nonreferendum bonds for the park district ample to finance the project."

The bonds then would be sold to the federal government.

Funds Once Earmarked.

That there was a chance to qualify under the old PWA after the bonding power was obtained was indicated by Igoe. He said the PWA had been selling its securities and should have cash on hand. In this event the project could be resumed without delaying until the President's work relief gets under way.

SPIRITUALISM IS A RELIGION, ASSERTS JUDGE

Davenport, Ia., Jan. 19.—[U. P.]—Spiritualism is a religion and the federal constitution guarantees the right of free worship, Police Judge John A. Hornby ruled today in dismissing charges against four persons accused of swindling by clairvoyance.

Mrs. Eva Higgins, 63; Louis Meisner, 43; Mrs. Grace Woods, 34, and H. L. Mayhew, 34, were arrested when police interrupted a séance put on by the pair before a large and thoroughly awed audience.

The only trouble was, Harold Thuenen, city attorney, said, was the séance was not "on the level," because Mrs. Higgins was encased in a sheet and pretending to be a ghost when police arrived.

Judge Hornby listened to the accusation and then dismissed the defendants of any swindle.

"If it was just a show, the people got their money's worth," he said, "and if it was anything else it was religious worship which American citizens are granted freely and in their own way by the constitution."

BAR COMMITTEE BACKS LOFTON IN CONTEMPT FIGHT

Upholds His Conduct of Habeas Case.

Attorney Joseph B. Lofton, 77 West Washington street, who won the release of a convicted Chicago robber from Joliet penitentiary on a writ of habeas corpus Friday in the Du Page county Circuit court at Wheaton, will appear tomorrow morning before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court. The state's attorney has filed a petition asking that Lofton be cited to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court and barred from practice in the Criminal court.

This action arises from Lofton's alleged disregard of instructions given him by Judge Sullivan when Lofton discussed with him the case of Milton Panateles, who was released as a result of the habeas corpus petition in Du Page county.

Bar Association Approves.

It was learned yesterday, however, that the Chicago Bar association's committee for defense of the poor, which appointed Lofton to represent Panateles free of charge, had unanimously approved his conduct in the case. The bar committee's resolution was passed on to the association's board of governors who in turn have referred it to the judiciary committee.

Attorney Lofton, Circuit Judge Max F. Allaben, who issued the writ in Wheaton; Judge Joseph B. David, whose order was voided by the writ; Judge Sullivan, and the state's attorney all took the opportunity yesterday of clarifying their positions.

Panateles was convicted in a bench trial before Judge Harry M. Fisher in March, 1932, of robbing Harry Ress of $10 in a hotel at 316 South Halsted street. He was represented by Public Defender Benjamin F. Bachrach. No motion was made for a new trial or for an appeal. While in the county jail, according to Mr. Lofton, Panateles succeeded in interesting two lawyers in his behalf.

Move for New Trial.

On April 15, 1932, they filed a petition with Judge Fisher alleging that the public defender neglected to talk with the prisoner before the trial and failed to interview seven witnesses who could have proved Panateles' innocence. The lawyers filed an application for a new trial on coram nobis proceedings, alleging new evidence.

Judge Fisher on April 28, 1932, granted Panateles a new trial on the showing made, and the state's attorney's office made no objection to this order. The case was sent back to the chief justice for reassignment and on July 20, 1932, came before Judge David.

Judge David voided Judge Fisher's order for a new trial on the ground that the petition contained subject matter which could only be taken up in an appeal. He held that Judge Fisher lacked jurisdiction, since the term of court in which the original finding of guilty was made had passed. Judge David ordered Panateles taken to the penitentiary on the original mittimus.

Troubles Told to Bar.

While in prison, Panateles wrote of his troubles to the Bar association. The committee for defense of the poor investigated, and assigned Lofton to represent Panateles.

Ten days ago Attorney Lofton conferred with Chief Justice Sullivan in chambers on the possibility of filing a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. The lawyer explained his client was without funds and was given permission to obtain a certified copy of the court record under the pauper's act.

Judge Sullivan asserted yesterday that Lofton applied for a writ of habeas corpus orally, and that he denied the request, advising him the proper precedure was to take the record to the Supreme court on an appeal.

No Cash for Appeal.

Attorney Lofton explained yesterday than an appeal would entail expenses of $150 or $200, and that the money was not available. Accordingly he went before Judge Allaben and applied for a writ of habeas corpus.

Under the Illinois statutes any Circuit judge in any county may entertain such a petition for the release of a prisoner in any state institution. The Supreme court of Illinois has held that an inferior court, by such a petition, may not sit as a court of review, but that if allegations, properly made in habeas corpus proceedings are proved, the court has the power to act on such a petition.

"My understanding of the case is that no petition for a writ had been filed," said Judge Allaben in explanation yesterday. "Even if one had been filed and denied, it still would not have affected my ruling.

On Plaintif's Rights.

"There are any number of instances where the refusal of one court to issue a writ has not affected the right of the plaintif to file any number of subsequent writs.

"My holding in this case was that Judge David was without jurisdiction to pass on Judge Fisher's order for a new trial. His only course was to hear the new trial."

Mr. Lofton asserted he had notified the state's attorney personally of his intention to go before Judge Allaben, and that the state's attorney of Du Page county was willing for a Cook county prosecutor to appear there as representative of the warden of the penitentiary.

Lofton said he was convinced that Panateles' imprisonment was unjust and in violation of the constitution, and that habeas corpus was the proper remedy.

Sees Ruling as Improper.

As explained by Assistant State's Attorney James V. Cunningham, the state's position is that Judge Allaben sat improperly as a court of review. Lofton's and Judge Allaben's position is that where an order, as Judge David's is alleged to be, is void on the face of it, the Supreme court permits an inferior court to act on a proper habeas corpus showing.

Mr. Cunningham asserted Lofton's proper move was to go before the higher court. He said the state's attorney would seek a mandamus from the Supreme court, ordering Judge Allaben to expunge from the record his release order. Two robbery charges, nol-prossed at the time of Panateles' conviction, will also be reinstated, Mr. Cunningham asserted.

SABOTEURS FIRE 12 SUGAR CANE FIELDS IN CUBA

MATANZAS, Cuba, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Twelve serious cane field fires were reported to have sprung up suddenly today near the town of Maximo Gomez, destroying large amounts of sugar cane despite valiant attempts of the government and the army to stamp out sabotage.

Railway facilities and a repair shack near the Central Espana sugar mill were reported to have been burned by saboteurs.

The government recently suspended constitutional guarantees in most provinces of Cuba during the sugar season to prevent the action of saboteurs. Anti-government forces have sworn to destroy as much as possible of the current crop.

Bomb Kills Boy of 17.

HAVANA, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The premature explosion of a bomb today killed Eduardo Castillo, 17, who, police said, was placing the bomb in a downtown cafe near the city hall. Three passersby were wounded. The explosion climaxed a series of them which kept police busy all through the morning hours.

SHOT IN HUNTING MISHAP.

Canton, Ill., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Alex Phillips, employe of the board of education, was seriously wounded today in a hunting accident. A companion's gun fell and both barrels were discharged, the shots striking Phillips in the back.

RUSSIA IS GIVEN VOICE ON LEAGUE FINANCIAL BODY

GENEVA, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The league of nations council, over-riding the objections of members of its financial committee today, appointed Soviet representatives as full-fledged members of the league's financial and economic committees.

Opposition to the appointments was expressed because the Russians represented the Soviet system. There were unconfirmed reports that the entire financial committee, to which Norman H. Davis is the American delegate, might resign as a consequence of the action.

FRENCH SKYLARK, GIRL SPY, LEARNS TO FLY AGAIN

Stunt Aviatrix in 1914; Barred as War Pilot.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 19.—Marthe Richard, "Skylark," prewar stunt flier and youngest of the aviatrices of that time, who, when France refused to take her as a fighting pilot became a sensational spy, is learning to fly again. Discovered today at Guayancourt air field, where she is taking lessons, she shyly admitted the fact.

The "Skylark" crashed several times in prewar stunt flying, and once several papers reported her dead. When the war arrived this Frenchwoman of Alsatian descent demanded to fight the enemy in the air.

Sent to Spain.

She was turned down by the army and determined to risk her life for her country. She entered the spy service and was sent to Spain where her patriotism carried her so far she became mistress for many months of a German baron, whom she hated, in order to get secrets regarding bases of German submarines on the Spanish coast.

Several months ago when the government announced its intention to make her a chevalier of the Legion of Honor, part of the press attacked the idea on the grounds of her alleged immoral methods to gain the German submarine confidence, but the government insisted, and a majority of the press vigorously defended her.

Learning Fast.

The "Skylark" who, many times as an aviatrix in the shaky pre-war planes and then as a spy, faced hair raising situations without batting an eye, listened humbly today as the flying teacher said to newspapermen: "She is learning fast, but her landing is not so good yet."

She explained:

"It has been twenty-one years since I was a pilot and of course my license was outdated. Aviation is no longer acrobatics; it has become a sport. With these strong planes which you know you can depend on you are tempted to become careless. What speed! You hardly are able to see the country below."

Captain of Ship Assists at Birth of Twins; All Well

DUTCH HARBOR, Alaska, Jan. 19.—(AP)—With no doctor or nurse aboard ship, Capt. Ryning, of the small motorship Starr, assisted at the birth of twins to Mrs. Harry C. Hunt of Unga, Alaska. Mrs. Sothale Pettitoff of Akutan also assisted. On the vessel's arrival three hours later, the mother and babies were transferred to a hospital, where all were "doing well" today.

MEXICAN PLANES GUARD U.S. BORDER TO NIP ARMS PLOT

JUAREZ, Mexico, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Reports of plots to smuggle arms from the United States into Mexico brought 40 Mexican army planes winging to the border today. Three planes of the Second regiment, Mexican air service, equipped with machine guns and radio sets, arrived in Juarez under command of Capt. Alberto Najera Mercado. They began to patrol the border out of Juarez.

Other ships were dispatched to Nogales, Nuevo Laredo, and Ojinaga.

Gen. Antonio Guerrero, commander of the Chihuahua military zone, said he did not expect a revolutionary outbreak and denied rumors that a band of Mexican rebels organized in the United States had tried to enter Chihuahua.

Two Kentucky Colonels on Bridge as Liner Sails

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—There were two Kentucky colonels on the bridge of the Conte Di Savoia when she sailed today. They were Capt. Antonio Lena and Staf Captain Giorgo Cavallini, who received the designations at a dinner last night. Cavallini said he would ask to be transferred to the navy, but he understood that Kentucky has no navy."

3 BABES ARE BORN AS MISSIONARIES FLEE CHINA REDS

American Tells Horrors of Bandit Waves.

CHANGTEH, Hunan Province, China, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Gen. Ho Chien, governor of Hunan province, arrived here with his staf today, establishing headquarters to direct anti-bandit operations in western Hunan.

The stork continued to follow American missionaries here while the government was attempting to oust the outlaws. A daughter, Vivian Joan, was born to Mrs. Paul Bartel of Lincoln, Neb., associated with the Christian and Missionary alliance.

Americans Flee for Lives.

CHANGSHA, Hunan Province, China.—(AP)—[By Mail.]—The red wave sweeping this south central China province is washing American missionaries before it.

Americans of many missions have had to flee for their lives. Men, women, and children have suffered hardship and privation in the escape from their threatened stations.

The story of a little band of Americans, trapped in the river port of Changteh by attacking reds, who succeeded in escaping by boat, was unfolded, on the arrival of the refugee party here, by the Rev. J. E. Graham of Carbondale, Pa., worker of the Christian and Missionary alliance, which has headquarters in New York.

The twenty-one missionaries—mostly Americans—lived through "wildest uncertainty" before the order to evacuate came from the authorities, he said. Rumor after rumor of imminent communist attacks kept the group uneasy. But when the attack finally came, it was unexpected.

Trapped Troops Leap Into River.

Out of a clear sky, Graham said, "came the electrifying news that the reds, under the notorious Gen. Lo Hung, had reached a point within seven miles of the city. They had come upon the government troops from the rear and demoralized them so completely that they fled in wild disorder. One detachment of government troops—said to number close to 1,000—had its retreat cut off and was faced with the alternative of facing the Reds and certain death, or leaping into the river. Most of the trapped men chose the river and were drowned.

"The missionaries were warned by the authorities to leave the city immediately. We gathered a few of our more portable belongings, scaled a high barricade of baled cotton at the city entrance, and made our way to the river.

"Three expectant mothers were our greatest problem. Our overcrowded boats were not the most desirable place for the stork to make his appearance. There was nothing else to do, however, but attempt to make the best speed possible in our antiquated boats in the hope of reaching the hospital at Changsha.

Overtaken by Stork.

"Unfortunately, however, the boats were not built for speed. We soon discovered that our little fleet could make no better than two miles an hour."

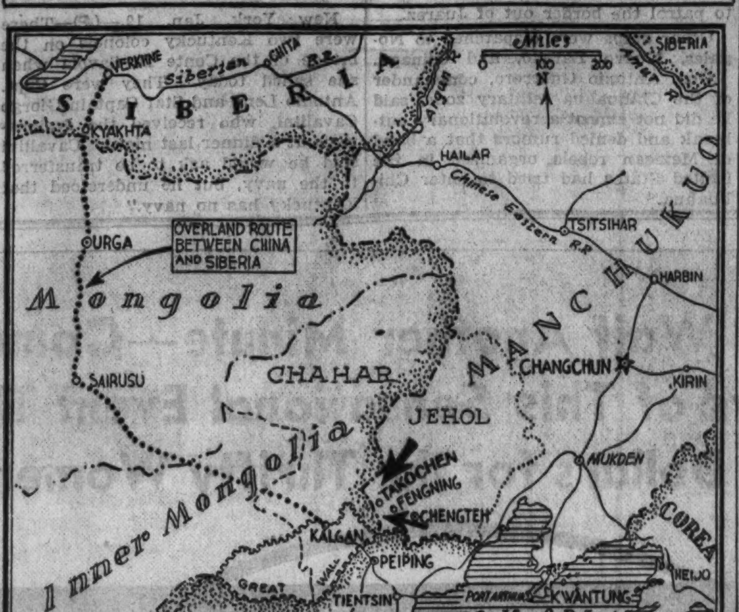
Graham told how the boats had gone scarcely fifteen miles when they were obliged in dead of night to tie up at the small village of Nu-Pi-Tan. Mrs. Graham, one of the three expectant mothers, was moved ashore, and a small room over a mission chapel made into an improvised hospital. An hour after her arrival Mrs. Graham became the mother of a girl. The next day a son was born to Mrs. W. Wager of Oxdrift, Ontario.

"In the morning," Graham continued, "the two mothers were carried on stretchers to the river bank and our flotilla continued its way downstream at Hanshow, a port about 20 miles below Changteh, where comfortable quarters were found for Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Wager in the station of the Christian and Missionary alliance, in charge of Misses E. and M. Hilty of Pandora, O. The mothers and infants are little the worse for their experience and are making excellent progress."

2 Missionaries Reported Alive.

CHUNGKING, Szechwan Province, China, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Advices reaching here today indicated that two missionaries named Booshardt, a Swiss, and Arnolis Hayman, an Englishman, kidnaped by bandits in Kweichow province last October, were alive somewhere in the southwestern part of that area. The reports indicated they were being held for ransom. Previous communications had led to the belief they were dead. Missionaries here were attempting to send food and clothing to the captured men.

JAPAN ORDERS DRIVE ON CHINA



[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 19.—The Japanese army in Manchukuo announced today that it will start a general offensive tomorrow against Gen. Sung Chieh-yuan, Chinese controler of Chahar province. An ultimatum was dispatched today ordering him to move out of Jehol province immediately if he wishes to avoid a clash. The army, in explaining the decision, said Jehol is clearly Manchukuoan territory, and if China is sincere it will order Gen. Sung to move out. A tense atmosphere is noticeable in Japanese military quarters in Tokio, Changchun [Hsinking] and Peiping.

Gen. Sung late last year is alleged to have entered Jehol with a large force, occupying many strategic points in the vicinity of Takochen and establishing administrative organs.

FRANCE'S GAMBLING REVENUE FOR 1934 SHOWS 6 PCT. SLUMP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 19.—Despite economic improvement in Great Britain, which has always furnished a large part of France's gambling clientèle, the French casino's "take" in 1934 was 6 per cent less than in the previous year, according to figures just published.

Receipts for 1934 totaled $9,100,000. Observers explain that this was partly due to the fact that improved British conditions have not resulted in much British spending in France, on account of the disadvantage in exchange, and partly to the steadily decreasing French purchasing power as economic difficulties increased.

The chief casino towns in the last year were Nice, Le Touquet, Cannes, Deauville, Enghien—a comparatively new casino, serving Paris gambling fans—Vichy, and Biarritz. All of these showed a slight improvement over 1933 except Enghien and Vichy, but the slump in most of the smaller casinos brought the decrease in the total "take" as compared with 1933.

LEAGUE UP IN AIR OVER JAP RULE OF PACIFIC ISLANDS

Special Session Urged on Mandate Problem.

GENEVA, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Growing concern was apparent at Geneva today over how to solve the problem of Japan's responsibility to the league of nations about her mandate over the Pacific islands, once her resignation from the league becomes effective on March 27.

The question was deemed so important that some quarters are advocating a special session of the league council on that date.

In questioning today Japan's alleged inclusive development of some 1,400 former German islands in the Pacific, the council in no way discussed Japan's right to maintain these islands in the future, nor did it tacitly or otherwise approve Japan's right to maintain them.

May Insist on Supervision.

The league has been represented as believing that, from a practical standpoint, nothing short of the dispatch of an international navy would induce Japan to relinquish the islands, and the league does not even dream of such a step.

What it can do is to insist that Japan continue to bow to the league's right of supervision over the islands.

As one of the allied associated powers which distributed the mandates over all former German colonies, the United States has a voice in the future of the Pacific islands, and the league is speculating regarding possible action from that quarter.

Seeks Seat in World Court.

It was understood that Japan already has canvassed the powers on behalf of election of a Japanese to the world court of justice bench to succeed Judge Adatchi. A movement seems to be forming against the designation of a Japanese because Japan resigned from the league after condemnation of her action in Manchuria.

Similar opposition has been noted as developing against permitting Japan to continue to have representation on financial, economic, and other standing committees of the league.

League circles think it not unlikely that some member may raise the question of Japan's right to hold her Pacific island mandates even before March 27.

It is reported Japan plans to continue her coöperation with the league even after her resignation becomes effective. Japan was expected to do this along the lines now followed by the United States and along the lines which Germany may adopt through coöperation piecemeal with Geneva without resuming membership.

Japanese Admiral Says Tokio May Change Its Naval Stand

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—There is still hope of avoiding a naval race, Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, Japanese delegate to the recent three power conversations here, said today. He declared Japan may yet change its mind.

The admiral refused to predict when or how his government might change the attitude that led to the denunciation of the Washington naval treaty. But he did say such a change was possible after he submits his report on the London talks to the Tokio government.

Avoids Visit to U. S.

Admiral Yamamoto will leave London at the end of this month for Tokio via Siberia. He was ordered by his government to return directly, without visiting the United States, where it had been hoped fresh proposals to avoid a naval race might have been made.

Admiral Yamamoto said he was much pleased by the London talks and with the "free and frank discussions with the American and British delegates."

"I feel we understand each other much better now," he said. "When my full report is submitted to my government there is a possibility that certain points at issue will be altered. I think the nations realize it is to their advantage to avoid a naval race.

Appeals for "Understanding."

"I wish the peoples of the world, and particularly the American people, would understand there is more behind the Japanese denunciation of the Washington treaty than a mere desire to get rid of a discriminatory ratio. We do want to get rid of the discriminatory ratio and all discriminatory ratios, but we are really in favor of extensive cutting down—disarmament down to defensive requirements."

It has been felt all along in London that Yamamoto objected to Tokio's intransigence and his statement today indicated he thought he might be successful in getting that attitude changed.

ROOSEVELT PUTS ISLE IN PACIFIC UNDER NAVY RULE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[U. P.]—President Roosevelt today transferred to navy jurisdiction "for administrative purposes" Wake Island, 2,000 miles west of Hawaii, near the Japanese mandated islands.

The President's action concerning Wake Island and three small islands of the Hawaiian group, was taken under long standing congressional authority.

It was understood that the navy intended to use Wake Island as a base for experimental trans-Pacific flights during the spring, when the Pan-American Airways intends to make exploratory flights leading to a regular oriental commercial service.

PUT PUBLIC FIRST IN LIQUOR RULE, URGES DR. SCOTT

Forget Industry and Tax Bodies, Says Educator.

Control of the liquor trafic for the benefit of the public rather than in the selfish interests of the industry itself or of revenue seeking governments was demanded by Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, at a round-table discussion of the social aspects of liquor, at the Hotel Sherman.

Present regulations governing the sale of liquor are unsatisfactory, according to five speakers at the symposium which closed the three day meeting of the National Conference of State Liquor Control Administrators. Municipal Judge J. M. Braude, retiring chairman of the conference, presided at the meeting.

Three Affected Groups.

Dr. Scott defined three groups materially affected by liquor control legislation. First of these includes those interested in the manufacture, distribution and sale of alcoholic beverages. The second is made up of governmental agencies, federal, state, and local, which seek revenue from the liquor industry.

"The third group interested in this problem of liquor control consists of the great majority of American people" Dr. Scott said. "The first group is interested in personal profit, the second in revenue. But this third group represents the demand for individual and community welfare.

"As liquor administrators, you must be fair to all three interests, but I fear that you give the first group the benefit of the doubt. The liquor laws, primarily, must be enforced in the interests of the public. The educators of America, desiring to create habits of temperance, particularly in the youth of the country, urge that you consider first the public welfare."

Opposes Saloon's Return.

Dr. Scott declared that the return of the saloon is "welcomed by the industry, regarded with indifference by the governments, and viewed with the deepest regret by the public." Interests of these groups are many times anagonistic, Dr. Scott continued, but in the main, legislation should be determined by the wishes of the vast but inarticulate third class.

Sherif John Toman and Sveinbjorn Johnson, legal counsel for the University of Illinois, agreed that, in a great measure, the social problems arising from liquor can be solved by temperance.

"Although we make laws and regulations governing the sale of liquor," Sherif Toman said, "we can do more towards making these laws unnecessary in our homes. Let each man and woman teach his children how to handle a dangerous thing in such a way that they will be able to enjoy the benefits of liquor, that they will always be its masters and not its slaves."

Urges Gentlemanly Drinking.

A similar plea for "gentlemanly" drinking habits was voiced by Mr. Johnson who explained the affect of repeal upon university life.

Answering the general indictment of Chicago "saloon-taverns" presented by Miss Jessie Binford, head of the Juvenile Protective association, Edward J. Kaindl, representing the Retail Liquor Dealers' Protective association, declared that retailers are anxious to co-operate with federal and state agencies in cleaning house within their industry.

A need for greater facilities for the treatment of psychiatric liquor cases was claimed by Miss Margaret Windheimer, social worker in charge of liquor law violators in the municipal court.

ACTRESSES FACE PERJURY CASE

Sought Since Dec. 4

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Sought since last December 4 on perjury indictments, Vilma Aknay and Sari Fedak, Hungarian film actresses, surrendered themselves in Superior court here today. They were released under $5,000 bail each. The perjury charges assertedly grew out of testimony in connection with a $250,000 breach of promise suit by Miss Aknay against Ernest Vajda, Hungarian dramatist. The suit was never brought to trial.

234 AGENCIES OF GOVERNMENT IN "SIMPLE" INDEX

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A new volume of 572 pages, listing 234 agencies, appeared today as a "simplified index" of the United States government.

The 1935 directory, approximately three times as large as the 1934 volume, includes all agencies of the government. Last year's catalog listed only recovery organizations.

The National Emergency council, publisher, has given up the effort to keep pace with changes. It declared it would only "revise currently" instead of daily as it attempted to do in 1934.

TRAIN KILLS WOMAN.

Centerville, Ia., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A train-auto collision today resulted in the death of Mrs. A. J. Hollenbeck, 52, of Near Centerville, and the injury of her husband and son, Albert.

PATLAK HEARING THIS WEEK IN CONTEMPT CASE

Attorney David Y. Patlak was ordered yesterday to appear in the Probate court Jan. 25 to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court for his activities as attorney for the administrator of the estate of Mrs. Bertha Topel, who died in 1926 leaving an estate estimated at $10,000.

The contempt citation was issued by Probate Judge John F. O'Connell at the request of Attorney Mary Parkemeier in behalf of Mrs. Mary Nawrocki, 3506 Diversey avenue, one of the 17 heirs to the estate. The petition charges Patlak with mishandling the funds of the estate and with refusing to turn over records and documents to the administrator, Felix D. Kortas.

Patlak was released recently from the Illinois Security hospital at Menard, where he had been confined for almost a year following the disclosure of his alleged swindling of small home owners by representing that he had influence with officials of the Home Owners' Loan corporation. Charges of operating a confidence game are pending against him in the Criminal court.

KANSAN RAISES PRAIRIE CHICKENS ON QUAIL FARM

Pittsburg, Kas., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The prairie chicken may be hitting the comeback trail.

At least it's a big question to conservationists, and Dan. J. Ramey hopes so. He has brought to maturity the only birds of this species ever raised successfully in captivity.

Ramey, superintendent of the state quail farm here, will describe this notable experiment in wild life propagation at the American game conference in New York City next week.

His ten 7 month old chickens [pinnated grouse] are among the most valuable birds in captivity. There are four cocks and six hens, and if this small start in an effort to rehabilitate them is eventually successful it will be an outstanding event in conservation.

BUILD ELEVATED ROADS: SAVE LIVES.

Sidetracked to a subcommittee of the city council committee on streets and safety is the fate of the proposed elevated highway for Chicago's west side, which has been under discussion for years. In The Tribune's platform for the midwest plank 3 is "Build Elevated Roads; Save Lives."

Hundreds of arguments have been presented both for and against such a project. Thousands of words have been spoken and written to the end that the average citizen is at something of a loss to pluck a concrete idea from the mass of verbiage.

Yet the problem can be viewed in a comparatively simple way.

The first proposition is undeniable. There is a tremendous trafic congestion on Chicago's west side. Trafic maps and statistics on automobile fatalities prove this. A drive through the district will prove it.

That congestion is costing lives. Multiplication of laws and regulations and exhortations to more careful driving cannot be relied upon to check effectually the rising death and accident toll. We must build for safety. Ald. Massen estimates that elevation would save 400 lives annually and 1,300 lesser injuries.

Congestion is costing a sum of money in waste and delay which cannot be accurately estimated, but certainly runs far into the millions of dollars.

The conclusion is simple. That congestion must be relieved.

There are three possible ways: Street widening, depressed drives, or elevated drives.

Alderman John A. Massen, head of the subcommittee, with Dr. Miller McClintock, head of the Harvard research trafic department, has come to definite conclusions as regards street widening.

According to the alderman's three year study the last three thoroughfares widened in Chicago accounted for 12 per cent of the city's motor fatalities. So much for the safety angle.

As to economy, each additional 10 foot trafic lane on these three widening projects cost $348,000 a mile. An elevated highway of four lanes, with two additional lanes for accelerating and decelerating at ramps, could be built for $431,000 a mile, the alderman discovered.

On the basis of trafic capacity the elevated route can be built for 15.5 per cent of the cost of street widening. Street widening, then, cannot compete with the elevated highway.

Depressed drives come next. The only feasible type of depressed drive which would provide ventilation and expedient maintenance in heavy weather would require a right of way no less than a block wide. Putting such an artery through the crowded west side is manifestly impossible.

As to the more narrow, trenchlike depressed thoroughfare, even disregarding its other faults, it would mean a tremendous cost in sinking it and clearing out such underground public utility properties as electricity conduits, gas and water mains. It would need an overhead bridge at every street. Put those bridges end to end and you would have an elevated highway.

Depressed drives, then, cannot compete with elevated drives, in this locality at least.

Competent engineers have declared that the increased automobile usage which would result from the construction of elevated highways would provide revenue in gasoline and motor vehicle tax to more than pay for the cost of construction. Nearly half the automobiles in Illinois are owned in Cook county. Considerably more than half the motor taxes are paid in the same area.

President Hayes of the Chicago Motor club has declared that the interest and principal of the sum needed for construction could be paid from the state gasoline tax without burdening the public with any new or additional tax.

Another plan would be to make the highway a Public Works administration project and secure federal aid. In that event it would present three deserving qualifications which few, if any, other public works projects can present. They are economic necessity, the saving of lives, and unemployment relief.

The year 1935 ought to see this great improvement well under way.

NERO IN OPERA.

At the age of 71 Mascagni has produced a new opera, with its premier in Milan Wednesday night. Friendly critics proclaim it a work of pure inspiration. From less impressed opinion there is the judgment that it lacks the fire of the composer's earlier works. The subject is Nero. Such a selection might reveal the contempt of the artist for the modern world, an attitude much complained of by the proletarians.

Why go back to Nero when Stalin is available for a composer seeking lunacy and brutality? But it must be kept in mind that new Italy is old Rome and the fasces are its emblems. If any slightly dissident Fascist, conscious in his secret heart of only occasional conformity, sat in for the first night he might have thought at least once of castor oil and have reflected that the old Romans were measurably in luck to have known chiefly olive oil. Mussolini may have muffed the suggestion. He is Octavian, the first emperor. Posterity, which may include Nero, must be on its own guard.

THE POWER TO DESTROY.

John Marshall, second chief justice of the United States Supreme court, said that the power to tax involved the power to destroy. A majority of the judges of the present court accept the consequences and hold that, if the burden of a tax destroys a property, that is one of the risks of business. The tax in question was imposed in license fees by West Virginia. The court divided 5 to 4 and the prevailing opinion holds that the state is within its right in discriminating against chains, although the excess fees required for the operation of more than 75 places of business might confiscate profits and drive the property owners out. The places were gasoline filling stations.

Mr. Justice Cardozo, who wrote the decision, held that "when the power to tax exists, the extent of the burden is a matter for the discretion of the lawmakers." It is common knowledge that the intent of discriminatory taxes placing a larger burden upon the units of a chain than upon individually owned trading places is not primarily to raise revenue, but to protect the individual against the competition of organizations buying and selling merchandise by and through a number of stores. Social regulation is the primary object and revenue is only incidental. When government employs taxation for such purposes it is endeavoring to legislate for what it alleges to be a social good. In democratic government a social good may be merely a political good. It may be one intended to placate the body of voters who at any one time are most insistent in seeking an advantage and are most influential in presenting their case. A social good may be anything which raises a political question and engages the self-interest of the legislators.

The judicial conclusion in the highest court that the various legislatures have the power to lay discriminating burdens of taxation as they will, at their own discretion, and that it is the risk of the property owners or the citizens discriminated against, would seem to have large possibilities in many directions. Somewhere along the line of development of this theory of government constitutional limitations may be invoked to restrict the privilege of authority, but recognition of the destructive power of taxation seems to leave few things safe from the imposition of penalties which would destroy anything out of favor in the prevailing political opinion of a state.

When Tennessee decided to interfere in the teaching of the state supported schools the private schools were exempt from the legislation. But apparently the legislature could have taxed the private schools out of existence, and in the temper of the state at the time the legislature might have done so. When Huey Long quarrels with the newspapers of Louisiana his first thought is to punish them by taxation. Punishment by taxation could proceed to extinction if it be true that when the power to tax exists the extent of the burden is a matter for the discretion of the lawmakers.

In that finding of the court, unless refuge can be found in constitutional guaranties, there would seem to be no protection for any citizen or any association of citizens holding property or views against which a governing political antipathy ran. Property assumes the risk of legislative discretion. The burden of taxes need not be equally distributed but may bear down destructively upon one classification of citizens because it is the purpose of the legislature to achieve some purpose not related to the procuring of public revenue, to suppress otherwise permitted activities. In the unmodified or unmitigated application of this rule of law no church would be safe, nor any educational institution, nor any property owning body of citizens organized or associated or incorporated. Anything whose essence is the possession of property apparently could be taxed to death.

The remedy would be flight. The state which exercised its power to tax to destroy would lose its best citizenship and be avoided by investors.

Editorial of the Day

THE SIN OF ROBERT MOSES.

[New York Sun.]

The city administration entered into its bargain with the federal government for financing of the Triborough bridge without reckoning on the power of the PWA administrator, Secretary Ickes, to disturb the contract afterward. Mr. Ickes is attempting to do this with an executive order which says to the mayor, in effect, that Robert Moses will have to get out of the bridge authority or the park commissionership.

What is the offense of Mr. Moses? Nobody has ever accused him of dishonesty or sloth. One of his crimes is candor. He ran for governor and told the truth about the fake power issue. But his great and overshadowing sin, it would appear, is lack of faith in the Roosevelt recovery program.

This he has been confessing for many months, and without repentance. The villainy of such a person cannot be understood in Washington, yet it must not go unpunished. Why should a job, even one without salary, remain in the hands of a fellow who doubts the holy program?

New York may be satisfied with the ability, industry and intelligence of Bob Moses, but what of that if Washington finds him guilty of having a mind of his own on national affairs?

THE LEAGUE COURT

[From the statement of former Senator James J. Reed at the hearing before the committee on foreign relations, United States senate, May 16, 1934, relative to the protocols of adherence to the permanent court of international justice.]

The first essential of a court is that it shall act under a code of laws, and the first essential of liberty is that the parties to be governed shall have made the laws. Who makes the laws of this court? The league of nations, of which we are not a member. We refused to join the league of nations, but it is proposed now to inclose us in its putrid vermiform appendix—this court.

We are to join a court the laws governing which are made by foreign nations exclusively, the laws and rules of which can be changed by the representatives of those foreign nations without our will and without our consent. Its jurisdiction is to be fixed by nations of Europe and of Asia, and I believe in one instance of Africa. We have nothing to say regarding the laws which shall govern this court, and yet it is proposed that we submit our interests to it. Suppose some man were to have the temerity to say that the rights of the American government should be submitted to the parliament of Canada. I have the greatest respect for Canada and the Canadian people. They are much like ourselves. But would not that produce a revolt of opinion if we were to propose to submit the interests of the United States to Canada? But in this case we are not asked to submit our interests to a people who speak our tongue, who think our thoughts, and live our lives, but we are asked to submit the interests of our country to the representatives of these Asiatic and European nations who are neither kith nor kin to us. It is proposed that we proceed under rules and regulations made by two bodies which are responsible alone to their several governments.

The next element of a court, necessarily inherent in every court, is that the judges shall be impartial. In our own home courts we provide that no judge shall sit where he has an interest in a case which may come before him, that no judge shall sit where he has a prejudice, where his mind is not entirely free from every influence except the influence of the mandate of the law and the principles of justice.

I say that it is impossible to conceive of a question of sufficient importance ever to produce a war which can come before this court where a part if not all of the judges will not have an interest and have a prejudice. What question is there that can produce a war with the United States in which we do not have a vital interest? What question is there that can produce a war with Great Britain where every Briton does not have an interest? What question is there that can produce a war with Germany where every German does not have an interest? What question is there that can produce a war with Japan where every citizen of Japan does not have an interest? So I could go through the entire list of nations. Whenever there is a question of sufficient importance to produce a war not only the two nations which may come into direct conflict but many other nations have an interest in the controversy.

Accordingly, every judge who sits upon this bench, every so-called "judge"—I call them the political representatives of nations—every one of them has the interest of his country at heart. . . .

Mention, if you can, a single great question affecting the world to such an extent that there would be wars in which the United States would not have an interest. Suppose there were a controversy over the free passage of ships through the Panama canal which involved the construction of a treaty made with Great Britain. Every nation which owns a boat which plows the waves of the two oceans would have an interest, and an interest against the United States. Do you tell me that these judges would disregard that? Are they superhuman? Is there anything in their history or in their names or in their environment or in their race that indicates that they will rise clear above any love of country? More than that, I say to you that an American citizen who would sit on that court, and, if the vital interest of America were concerned in the decision, would not be prejudiced in favor of his own nation, he would not be fit to sit in any case. A man who has not love of his country, who does not put it above every other consideration when he comes to national affairs, is not a good citizen, and a man who is not a good citizen cannot be a good judge. So there would not be an impartial tribunal.

Mr. Chairman, this body lacks another element of a court. It proposes to decide questions not submitted to it by the litigants, to decide questions for the league, to render advisory opinions. In contests where the litigants are before it there is either one of two propositions true, gentlemen of the committee; it has no power of enforcement, and if it has no power to enforce its decrees it lacks one of the chief elements of a court; or it does have power of enforcement, either direct or indirect, either immediate or potential, and if it has that power, then it can render a decree which will combine the nations of the earth against the United States and hurl their united power against us.

Either one or the other of those propositions is true, and I do not care which horn of the dilemma the proponents of this court accept. Either they have the power, potential or immediate, to call upon the league and the council, and, through them, upon the nations of the earth, to mass their fleets and mass their armies in a given case against us, or they are impotent. So that element of power to enforce is either there or not there. If it is there, it is the most dangerous thing that ever was conceived in the brain of man or fiend. If it is not there, then it is an impotent body.

I may be very old-fashioned, I may be very much in the rear of the great procession of progress, but I still think that the men who framed the constitution of the United States and who laid the timbers and stones in the foundation in the temple of our liberty knew more and had more patriotism and had more of honor and more of love of country than did the modern reformers and propagandists living upon this earth.

I still think that when George Washington, surveying the centuries of the past and knowing the allurements and the dangers of entangling alliances, warned us that Europe had a set of interests distinct from ours, George Washington is a better authority than Andrew Carnegie, or even Elihu Root.

I still think we may, with profit, reflect on the principles enunciated by Thomas Jefferson and all the patriot dead of that early time—men who stood out for American liberty, stood out for complete divorcement from Europe and its affairs as they looked back along the bloody paths of the centuries and saw where nation had swallowed up nation, where crowned heads were battling for superiority, where people were oppressed and chained, and knew how these conflicts had gone on for two thousand and more years.

I still think Abraham Lincoln had some sense. I still think Theodore Roosevelt had some sense. I still think Grover Cleveland had some sense. I still believe that this is America; that we can attend to our own affairs; that if we stay on this side of the ocean and attend to our own affairs we probably will never be involved in another world conflict.

We went into one war to make the world safe for democracy. We certainly have had our lesson. We made it safe for dictators; we made it safe for monsters; we made it safe for those who attack every right of property and every right of personal liberty, and who, on the ruins of an autocracy which was itself infamous, have built a citadel more infamous, filled with the writhing snakes of oppression and cruelty.

We poured out our blood upon the fields of France, and France is our enemy and repudiates the obligation she owes us. We stood in the battle line with the British, and they—the best of any of them—still say we did not do our full duty because we did not start in the war the very day they did. We poured out our blood, and we have not a real friend in Europe; and there is not one of them who would not join tomorrow in any enterprise which would put money in their purses or victory upon their banners at the expense of the United States.

Why change the policies under which we have prospered and grown great? Why turn our backs upon the men who made America, who wrote this constitution, who baptized it with their blood, who will live in history and song and story when all the propagandists who would surrender our liberty shall have been buried beneath the forgotten dust of forgotten centuries?

RELIEF OF PAIN IN CANCER.

Were the story of cancer told in its entirety there would unfold a tale suited only to those who possess morbid minds or to those endowed with superlative courage. Should the tale come from millions of loud speakers it would fall for the most part on deaf ears, but there would be some who would listen: those who have been so unfortunate as to witness the progress of the disease in a member of the family.

Humanity's obligation in incurable cancer is to relieve pain, and science is striving strenuously to provide means of comfort as long as life shall last.

Our attack upon cancer pain employs several agents: (1) radium and X-ray; (2) drugs derived from opium and barbituric acid; (3) surgery—cutting the pain nerve fibers leading from the affected part; (4) the use of a toxin such as cobra venom that deadens pain nerves; (5) the injection of alcohol into the spinal canal or along nerve trunks.

X-ray and radium probably offer the most effective means of pain control. In many centers of population radium in relatively large amounts is at hand and powerful X-ray equipments operating at several hundred thousand volts are available. Intensive treatment by these methods may cause some temporary suffering, swelling of the tissues, rise in temperature, etc., but these symptoms are generally controllable by routine measures, and after the primary irritation subsides striking relief from pain follows in most instances.

Narcotic drugs will relieve pain in many cases and morphine is found to be better tolerated when combined with a drug known as scopolamine. The constipating effect of morphine is disturbing and often interferes with the use of this drug. Scopolamine alone has great value and has been used in certain cases with comfort to the patient and with entire relief of symptoms. Some of the preparations of barbituric acid have a pain relieving effect.

Surgery has been used in intractable cancer pain or in cases in which relief cannot be obtained by other means. Cutting the pain carrying fibers in the spinal cord has been advised and carried out by C. H. Frazier and many others with excellent results.

Within the last two years the suggestion has been offered by two French investigators, Laignel-Lavastine and Koressios, that cobra venom, which has a specific affinity for nerve tissue, will prove useful in combating the pain of cancer. They report six cases and conclude that cobra venom possesses the power of reducing pain and suggest its use instead of morphine. Although relief is not permanent and repeated injections must be made, nevertheless they found that one injection would ease the pain for from eight to ten hours. They employed the venom in doses of one-tenth of a milligram without unpleasant effects.

A few years ago A. M. Dogliotti, an Italian physician, suggested that cancer pain involving the back, the pelvic region, and the lower legs could be relieved by the use of absolute alcohol injected into the spinal canal. Later F. C. Yeomans showed that this treatment was unusually effective. His method was to inject five to fifteen drops of absolute alcohol into the spine at about the upper level of the hips. The patient was kept quiet following the injection for a period of twenty to thirty minutes. The plan has been applied to cancer of the rectum, the bowel, and the pelvic organs.

When pain is caused by incurable cancer the patient's expectation of life is naturally limited and it would seem inhuman to permit any one to suffer under such conditions.

Scores of laboratories manned with trained workers the world over are searching not only for ways of relieving pain but, more fundamental still, for the means of preventing and ultimately eradicating cancer.

SINUS INFECTION.

Mrs. F. A. G. writes: For the last two years my 9 year old son has had a continuous thick discharge from his nose. Is this a sinus condition and what will relieve it?

REPLY.

A puslike discharge from the nose is evidence of a sinus infection—just which sinus makes very little difference. If drainage is free and unobstructed the best procedure is to build the child's resistance by means of sunlight, ultraviolet light during the winter months, plenty of fresh vegetables, and at least 10 hours of sleep every night. A drop or two of mineral oil in each nostril once or twice a day will prevent the formation of crusty scabs. Sometimes a blood tonic or additional vitamins may be needed. If so, these will be prescribed by your physician.

THROAT TUBERCULOSIS.

F. K. writes: What is the usual method of treatment of tuberculosis of the throat? Can one have tuberculosis of the throat without the lungs being affected?

REPLY.

If you have tuberculosis of the larynx the most expert help available must be secured immediately. Ultraviolet light and cauterization are both used effectively. The voice should not be used at all. This condition rarely occurs as a primary infection, and usually accompanies or follows tuberculosis of the lungs.

COD LIVER OIL.

J. E. S. writes: Will the continued use of cod liver oil hurt?

REPLY.

Although it may not be needed for its vitamin content, it will do no harm.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MOSCOW.—One of the first shocks which the American tourist receives upon arrival in soviet Russia is the discovery that American money is not only accepted, but is grabbed with both hands by soviet citizens. Even beggar boys ask for "valuta," which is the Russian word for foreign, but particularly American, money.

Cashiers at hotels and on trains not only accept American money but usually have on hand a considerable supply of change in small coins and notes, most of which is of ancient vintage, no longer circulated in the United States.

One occasionally receives American bills so old and worn that it is difficult to determine the denomination. But the cashiers at the official banks and retail shops are equipped with magnifying glasses which they use to inspect foreign currencies.

In Vladivostok a sailor on a tramp steamer took advantage of the Russians' craze for American money by unloading on the official store a number of $1 bills which had cleverly been raised to look like $10 bills. He escaped before the deception was noticed.

The so-called "sequestration" of foreign, particularly American, money, is a matter of state policy in the U. S. S. R., and since the official and monopolistic tourist agency, known as Intourist, is the agency which has been commissioned to do the job, it means that few Americans entering Russia are able to leave with anything except a few miscellaneous coins. While the extraction of money from American tourists has become a fine art all over Europe, it has nowhere reached the strong arm methods used by Intourist.

An American, familiar with the Russian language, recently told the following story:

A professor from a middle western university arrived in Moscow on a thirty day tour which had been arranged by Intourist. This meant that the professor had paid in advance his railway fare from the border to Moscow and return, as well as his hotel service and meals

When he crossed the Polish border he was compelled to make out a statement showing exactly how much money he had in his possession, including travelers' checks and currency. When he arrived in Moscow he went to the Intourist office and explained to the English speaking officer in charge that he was interested in the achievements of the soviet union and wished to spend most of his time in making a study of educational methods and institutions. The Intourist official, speaking in Russian, turned to his assistant and said:

"Look through those papers on my desk and see how much money this American carried when he crossed the border at Negoreloye."

After he had obtained this information the official proceeded to make out a schedule for the American professor that was so arranged as to absorb practically every cent the visitor had in his possession.

The Intourist agency is stafed with a highly trained personnel drilled in two branches which the soviet authorities regard as essential—namely: the dissemination of propaganda and the extraction of money. Often, however, the demand for money is so persistent that the attempt to propagandize the tourist is entirely neutralized, causing the tourist to leave the country in a state of righteous indignation.

What makes the average tourist see red is the knowledge that while he is forced to spend his own American money for worse than mediocre hotel and railway services at rates that would purchase the best in the United States, others, including soviet citizens and some foreigners, spend depreciated soviet paper rubles for the same services at rates equivalent to about one-fiftieth of what the tourist pays.

For example, the writer purchased a ticket from Moscow to Vladivostok, which, with meals on the diner, totaled about $300 in American money. There were fifteen other passengers in the first class coach. Several, including military officers and two Yakut Indian officials, traveled free. A high party official paid 400 paper rubles, equivalent to $10 in American money. Another, a foreigner, employed by the soviet government, paid 800 rubles, or about $20.

The scramble for "valuta" is due to the practical worthlessness of soviet money, caused by the overissue of unsecured paper currency.

RELIEF WORKERS WILL WRECK.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—[Friend of the People.]—Will you see if anything can be done to prevent a house from being wrecked by children or people that have no permit to do so? It is very dangerous to us who live next door, as it might fall any time unless something is done shortly. H. S.

The building in question is two stories high, of frame construction, and is in a very dilapidated condition. The owner of this property has turned it over to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission to be wrecked and the work of demolition will be started within the next three days.

RICHARD E. SCHMIDT,
Commissioner of Buildings.

JUDGMENT.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Please advise me as to whether a judgment held against a house and lot must be satisfied if the house and lot are sold for the value of the first mortgage held against it. 2. Is the interest on a judgment compounded? F. P.

1. Ordinarily a purchaser will insist that the title be cleared before he pays his money, but the circumstances of your sale might be exceptional. If you mean a foreclosure sale, this could wipe out the judgment.

2. No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LEGAL ADVICE.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A friend of mine has been left a widow in the last year. Her very modest home was held in joint tenancy with her husband, who left no will. She hasn't a present income and has worked hard with her husband for everything she has. The check from the telephone company for the rebate on her coin box phone would greatly help her, but a friend who also has become a widow under the same circumstances has been advised [1] by a lawyer not to accept the check from the telephone company, since her husband left no will. 2. Do you see any reason why my friend should not accept this check? 3. Would it make any difference in her claim to the estate? G. P.

1. We doubt if any lawyer gave such advice. If so, it was either based on additional facts which you have not stated, or on a desire of the lawyer to induce the client to probate the estate. The phone company, in order to avoid trouble and expense of subscribers, is running a theoretical risk of having to pay a second time, but we see no corresponding risk for the person who receives the money.

2. No. We suggest asking the lawyer to assign the reason.

3. She would be regarded as having received this amount of money, if that is what you mean to ask.

THE LINCOLN LOG CABIN.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—The letter which appears in the Voice of the People today over the signature of Mildred Sammons needs my reply.

In 1891 the Abraham Lincoln Log Cabin association purchased the log cabin built by Abraham Lincoln and his father in 1831. During the months of June and July, 1891, I sojourned in the log cabin. As secretary of the Abraham Lincoln Log Cabin association it was my duty to write the history of the cabin, which I did. Fourteen views of the interior an dexterior were made with and without groups consisting of old neighbors, acquaintances, and Lincoln relatives. Every photograph was copyrighted by the Abraham Lincoln Log Cabin association.

Mr. Root, a well known Chicago photographer, made every picture in my presence and almost immediately preceding the razing of the cabin.

The Myers brothers were our architects. They razed the structure and reassembled it in the north annex of the old Exposition building on the lake front. These men appear in one of the photographs with tapeline in hands measuring the cabin.

During the exhibition of the cabin at the Inter Ocean exposition I had entire charge of it and twice a day every day gave my Lincoln talks in the reassembled log cabin.

I was well acquainted with Mr. George Garnsey, a friendly acquaintance. I am very sure Mr. Garnsey could not, would not, and did not make any such statement as the letter written to the Voice of the People claims he did. If Mr. Garnsey were living I also am very sure that he would immediately correct the lady's misapprehension.

The photograph of the Lincoln log cabin which appeared in The Tribune Jan. 6 and which Mildred Sammons refers to as having been taken by Mr. Garnsey is one of the Root pictures and in the lower left corner of the pictures appears "Copyrighted by the Abraham Lincoln Log Cabin association." Mr. Garnsey did not remove the cabin to Chicago.

The Lincoln homestead farm, on which the cabin stood, is now a state park, in which on the original site will be erected a replica of the old Lincoln log cabin, thus creating another Lincoln shrine which I have struggled for nearly forty years to accomplish, but could not accomplish unaided. Eleanor Gridley.

FROM MRS. GARNSEY.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—In regard to letter in the Voice of the People of Jan. 13, I have the picture mentioned of Lincoln's log cabin in my possession. It hung for many years in the office of my husband, George O. Garnsey, architect, deceased.

THE WAY OF DICTATORS.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—Supposing at the time when the shot was fired at our President which killed the mayor of Chicago the government had trumped up charges against 100 communists and hanged them. What would the workers of other countries think of our government? Just what the American worker thinks of Russia.

It seems to me that all dictators are alike. No matter under what name they rule they are always in fear and citizens' lives mean nothing to them. It reminds me of Ivan the Terrible when he said, "If I don't hang my subjects they will hang me." Mr. Hitler said last June when he killed nearly a hundred that he was a supreme court for 24 hours, and yet in this day there are silly sentimentalists who would like to substitute a dictator for our form of government in spite of the fact they know that with every dictator come concentration camps and firing squads.

I as a worker hope that we in this country will never see communism succeed, and I know that our Supreme court will never uphold the acts of any dictator under any name.

A CHANCE FOR YOUNG MEN.

Waterloo, Ia., Jan. 14.—I wish to enter a plea for the youth of today to the business world. Why won't business men give us a chance to apprentice ourselves to them after we have prepared for that profession or work? We work hard to be ready, but they turn us away because of a lack of experience.

We are ambitious and willing to work hard. The amount of pay isn't so important as the experience.

Why not make it a standard business policy to take in a certain number of prepared young men and women every year and train them for a certain position that will some day be left vacant? Modern business is too complicated to be learned in any school, but can only be learned by associating with the men who now run it. If the leaders today would only adopt this policy it would save many heartbreaking years for the youth of today and give the world better executives tomorrow. R. A. C.

TELLING IT TO SIR GEORGE.

Hines, Ill., Jan. 12.—I read in today's Tribune that Sir George Croydon Marks, an English baron, has grave fears for the continued economic and political stability of our country. He says that the American people are saddled with a vast public debt and they might just as well make up their minds now that they have to pay.

If this honorable baron and other noble Englishmen would sponsor some move in their country to pay the war debts they owe to Uncle Sam, who won the war for them, other European countries might follow suit. In that case our taxes would not have to be increased and we would be well on the way to recovery.

ROOSEVELT NOTE REACHES AMELIA AFTER MUCH ADO

President Has to Resort to Wirephoto.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—A congratulatory letter from President Roosevelt to Amelia Earhart Putman, aviatrix, today went through more adventures than the celebrated message to Garcia.

The letter was wrung from the pen of President Roosevelt late yesterday to appease a demand from representatives of the entire west coast that he address a banquet at which the woman flyer was honored this evening for her solo flight from Hawaii to California. The White House telephone was kept busy throughout the day yesterday by petitioners.

Mayor Puts in Plea.

The mayor of Oakland put in a long distance plea. Women's clubs, civic groups, and prominent coast citizens added their supporting voices. Senator W. G. McAdoo joined in the appeal during a session of the senate.

To all the President gave a regretful but firm refusal. He said that if he should accede this one request he would be besieged by hundreds of others. He added that at the time of the west coast banquet he would be at a dinner of the Alfalfa club in the Willard hotel here.

The President agreed, however, to send a letter to be read at the banquet. The letter was turned over to Postmaster General Farley late yesterday afternoon. The postmaster promised it would be delivered at the Oakland banquet hall this evening.

Plane Down Here.

Early this morning the postmaster advised the President that the plane carrying the letter was down in Chicago and could not continue westward because of unfavorable weather. He suggested that the letter be sent on by train on the possibility that it might be again put aboard a plane when weather cleared.

Postmaster Farley was unable to promise that the letter would be delivered if his plan were followed. For some hours the White House followed eagerly Chicago weather reports.

When it was apparent no plane could leave that city for the west today, President Roosevelt rewrote his letter and turned it over to the Associated Press Wirephoto service. In a few minutes a picture of the letter was sent to San Francisco and carried to Oakland to be read at the banquet.

Flies from Los Angeles.

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 19.—[U. P.]—Amelia Earhart Putnam today returned to Oakland airport, her landing place last Saturday on her solo flight from Honolulu to the United States.

The big red monoplane in which she flew the Pacific set down at 4:19 p. m., after a flight from Los Angeles.

CLEAN KITCHEN AFTER DAY OFF MAIDS' DEMAND

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The return of the maid—America's standard problem drama of the household in two acts, both hostile—was headed for the discard tonight after a run of consecutive performances traced back to the day Mrs. John Smith (née Pocahontas) began housekeeping in Jamestown, Va.

Committees of Grand Rapids housewives and maids are putting the finishing touches on a code for domestics designed to eliminate forever the under the breath hissing and grumbling which traditionally accompanied the return of the maid after her day off.

The maids said: "We want a clause that the kitchen sink won't be stacked with dirty dishes from the day before when we get back from a day off."

"All right," said the housewives; "and now fix up another clause that will stop Lizzie from peddling it all over town when we and our husbands happen to discuss the prospects of new spring outfits."

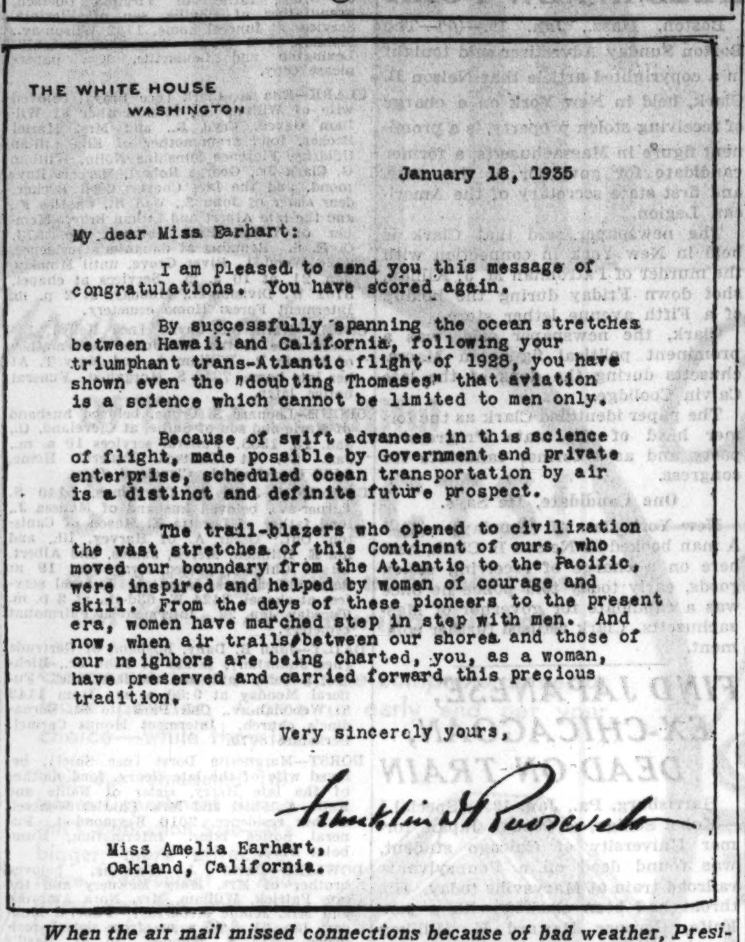
The code making went on like this until the maids had provisions for hours, wages, vacations, and "rest" periods, and the mistresses had what they hope will be peace of mind.

The code is to be drawn in legal form, under the sponsorship of the Girls' Guidance bureau, and signed by both parties. If there are any more squabbles both sides hope to tell it to the judge.

Convict Indiana Doctor of Assault on Woman

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Dr. George Espenlaub, physician, charged with criminal assault upon a woman patient was found guilty of assault and battery with intent to commit a felony by a Circuit court jury today after 20 hours deliberation. Dr. Espenlaub is at liberty under a $2,500 bond. A previous trial resulted in a hung jury.

Roosevelt Congratulates Amelia



THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

January 18, 1935

My dear Miss Earhart:

I am pleased to send you this message of congratulations. You have scored again.

By successfully spanning the ocean stretches between Hawaii and California, following your triumphant trans-Atlantic flight of 1928, you have shown even the "doubting Thomases" that aviation is a science which cannot be limited to men only.

Because of swift advances in this science of flight, made possible by Government and private enterprise, scheduled ocean transportation by air is a distinct and definite future prospect.

The trail-blazers who opened to civilization the vast stretches of this Continent of ours, who moved our boundary from the Atlantic to the Pacific, were inspired and helped by women of courage and skill. From the days of these pioneers to the present era, women have marched step in step with men. And now, when air trails between our shores and those of our neighbors are being charted, you, as a woman, have preserved and carried forward this precious tradition.

Very sincerely yours,

Franklin D Roosevelt

Miss Amelia Earhart,
Oakland, California.

When the air mail missed connections because of bad weather, President Roosevelt released this message of congratulation to Amelia Earhart Putnam to be transmitted by wirephoto to mayor of Oakland, Cal., in time to be read at banquet.

ILLINOIS' THIRD MAJOR MEASLES EPIDEMIC GROWS

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18.—(AP)—The third major epidemic of measles in the state in the last thirty years is rapidly approaching a peak, Dr. Frank Jirka, director of public health, stated today.

The total number of cases reported for the first five days of this week was 1,307, or an average of about 261 cases a day. Only slightly more than 50 per cent of the cases are reported to the department, the director stated, and there were probably about 2,500 new cases in the state for the five days on that basis.

The total number of cases in the current wave will exceed the figures of the last major epidemic, in 1926, nine years ago. Usually the measles epidemic begins in the latter part of January and lasts until in April or May, the director said. Whereas this one started in November and has accelerated rapidly during the past month.

Rock Island county reported the largest number of cases, 1,036, for the first two weeks of January. Cook county reported 245 cases.

Police Chief Robbed of $16, Tools and Dignity

Pittsfield, Ill., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Police Chief Ott Cawthorne was stripped of $16, his handcuffs and his official dignity early today by two robbers who entered the Pittsfield hotel. After locking the chief in a washroom with a night clerk and warning them not to call the police, the robbers went across the street and held up the Pike cafe, taking $120.

POSSIBLE SAVING ON RELIEF COAL IS JUST A MYTH

A few days ago Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins mailed to all state relief administrators a bulletin admonishing them to take advantage of a possible 15 per cent saving in their purchases of relief coal, which he said was possible under an executive order issued by the President. The bulletin read in part:

"Your attention is called to the President's executive order No. 6767 of June 29, 1934, modifying his executive order No. 6646. You will note therefrom that bids may be obtained by state or local relief administrations, and contracts may be awarded at prices not more than 15 per cent below properly filed code prices, and not less than 5 per cent below such code prices.

Urged to Press Advantage.

"Advantage should be taken of this tolerance in the purchase of relief coal."

Puzzled purchasing agents at the Illinois relief commission were momentarily fearful that they had missed a trick in securing lower prices on relief coal, which this winter is costing the taxpayers more than $1,000,000 in excess of the previous year's expenditures. Hurriedly they checked through their files for a possible explanation.

A Fly in Ointment.

They found the President's order, just as Hopkins had interpreted it in his bulletin. Then they discovered what Hopkins apparently overlooked.

Less than a month after the President authorized relief organizations to take a "break" on code prices, Gen. Hugh Johnson, then head of NRA, issued another executive order dated July 23 nullifying the President's order "in so far as it applies to the bituminous coal industry, the wholesale coal industry, and the retail solid fuel industry."

PALESTINE DAY TODAY STRESSES ZIONISTS' GOAL

Co-operation Sought for Homeland Cause.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Today Chicago's 300,000 Jews, as well as the city's Christian population, will be made conscious of the notable homeland development in Syria under Zionist auspices as the city participates in the observance of the first annual Palestine day.

Max S. Shulman, 134 North La Salle street, president of the Chicago Zionist organization, in announcing plans for observance of Palestine day, declared that Chicago's participation in the observance complies with the program of the national Zionist organization, which, in many instances is being carried out under proclamations of governors of states and mayors of important cities. Gov. Horner on Friday issued a Palestine day proclamation for Illinois. Oscar S. Caplan, assistant in the Probate court of Cook county, is chairman of the Chicago observance.

Expect 300,000 to Enroll.

According to announcements, Palestine day among Jewish groups of the country has an aspect comparable to that of the annual Red Cross Roll Call, in as much as Jews of the country are given formal opportunity to register their interest and coöperation in the development of the Jewish national home land. According to Mr. Caplan, at least 300,000 Americans of Jewish faith are expected to enroll for the first time in the Palestinian cause during the day.

Coincident with the celebration of Palestine day, a conference of all Jewish organizations in the United States will assemble today in Washington, D. C. This meeting will be expected, according to Mr. Caplan, to coördinate and unify collective Jewish efforts for advancing the developments in the holy land.

Chicago's observance of the day will come to a climax tonight at the Auditorium theater, where both Jewish and Christian leaders in civic and religious affairs are scheduled to speak. The speakers will include Judge Harry M. Fisher and former Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman of Wisconsin.

Development Is Outlined.

Prior to his departure for the nation's capital, where every phase of American Jewish life is to be represented in the conference, Mr. Shulman outlined both the advance in Palestinian development since Zionism undertook its main task and the reasons which lie behind world-wide Jewry's interest in such an endeavor.

Mr. Shulman first discussed the change in Jewish population in Palestine since 1918. At that time, he said, there were 56,000 Jews in that country. Today, 17 years later there are more than 300,000 Jews in Palestine, Mr. Shulman said.

"Industrial and agricultural activity have been made to complement each other," said Mr. Shulman. "In Palestine, little was known of the depression.

Has Shortage of Labor.

"In contrast with countries having vast unemployment, Palestine at the present time has an actual shortage of labor. This is due, in part, to the failure of immigration quotas to admit the necessary numbers of people who desire to emigrate to Palestine."

The effect of the Hitler regime in German was then alluded to by the Chicago Zionist leader. Palestine, he said, became the principal haven for German Jewish refugees. He added that 80 per cent of these refugees have found a new home in Palestine.

"Palestine," said Mr. Shulman, "has regenerated the lives of nearly 40,000 of these men and women."

But Mr. Shulman quickly explained that while earlier motives back of the program of Zionism were based primarily on "escape" or "refuge," the present movement has evolved to mean main emphasis on the positive and constructive determination of the Jewish people to find a useful and cultural position among the peoples of the world through the Palestinian assertion of nationality.

'SHOCK TROOPS' PLAN FOR WAR ON HUEY LONG

Promise Direct Action to Check Dictator.

Baton Rouge, La., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Marshalled in military formation under a billowing American flag, 340 East Baton Rouge parish citizens were organized late today into the headquarters "shock troop battalion" of the Square Deal Association of Louisiana, which is challenging Senator Huey P. Long's dictatorship.

Assembling in a row of "companies" at the notes of a bugle call, citizens of varying classes—mechanics, laborers, and well-dressed business men—fell into battalion line at the parish airport to form the Square Deal association's central "man power" unit.

There was no actual drilling or military maneuvers. There were no guns carried. But the elements of military organization and appearance were closely followed.

Officers Are Chosen.

Officers of the unit, designated the "East Baton Rouge headquarters battalion" of the citizens' organization which has declared for a course of "direct action" as a result of Gov. O. K. Allen having flaunted its demand for immediate repeal of dictatorial laws, were chosen as well as leaders for each company.

Ernest J. Bourgeois, 28 year old Square Deal president and other officers of the association's headquarters executive committee were in command.

In a brief address to the assembled volunteers he said the formation was for a mustering of manpower and roster organization rather than the execution of physical drill. Lists of names of the men who turned out were compiled.

May Be Last Meeting.

"You are not here to get into an army," Bourgeois told the men. "That is not the idea. This is just for organization.

"We are not going to be out here every Saturday. This may be our last meeting. We are here for organization only."

Square Deal leaders withheld statement as to their next move, but it was understood that "local companies" are to be formed elsewhere over the state.

Brig. Gen. Louis F. Guerre, superintendent of state police, watched the formation as a spectator. He remained a short while and then left accompanied by an aid.

JEWRY MEETING GETS ROOSEVELT CHEER MESSAGE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A good will message from President Roosevelt cheered approximately 1,500 representatives of Jewish organizations and communities who gathered here today for a two day session, beginning tomorrow, to encourage rehabilitation of Palestine.

The national conference for Palestine coincides with nationwide observance by Jewry of "Palestine day," which will be celebrated annually hereafter on Jan. 20.

In his message, addressed to Morris Rothenberg, president of the Zionist Organization of America, President Roosevelt expressed "deep and abiding interest in all that pertains to the development, material and otherwise, of the great conception of creating in Palestine a home of happiness and prosperity for those of the people of the Jewish race who turn to the land of their fathers."

Williams' court yesterday awarded $2,500 damages to John Heneghan, 13 years old, 4630 Maypole avenue, a newsboy, in the boy's $25,000 suit against Police Captain Joseph Goldberg of the Albany Park station. The verdict contained a malice count whereby Capt. Goldberg might be held for six months in the county jail for failure to pay the judgment.

The newsboy was injured on Sept. 1, 1933, when he ran across the street and was struck at Cicero avenue and Fulton street by the automobile of Capt. Goldberg. According to Attorney Thomas L. Owens, the boy suffered injuries resulting in a permanently shortened leg.

In their verdict, the jurors found that the police captain was guilty of conduct "of such reckless character as to show such an utter disregard for the safety and lives of other persons as to amount to wilful and wanton misconduct."

NATION'S DAIRY HERD IS DOUBLED IN HALF CENTURY

Farmers Experiment to Increase Butterfat.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

America's herd of dairy cows has been doubled in size within the last half century. That is perhaps the greatest tribute paid in the United States to the cow, referred to in recent years as the "foster mother of the world."

The number of dairy cows has increased from about twelve million head in 1880 to the present herd of more than twenty-six million cows and hefers, 2 years old and over, kept for milk. Of the entire herd of cattle classed as dairy animals only a relatively small number are purebreds and registered. Official figures show that there are slightly more than 170,000 dairy cattle, represented by Holstein-Friesian, Guernsey, Ayreshire, and Jersey breeds. These are represented by approximately 140,000 cows and 30,000 bulls; the Brown Swiss is not included in this federal report of registered dairy animals.

Five Dairy Breeds.

The nation's entire herd of dairy cows, including purebreds, annually produced an average of more than one hundred billion pounds of milk during the last three years.

The five dairy breeds—Holstein-Friesian, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Ayreshire, and Jersey—have attained prominence in this country. The Jersey leads in the average butterfat content in milk from these five breeds. According to the federal government the average butterfat produced in milk from these breeds is as follows: Jersey, 5.35 per cent; Guernsey, 4.99 per cent; Brown Swiss, 4.01 per cent; Ayreshire, 3.99 per cent, and Holstein, 3.39 per cent.

All of these butterfat averages come above the requirement in most parts of the country, but in recent years there has been much talk about increasing the minimum butterfat requirements in cities and states.

Chicago Takes the Lead.

Chicago recently took the lead and raised its minimum figure on the butterfat required in pasteurized milk sold in the city. The increase written into the city's new milk ordinance was .25 per cent, raising the requirement from 3 per cent to 3.25 per cent. This may be indicative of the way health officials are going to meet the demands of consumers for richer milk.

A Brown Swiss bull.

But what does this mean to the dairyman? Raising the butterfat standards, even to a slight extent, throughout the country would introduce new and interesting problems for dairymen. Since dairymen are selling milk on the basis of its butterfat content they may welcome the change.

Cows that produce rich milk are frequently mixed with dairy herds to help bring up the butterfat test. Farmers are experimenting widely along this line. The Brown Swiss is among breeds used for this purpose. Those who keep tab on the country's herd of Brown Swiss cattle say that animals of this breed are to be found in all dairy farming states.

Scattered Throughout Nation.

They have been scattered rather promiscuously throughout the country during the last fifteen years. Along with some of the other breeds that produce a high butterfat percentage they are attracting more attention among dairy farmers who are building up herds and are concentrating on production of milk which contains 4 per cent butterfat.

The National Brown Swiss association at Beloit, Wis., is authority for the statement that all the Brown Swiss cattle in the United States today are from 140 females. The first cattle of this breed were imported into this country a little more than a half century ago.

Henry M. Clark of Belmont, Mass., imported the first Brown Swiss into America in 1869. The importation included seven hefers and one bull.

[Other dairy breeds will be discussed in later articles.]

EMPLOYES HONOR MAURICE L. ROTHSCHILD

Maurice L. Rothschild was made an honorary member of Maurice L. Rothschild Employes' Benefit association at its 26th anniversary celebration at the Standard club last night. Ben Rimskie, president of organization, presented certificate to Mr. Rothschild while Mrs. Rothschild looked on.

Make Him Member

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice L. Rothschild were guests of honor at a dinner party given last night at the Standard club by the employés' association of the State street store bearing his name on the occasion of the 26th anniversary of the association. More than 800 employés attended the dinner and dance.

Mr. Rothschild was presented with a certificate of honorary membership in the association by Ben Rimskie, president of the employés' group. The State street merchant thanked the employés for their action and hailed it as setting a precedent in employer and employé relationship. He announced that of those who are classified as regular employés two were lost to the organization through death during the year 1934. None resigned nor were any discharged, he said.

David Mayer Jr., vice president and general manager, addressed the assembly from Pass Christian, Miss., through a loud speaker telephone hookup.

Weekly Review of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Out with Ice Creepers!

Jan. 19, 1935.

ICE creepers made their appearance as equipment items on the experimental farm during the week. When the cold snap followed the rain on Wednesday and coated everything with a sheet of ice Charley Sleezer decided he would take no chances on falling down in the barnyard, so he brought out his creepers, those sharp, steel gadgets which you can buckle on your overshoes and which bite into the ice to give you surer footing.

Although the weather slowed up the outdoor work on the farm (especially fence building) the boys had plenty to do. One of the first jobs following the storm was to get Queen, the handsome little filly, calmed down after she fell on the ice and slid on her ear for several feet. Inasmuch as Queen was foaled last spring, this is the first winter she has seen and last week she had her first experience trying to stand up on the ice. If I could have interviewed her after her fall I'll wager she would have asked for a bottle of liniment the first thing!

Gene, a young work horse, fell down and received quite a shaking up. When he got on his feet again he tried to bolt out of the yard. But the farm horses that are out in the 30 acres of cornstalks rustling for food apparently didn't mind the skating conditions. They foraged around as usual.

Clarence Thurow, farm manager, and Louis, his brother, attended a farm auction during the week and reported seeing a lot of their neighbors. The sale was held just a short distance west of the experimental farm. There were about 250 or 300 farmers there. The boys bought a double harpoon hay fork, a neck yoke, and two sets of whiffletrees.

The sale of another bunch of steers last week now leaves only 55 of the original 117 white faces. They are in a yard somewhat smaller than the one they had before the herd was reduced. Clarence is getting ready to supplement their feeding schedule with a "dessert" that will consist of 50 per cent oil meal and 50 per cent cottonseed meal. This food is to help finish them for the market.

The hogs have been presented with a drinking fountain so that they will have no trouble getting a drink, no matter how cold it is. The fountain is heated by a lamp so that the water can't freeze. A float inside of the container permits water to maintain a certain level.

One of the most interesting sights on the farm during the week was the appearance of the squirrels as they came out of the woods to "patrol" the road. Some of the cornstalks being hauled from the field to the barns slipped off the wagon and dropped on the road. It didn't take the squirrels long to learn that these stalks had ears of corn on them, so they proceeded to get some good meals right on the highway. At one time four squirrels could be seen searching the cornstalks. With ice making it difficult for the squirrels to get at natural foods on the ground this handout of corn undoubtedly looked pretty good to them.

The Fox river was a regular ice boulevard. Art Wade put on his skates and skated to town and back several times. However, the weather was unsuitable for the proposed fox and coon hunt, so the big hunt had to be postponed.

SUE ROOSEVELT'S SON FOR $35,000 IN AUTO MISHAP

Boston, Mass., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., son of the President, was named defendant in two suits totalling $35,000 filed in East Boston District court today as the result of an accident last March when Mrs. Mary M. O'Leary of East Boston was struck by young Roosevelt's car in the Jamaica Plain district.

One of the suits is for $25,000 damages for Mrs. O'Leary and the other, for $10,000 for her husband, Daniel T. O'Leary, for loss of her services.

Attorney Arthur E. Digan, who filed the suits, claimed Mrs. O'Leary has been unable to move about since the accident. Digan said he would file a motion soon to ask that the suits be transferred to Superior court and be tried before a jury. Massachusetts law requires that all automobile cases first must be filed in District court.

ASK TO CONTINUE AUSTIN-OAK PARK POWER CONTRACT

Attorneys for the Commonwealth Edison company and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois yesterday asked the Illinois commerce commission for an extension of the agreement under which Commonwealth Edison pays the Public Service company $785,000 a year for the privilege of supplying electricity to Oak Park and Austin.

The areas were served previously by the Public Service company, but when Austin was annexed to Chicago, the Edison company took over the territory under the payment contract. The agreement expired on Jan. 30, 1934, and the companies asked that it be extended to Jan. 30 of this year and then continue month to month.

Assistant Commissioner Robert Farrell criticized the companies for failing to appear before the termination of the agreement, and said that if it were continued it would be on a limited basis. He said the commission would reserve the right to regulate the payments for the service privilege. The hearing was continued to Feb. 14 to permit the companies to file further briefs and evidence.

Put 3 in Safe; Take $900 from Currency Exchange

The Elmwood Park Currency exchange, 7201 West Grand avenue, was raided yesterday by five robbers who escaped with $900 after shutting the two owners and a watchman in a vault. Ralph Olson and Ralph Baer, the owners, and Roman Kugaken, the watchman who had been disarmed, emerged in time to obtain the license number of the robbers' automobile. The car was reported stolen last October.

Garment Workers' Chief Here to Discuss Strike

David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, was in Chicago yesterday, discussing with local officials of the union a proposal that a strike of the 7,000 members in the area be called. He said that unless the demand of the Designers and Pattern Makers' union, local No. 74, for recognition were granted by the Chicago Dress Manufacturers' association, the strike would be called.

REPORT TO COURT FINDS FOR UNION IN DAIRY DISPUTE

Master Advises Dismissal of Meadowmoor Suit.

Dismissal of the suit through which the Meadowmoor Dairies, Inc., sought to enjoin the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, local No. 753, from picketing its plant and stores, was recommended yesterday in a report filed with Federal Judge John P. Barnes by Master in Chancery George E. Q. Johnson.

Attorneys I. Harvey Levinson and David Riskind, representing the union, said they would appear tomorrow before Judge Barnes and ask that the master's report be approved and that the temporary injunction, which has protected the dairy company from picketing during the pendency of the suit, be dismissed.

Substance of Report.

Master in Chancery Johnson held in his report that the union had not acted in restraint of trade as defined by the Sherman anti-trust law, and that the United States court had no jurisdiction since no direct interstate trafic was involved.

The report also upheld the union's contention that the LaGuardia-Norris act, which restricts federal injunctions in labor disputes, was applicable in this case.

In his report Johnson found that "persons of ill repute and criminals undertook to act for the dairy company" prior to 1933. Murray Humphreys, former Capone man now serving an 18 month sentence for income tax violation, was said to have been at one time an official of the Meadowmoor company. At the hearings it was charged that Robert G. Fritchie, president of the union, had been kidnaped and was released upon payment of $50,000 to Humphreys, who acted as intermediary.

Plan to Renew Campaign.

Among other fact findings of Master in Chancery Johnson is that although union men receive $40 for a five day week, Meadowmoor employés, working under the "vendor system," receive an average of $13 a week for seven days.

Attorneys Levinson and Riskind said the union would resume its campaign to unionize the milk industry here upon formal dismissal of the Meadowmoor company's bill.

The master's report recommended that costs of the suit, amounting to $4,700, be assessed against the Meadowmoor Dairies.

REALTY DEALER'S BULLETS HALT 3 TRYING A HOLDUP

Thomas Palt, associated with his father in the real estate business at 3205 South Morgan street, saw an attempted robbery across the street from his office yesterday and routed the three would-be holdup men with six shots from a revolver.

Louis Bardo, 3842 South Wood street, a beer truck driver, had just emerged from the Pulaski Loan and Building association at 3156 South Morgan street, when the robbers jumped out of a small sedan. They threatened Bardo with pistols and were about to take the money he had obtained from cashing a check when Palt saw them through the window.

Seizing a revolver from a desk drawer, he ran to the door and opened fire. The bandits bolted to their car, but one spun around as if struck by a bullet.

Farmer Saves 50 Bushels of Corn for His Vacation

Allerton, Ill., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Delbert Adams, farmer northwest of here, sets aside 50 bushels of corn each fall for his annual vacation train ticket. In 1932 he sold the corn for 10 cents a bushel and after adding 24 cents to the $5 received he was able to buy a one way ticket to Chicago. Recently he sold this year's vacation corn for 85 cents and says he received $8 more than enough for a ticket to Los Angeles.

BLIND MAN FORGIVES ALLEGED SLAYER WHO CAUSED LOSS OF EYES

Morrison, Ill., Jan. 19.—[U. P.]—Fred Blink, 40, accused of having slain five persons, and Joe Collier, whom he blinded for life, have decided to forget past differences.

When Blink, now on trial here on murder charges, passed Collier in the courtroom today, he paused.

"Joe," he said, laying his hand on the sightless man's shoulder, "I'm sorry for what I did to you."

"Yes, Fred," Collier replied, "and I'm sorry for you, too."

They clasped hands and then visited a while. Then Blink handed Collier some money and told him to buy tobacco with it.

Collier hesitated. "Maybe you need it more than I," he murmured.

Blink pressed the money into his hands.

The defendant, who is charged with having slain John Hamilton, is accused of having gone berserk Sept. 4, 1934, killed five persons, blinded Collier, and made attempts on the lives of two other persons before unsuccessfully attempting suicide.

One House Legislature Sought in South Dakota

Pierre, S. D., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—A resolution was introduced in the house here today providing for a vote of the people on a constitutional amendment for a one house legislature. It would provide not more than fifty nor fewer than thirty members in place of the present two house plan.

SCULLY ESTATES ADJUST RENTS OF 1,167 FARMERS

Lincoln, Ill., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Rent abatements affecting 1,167 tenant farmers on the Scully estates, an empire of farm lands of 217,000 acres in Illinois, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska, resulting in savings of more than $250,000 to the tenants were announced today by Trapp & Ryan, agents for Thomas and Frederick Scully, owners.

This is the fifth consecutive year Scully estates have made rent adjustments, the abatements during the period amounting to approximately $1,000,000 to tenants operating the farms, which are believed to be the largest farm holdings of individuals in the United States.

Scully estates was founded by the late William Scully in the early '60s, and he paid $1.25 per acre for the lands. The abatements were made because of the variation of crops raised during 1934 due to the drouth and chinch bug damage. The amount of rent tenants are asked to pay has been determined solely upon the basis of crops raised regardless of what other tenants have raised. The abatement is an allowance as a credit on their accounts.

Illinois farmers will benefit by more than $50,000, as Thomas Scully owns 45,000 acres in the state. There are 220 tenants on 31,000 acres in Logan county, 22 on 4,000 acres in Sangamon county and 80 on 11,000 acres in Livingston and Grundy counties. Logan and Sangamon county farmers' abatements average about $1.20 an acre and Grundy and Livingston county farmers about $1.50 per acre. The average rental per acre in Logan county is approximately $3.77, with the minimum at $1.99 to maximum of $5.55, which is the amount stipulated in the lease.

CHICAGO HISTORY IN FOUR VOLUMES BEING PREPARED

U. of C. to Publish Part One in Spring.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

There is no isolated man and there is no isolated city. Both man and city can be explained only in the light of antecedent facts and directive aim. Both are a momentary synthesis in an environment, never existing but always becoming. They are dependent upon their world as the world is dependent upon them.

It is with some such idea as this that one contemplates the most scientific effort in municipal history writing that has ever been undertaken, that of a four volume "History of Chicago," which is now well under way at the University of Chicago after five years of research under the direction of Bessie Louise Pierce, associate professor of American history at the university, with the assistance of Joe L. Norris of the university research staf.

First Volume Ready in Spring.

A preliminary volume, "As Others See Chicago," has already been published. This contains fascinating glimpses of the various stages of the city's growth, from the days that Father Marquette camped at the mouth of the Chicago river to the glories of the 1933-'34 Century of Progress. The first volume of the regular history will be published in the spring and the others will follow within the next two or three years.

Volume I. begins with the wilderness and traces the growth of Chicago from a point on the fur routes from Canada to the Mississippi river to a French post, a Jesuit mission, a frontier fort, a boom town, and finally to a city of 20,000 in 1848.

The second volume covers the development of the city after the opening of the Illinois and Michigan canal, the Galena and Chicago Union railroad, and the union by rail with the east. How the social, economic, and cultural life of the inhabitants was affected by these changes is traced. This period ends with the fire of 1871.

Story of Rebuilding City.

The third volume tells the story of the rebuilding of Chicago and its attempts to achieve a cultural and economic supremacy in the nation. It ends with the banners and the beauty of 1893, when Chicago staged the great Columbian Exposition.

The last volume, only dimly outlined as yet, is to tell of what has happened since that time, under the spirit of the scientific age. Thousands of manuscripts and old papers have been culled for this work.

"The one thing that stands out in all periods of Chicago's history," said Mr. Norris, "is that indescribable something called civic spirit. That has always been here in a marked degree."

Impressions of Travelers Given.

The preliminary volume is on the same plan as the four volume history, but is confined to the impressions of travelers who visited the city in the various stages of its development.

Chicago in 1833 presented the following picture to Charles Butler, real estate broker and railroad promoter who came out from New York to look at its investment possibilities:

"I approached Chicago in the afternoon of a beautiful day, the second of August, 1833, the sun setting in a cloudless sky. On my left lay the prairie bounded only by the distant horizon like a vast expanse of ocean; on my right in the summer stillness lay Lake Michigan. I had never seen anything more beautiful or captivating in nature.

Cheap and Primitive Houses.

"A small settlement, a few hundred people all told, who had come together mostly within the last year or two. The houses, with one or two exceptions, were of the cheapest and most primitive character."

This experienced observer, however, saw here "the germ of a city, destined from its peculiar position near the head of the lake and its remarkable harbor formed by the river to become the largest inland commercial emporium in the United States."

Other impressions recorded are those of Charles H. Hoffman, writer and traveler, who wrote of Chicago in 1834; Harriet Martineau, writer, commenting in 1836; James Silk Buckingham, journalist, writing in 1840, and John Lewis Peyton, author, who wrote his impressions in 1848.

NEEDY GET AID, AND SO DO THREE PAY ROLL BANDITS

Paducah, Ky., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—A woman's lack of curiosity today brought success to three pay roll robbers who held up an office here.

Mrs. Gertrude Snyder, worker for a charity organization, walked into the office during the robbery. She saw H. M. Crosby in a corner, his hands partially raised.

"Can you help the poor?" she asked.

One of the robbers produced a quarter. "This man will help you, too," he said, pointing to Crosby, who brought out a dime.

Another robber, who held a gun against a clerk, reached into a pile of company money and tossed her a dime. With that she left.

Later Mrs. Snyder said she saw the gun, but thought the robber merely was showing it to a friend. The robbers got approximately $200.

STILL VALUED AT $150,000 IS FOUND IN OHIO

Zanesville, O., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—One of the largest stills uncovered in the United States was found here this afternoon by fifty federal, state, and city officers. W. K. Brunner, chief of operators at Cincinnati, stated that the distillery had a daily output of 4,000 gallons of alcohol and is valued at $150,000.

Two Columbus, O., men were arrested. Seven companions escaped through an underground tunnel 100 yards long to an adjoining farmhouse.

The distillery was located in the abandoned J. B. Owens pottery, which was partially razed by fire two years ago. Police detectives have had the still under surveillance for two months.

HERO

SAVES PARTNER IN BLAZING CAR; NAMED A HERO

Policeman Hogan Is Award Winner.

Dazed by shock and suffering major injuries, Patrolman Michael J. Hogan of the 12th district police, fought his way into a burning squad car to rescue a fellow officer knocked unconscious when a bus struck the car. Hogan collapsed when the rescue was completed, and he was taken to a hospital still calling for helpers to aid him. For his deed he has been awarded THE TRIBUNE hero prize of $100 for November.

Hogan and Patrolman Thomas Gallagher were cruising south on Halsted street in squad car No. 201 shortly after midnight the morning of Nov. 17. They saw an automobile parked over the sidewalk a few feet south of 113th street and stopped to make an investigation.

Hogan was driving the car and moved to open the door. As he did so a Greyhound bus driven by Carl Faber of Effingham, Ill., crashed into his machine. Hogan was thrown to the street and Gallagher was flung to the floor of the car. Both men were knocked unconscious and the car burst into flames.

Crawls to Burning Car.

In a moment Patrolman Hogan revived. He was badly injured and moved with difficulty. The Greyhound bus driver, attending to the safety of his passengers, was seeking to extricate the bus from the wreckage. The squad car was in flames, evidently started when the force of the collision sent sparks to the gasoline supply.

Hogan called for Gallagher and received no response. He crawled on hands and knees about the car and finally realized that Gallagher was in the burning machine. He forced open a rear door of the car and, utilizing lessons he had learned as a fireman, protected his nose and mouth from the fumes and entered, keeping close to the flooring.

The upholstering of the car was in flames and the interior was filled with fumes. He found Gallagher's feet and attempted to pull him from the car, but was unable to move him.

Drags Companion to Safety.

Hogan then entered the car from the front and ripped off Patrolman Gallagher's overcoat in a frantic attempt to free him. His own injuries weakened him.

In a final effort to save the unconscious policeman Hogan grasphed Gallagher's neck and after losing his hold a number of times because of the profuse bleeding of the men, finally dragged Gallagher free. He carried his burden to the street and collapsed. Shortly after a shotgun carried in the car exploded and the machine was burned to a total loss.

Hogan and Gallagher were taken to the Roseland Community hospital, where Hogan was found to be suffering a badly wrenched back, three fractured ribs, and other injuries, and Gallagher was treated for severe scalp wounds.

Four Years on Force.

Hogan is now back at work in the 12th district, assigned to light duty. He lives at 7638 South Carpenter street with his wife and four children. Patrolman Hogan joined the Chicago police department four years ago after he had served five and one-half months with engine company No. 63, 19th battalion in the fire department.

In recommending Patrolman Hogan for THE TRIBUNE hero award Capt. Michael J. Grady of the 12th district described his rescue of Gallagher as one of the bravest acts that had come to his attention. "It was a deed of unbounded loyalty, bravery, and courage," Capt. Grady said. "It demonstrated that Officer Hogan was ready to lay down his life for his brother officer. His efficiency and speed and presence of mind at a time when others were confused by the accident and his ability to save his fellow officer unaided is surely deserving of recognition."

PERUVIANS HONOR LIBERATOR AT BIRTHDAY JUBILEE

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Historic old Lima, gaily beflagged for the second day of its 400th birthday celebration, today formally opened the square dedicated to the memory of Jose de San Martin, who liberated the country from Spanish rule.

A statue to San Martin, who proclaimed the independence of Peru July 21, 1821, was unveiled exactly 100 years after that date, and the ensuing years have seen complete reconstruction of the park surrounding the statue.

Thousands of visitors here for the jubilee, which commemorates the founding of the city by Don Francisco Pizarro, the conquistador, attended the ceremonies. A bull fight with matadors from Spain took place this afternoon in the old arena of the Plaza de Acho, built in the eighteenth century by one of the viceroys of Peru.

FALLS WHILE SKATING; DIES.

Walter Hunter, 21 years old, 1825 34th street, died at the County hospital late yesterday of a skull fracture he received Friday night when he tripped and fell while skating on a pond in McKinley park.

Break Ground for First Illinois Homes Financed Under Housing Act

JOHN W. DERN PLANS $30,000 GLENCOE HOUSE

James J. Dwyer to Build $12,000 Residence.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

CARROLL H. SUDLER.

Three Federal Housing administration insured mortgage loans, aggregating $39,000, for the erection of homes to cost a total of $62,000—the first to be built in Illinois under "title two" of the national housing act—have been approved by local banks and the FHA, Carroll H. Sudler, FHA district director for Chicago and northern Illinois, announced yesterday. Ground already has been broken for two of these homes.

One is a brick Colonial residence, containing five bedrooms, three baths, and a two car garage, to be built by John W. Dern, son of Secretary of War Dern and an associate member of the law firm of Cutting, Moore, and Sidley, at the northeast corner of Wentworth avenue and Sheridan road, Glencoe. According to Sudler the house and lot are valued at $30,000. A $16,000 loan has been approved by the FHA and negotiated through the Prairie State bank of Oak Park. The house will be constructed by the R. B. Whitaker company of Winnetka from plans by Chester Walcott.

Will Build $12,000 Home.

The other home, which already is under way, is a $12,000 brick residence being erected by Mr. and Mrs. James J. Dwyer on the west side of Forest Glen avenue, between Granville and Sauganash avenues, in the Sauganash subdivision.

Dwyer, who is division sales director for the California Packing corporation, negotiated a $9,000 FHA loan for the erection of his new home. Built of brick, the house will have seven rooms, two baths and a two car garage. Charles Kristen of Oak Park was the architect.

The Dwyer loan, negotiated through the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, is for fifteen years and calls for 5 per cent interest. In addition the borrower must pay ½ of 1 per cent insurance annually on the full amount, or $45, which totals $675 for the full term. The loan is amortized so that at the end of fifteen years it will be completely paid off.

Forty Applications Approved.

The third home to be financed with an FHA insured mortgage will be a $20,000 brick residence to be erected in River Forest, on which a $14,000 loan has been approved. In addition to these three construction loans a $6,000 FHA insured mortgage has been approved to refinance an existing indebtedness on a home in Oak Park.

"A total of forty applications for insured mortgage loans totaling $199,210 have been favorably acted upon by approved banks in this district," Sudler said, "and are now being passed upon by this office for insurance by the FHA to the full amount of the mortgages."

Seek $4,000,000 Loans.

Sudler stated that although the FHA makes no loans, referring all applicants to banks, building and loan associations and other lending bodies, the Northern Illinois offices of the FHA have received more than a thousand applications for insured mortgages totaling over $4,000,000. Of these approximately one-half are for new construction and the balance for refinancing existing mortgages.

Here are some of the requirements for obtaining an FHA loan, as outlined by Sudler.

"1. The borrower must have a regular income sufficient to meet monthly payments as they fall due. Generally, the payments for interest, insurance premium and amortization combined should not amount to a sum substantially larger than the borrower could afford to pay as rent.

"2. The loan must be for not more than $16,000.

"3. The loan may be for as much as 80 per cent of the appraised value of the property, although the prospective purchaser or builder of a home should be prepared to borrow less than this, if possible.

"4. The loan may run for as long as twenty years and must be fully amortized.

"5. Interest is at the rate of 5 per cent on new construction and 5½ per cent for refinancing of loans already in existence."

Insurance Premium.

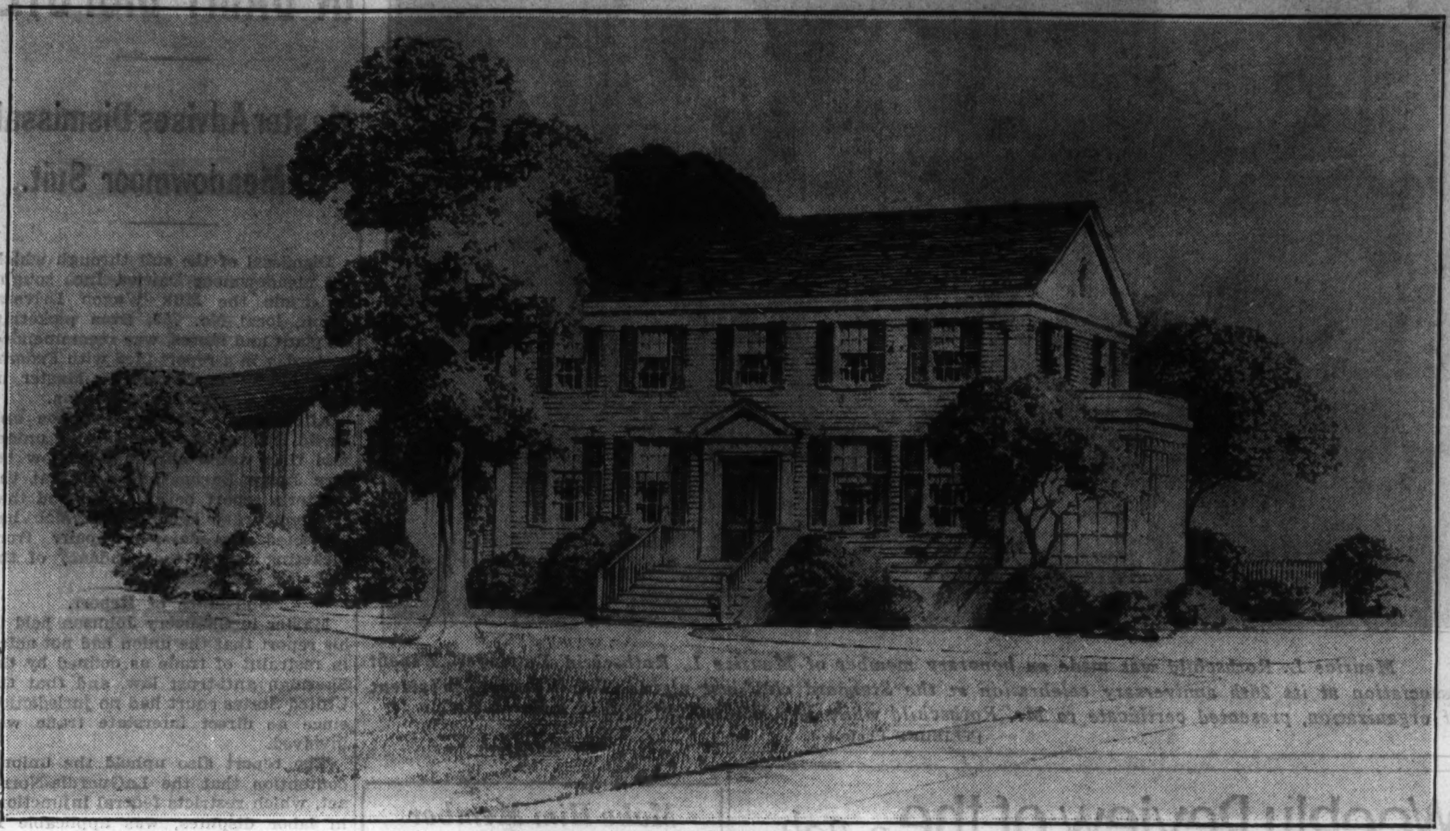
The insurance premium on FHA loans is 1 per cent annually on the full amount of the loan to the end of the term on refinancing loans, and ½ of 1 per cent annually on new mortgages. In addition the borrower has to pay a service charge on the unpaid balance. This in some cases would bring the total cost up to 8 per cent annually. The FHA officials answer this indication of a high interest rate by stating that there will be rebate on the insurance.

Title Two of the national housing act has been in effect only about six weeks. Title One, which has been in operation since last August, provides for modernization and repair loans. In Northern Illinois, Sudler estimates that 20,700 men have been put to work within the last sixteen weeks as a result of "Title One."

Women Plan Programs at Modern Home Exposition

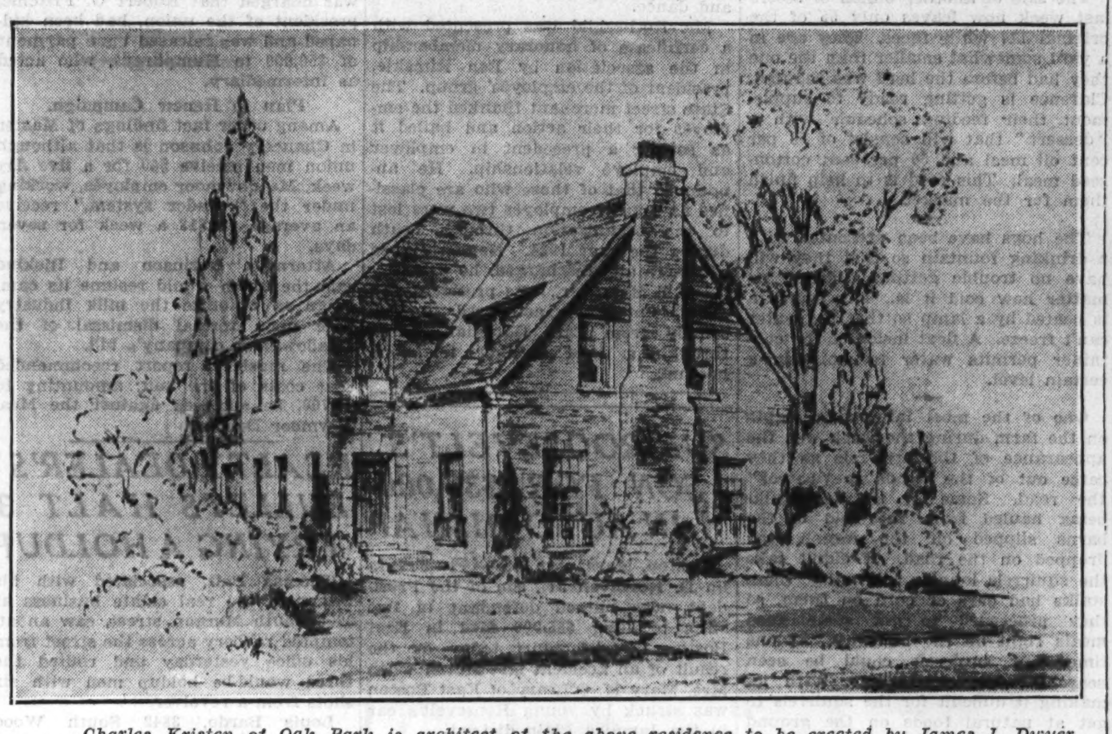
A woman's committee, headed by Mrs. Henry W. Hardy, president of the Chicago and Cook county Federation of Women's organizations, will have charge of daily programs to attract housewives to the Modern Home exposition, to open at the Coliseum on Feb. 16, it was announced yesterday. Mrs. William S. Hefferan of the Chicago board of education, is vice chairman. Exhibits valued at more than a million dollars, representing building trades and allied industries, are scheduled for exhibition space, according to Van Dorf Gray, executive director.

A REJUVENATED LAKE FOREST LANDMARK



Above is shown how one of Lake Forest's landmarks, erected more than fifty years ago on the north side of Market square and later moved to the east side of McKinley road, north of Westminster avenue, will look when it is completely modernized for use by the George Alexander McKinlock Jr. post of the American Legion. Anderson & Ticknor, Inc., of Lake Forest are the architects. Details are given in another column of this page.

TO BE BUILT WITH FHA INSURED MORTGAGE



Charles Kristen of Oak Park is architect of the above residence to be erected by James J. Dwyer of the California Packing corporation on the west side of Forest Glen avenue, between Granville and Sauganash avenues, Chicago. This is the first home in Illinois to be financed by a Federal Housing administration insured mortgage loan, issued under "title two" of the national housing act. The loan is for $9,000. The house and 40x124 lot will cost $12,000. It will be built by the W. W. Construction company. It has seven rooms, two baths, and a two car brick garage.

LAKE FOREST ANTIQUE MODERNIZED FOR HOME OF AMERICAN LEGION

EDGAR A. PARSONS JR.

One of Lake Forest's oldest landmarks, a building erected more than half a century ago on what is now the north side of Market square, and which now stands on the east side of McKinley road, north of Westminster avenue, is being transformed into a home for the George Alexander McKinlock Jr. post of the American Legion. It is being remodeled from plans by Anderson & Ticknor, Inc., Lake Forest architectural firm, into a colonial style structure. It will be formally opened at the evening meeting on Monday, Jan. 28.

The old structure was moved from its original location to its present site in 1915.

The remodeled building will contain a dining room, kitchen, heater room, and locker room in the basement. The entire first floor has been designed as an assembly room and will have walls paneled in pine.

The second floor will be divided into two units; one an area given over to the women's auxiliary of the Legion and the other a small apartment for the caretaker.

Practically all work on the project is being done by members of the post whose services have been donated. Those who have no particular mechanical knowledge are acting as mechanics' helpers to skilled men. The members of the women's auxiliary are in charge of the decorating and furnishing of the building.

The Lake Forest American Legion post was founded by Col. A. A. Sprague and Col. Thomas Gowenlock in July, 1919. Edgar A. Parsons Jr. is commander. Emery G. Kirkman is head of the Legion Building association.

Bond Refinancing Reaches New Peak During December

Reorganization of defaulted real estate bond issues reached a new peak during December, according to George W. Rossetter, head of the public accountancy firm of George Rossetter & Co. Figures compiled by him show that reorganizations proposed, approved, and in some cases put into effect during the last month by thirteen committees totaled approximately $30,000,000.

Thirty-eight properties were turned over to bondholders. Of these nine were on the south side, fourteen on the north side, eight on the west side, and seven on the southwest side. In three cases cash offers were made to the bondholders for their securities.

Include Thirteen Committees.

The committees whose operations are included in the Rossetter report represent bondholders of issues unwritten by S. W. Straus & Co., the Chicago Trust company, Central Trust company, Greenebaum Sons Investment company, Foreman-State, Holzer, Equitable Bond and Mortgage company, Irving National bank, Bain banks, Lackner Butz, American Bond and Mortgage company, Cochran & McCluer, and the Bryn Mawr Beach apartments.

"These figures show that difficulties confronting fifty-three properties have been straightened out during December," said Mr. Rossetter. "These properties secured $29,702,900 of bonds, which are held by approximately 30,664 investors.

"The first reorganization plans to come to my attention under the new federal bankruptcy act, 77B, appeared during the last month. There were eight of these plans, involving $3,108,000 of bonds. The largest was the Griswold & Walker Properties trust, covering seven warehouses in Chicago. There also were included two high grade unfurnished apartment buildings, two hotels, two business blocks containing both stores and flats, and a structural steel plant.

Fees Not Listed.

"Bondholders who received these final plans under 77B probably noticed one striking variation from the customary setup, that is, that plans sent out under 77B do not list the fees and expenses of reorganization. For that reason the eight properties mentioned above are not included in the compilation of cost figures which follow:

"Fees paid or to be paid by the depositing bondholders of the other forty-five properties covered in the December review [where the issues range in amount from $37,000 to $6,000,000, and total $26,594,900 of outstanding bonds] are reported to aggregate $1,149,486, or 4.32 per cent of the total face value of the bonds involved.

"This total, I am informed, includes all fees of the committees and their attorneys, and also of the trustees, depositaries, masters, etc. The average cost of 4.32 per cent is in line with that of previous months. In considering the figures for December it should be kept in mind that a few of the reorganizations included were on larger issues where the fees are proportionately lower than on smaller issues, and in four of the five smaller cases, involving $434,000, expenses were paid either in part or in full by the equity owners."

ARCHITECTS WILL BE TOLD ABOUT BUILDING CODE

F. J. Thielbar, chairman of the commission for revising the city building code, will outline the major features of the new code with particular reference to construction and planning, next Tuesday evening, Jan. 22, at the monthly meeting of the Illinois Society of Architects, at the Architects' club, 1801 Prairie avenue. A. F. Gorman, assistant corporation counsel, will discuss the legal aspects of the code. Benjamin B. Shapiro will talk about the structural sections and George W. Hubbard will comment on the mechanical sections, particularly ventilation, elevators, air conditioning, and sprinklers.

Visions Home Building Era for Suburbs

Modernization and remodeling of houses, made possible through government and private loans, is stimulating the sale of old homes in Oak Park and River Forest, as well as in other suburbs, according to John Cummings Lindop, chairman of the board of General Houses, Inc., and former head of the Oak Park Real Estate board. This movement, plus the fact that there are practically no houses for rent at present, is setting the stage for new home building, Mr. Lindop believes.

Fifteen new houses are being built or are contemplated in River Forest and six in Oak Park, it is stated. Three new houses, built and completed on a speculative basis since last fall, already have been sold, Mr. Lindop reported yesterday.

"An especially encouraging feature is the fact that rental collections are 100 per cent today, whereas at this time last year, delinquencies totaled more than 25 per cent," he said.

Mr. Lindop attributed much of the increased interest in new house construction to the influence of the modern house display at A Century of Progress. He predicts healthful activity in home building this spring.

He cited the gratifying response to newspaper advertising as a further indication of the improvement in conditions. Following a single insertion in last Sunday's TRIBUNE, more buyer inquiries were received at his office than on the best day at the peak of last year, he said.

RENT 3 SHOPS BEFORE START ON REMODELING

The three principal stores in the women's apparel building to be remodeled and modernized by the University of Chicago at the southwest corner of East 63d and Ingleside, have been leased since the project was announced last month, according to Lyndon H. Lesch, real estate manager for the university. Construction will start Feb. 1 with completion set for April 1 or before. The building is to be air-conditioned and the stores will be acoustically treated. The leases provide that all windows must be kept lighted until at least 11 p. m.

The corner store, 25 by 63, has been rented by the Sally Frocks Chain stores for three years on a percentage basis with a minimum monthly guaranteed rental of $300 the first year, $325 the second and $350 the third. W. D. Weber represented the lessee.

The second store, 20 by 63, was leased by Katz Exclusive Millinery, for five years on a percentage basis with a monthly minimum guaranteed rental of $150 the first year, $175 the second and $200 the third.

The Berland Shoe stores have leased the third shop, 28 by 63, for five years with a minimum guaranteed monthly rental of $275 the first year, $300 the second and $325 the third. The latter two leases were negotiated directly by Mr. Lesch. Only one store remains unrented, with several applications being considered.

BURKE & LYNN MOVE TO LARGER OFFICE QUARTERS

With practically 100 per cent occupancy for their properties, with rental collections better than at any time during the last three years, and with increase in sales indicative that confidence is returning, Burke & Lynn, pioneer Albany Park real estate firm, predict higher rents throughout the city by next May. The firm has moved to larger and more elaborate quarters at 4747 North Kedzie avenue. It comprises Edwin V. Burke and Frank Lynn.

C. G. Sauers Is Made Head of Landscape Architects

Charles G. Sauers, general superintendent of the forest preserve district, was elected president of the Chicago Society of Landscape Architects at the annual election held at the Cliff Dwellers on Jan. 16. Miss May E. McAddams, landscape architect of Lake Forest, was made vice president. Wayne H. Laverty, landscape architect for the University of Chicago, is secretary and treasurer. J. Roy West, landscape architect and senior member of the firm of Simonds, West & Blair, was elected chairman of the board of directors, the other members of which are Gertrude Deimel, Kenneth Shelley, and Robert E. Moore Jr.

Caxton Printing Leases Floor at 116 South Wells

The Caxton Printing company has leased the entire third floor at 116 South Wells street for a term of years through Arthur Rubloff & Co. Other leases reported by that firm include the second floor at 500 South Wells, containing 5,000 square feet, rented by the Tiny Togs Manufacturing company; the entire fourth floor at 506 South Wells, by the Carmen Manufacturng company; third floor at the southeast corner of Adams and Market, to Jack Trobe, Inc. The Scat Chemical company has rented the store at 178 North Franklin street.

FIVE ARE SLAIN, 16 SEIZED IN N. Y. SURGE OF CRIME

Brother Officer Shoots Patrolman.

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Crime and violent death held carnival in the five boroughs of Greater New York today. Five persons were slain, one was wounded, and sixteen were in jail.

The epitome of this outbreak of violence was written by two uniformed members of the force themselves in a midtown saloon.

A motive withheld by death led an officer befuddled by all-night carousal to shoot a fellow patrolman he scarcely knew. His own suicide followed, sealing the case as a mystery.

Kills Self Before Diners.

The suicide of Patrolman John J. Masterson before 150 diners in a restaurant on 10th avenue was the crowning crime of the series. His victim, John J. Hopkins, a fellow patrolman at the West Thirteenth Street station, was kept alive at the French hospital only by blood transfusions.

Equally illogical were the deaths of the notorious Farruggia brothers, Joseph, 42, and Samuel, 40, fanatic murderers at large since they killed a policeman and a civilian last May 4 while on the way to burn a Catholic church. Arrested as vagrants, their identities unnoticed, they fell before police guns outside an elevated railway station in Queens when they tried to escape.

An unreasoning fate claimed Albert Musgrif, 28, of Brooklyn, a cab driver, caught in the crossfire of police pursuing three robbers riding in his cab. Musgrif, at work his first day, was killed.

Officer Is Fifth Victim.

The fifth victim, Patrolman James Killion, went down before the guns of four young thugs in the Gropper Travel Outfit store on 5th avenue, three doors from 45th street.

The electric chair already waits for two of the four fugitive killers captured before dawn yesterday when department of justice agents rounded up the notorious tri-state bang in a hospital. Robert Mais, 29, and his chief lieutenant, Walter Legenza, 41, will go back to the Richmond, Va., death cells, from which they escaped by killing a guard.

4 MIDLOTHIAN SCHOOLS TO OPEN IN HOPE OF FUNDS

The four Midlothian schools which have been closed since last fall for lack of operating funds will reopen tomorrow on the strength of county school officials' belief that the bill providing $200,000 for distressed school districts will be passed by the general assembly, Otto F. Aken, superintendent of county schools, announced yesterday.

Representative Frank Foster introduced the bill in the house and it will be up for second reading Tuesday.

Gas and sales tax receipts from the state distributive fund have kept the distressed county schools open but the assistance received through this channel has been inadequate, Mr. Aken said. The schools at Tinley Park and Steger were only able to reopen because bazars and collections were held by the townspeople, it was said.

Allocation of funds derived by the terms of the bill prepared by Mr. Aken and Representative Foster will be directed by a board of three, comprised of John A. Wieland, state superintendent of public instruction, Gov. Henry Horner and State Treasurer John Stelle.

TAX COLLECTIONS OF WEEK EXCEED 14¾ MILLIONS

Collection of current and delinquent taxes during the last week amounted to $14,816,200, County Treasurer Sweitzer reported yesterday. The week's collections follow:

1928	$ 52,840	1931	$ 376,438
1929	160,487	1932	675,437
1930	347,019	1933	13,203,989

Yesterday's collections totaled $2,030,204, of which $1,781,751 consisted of 1933 tax payments.

Nonpayment of Taxes Bars 15 Waukegan Candidates

At least fifteen of the forty-one persons who have filed as candidates for the fourteen aldermanic positions in Waukegan, are ineligible under a city ordinance to hold office because they have not paid their taxes, according to an announcement yesterday by State's Attorney Charles E. Mason. The fifteen, he said, have not paid their personal property taxes and it is expected that a study of the other tax records will show that others have not paid special assessments, general taxes, or purchased their city vehicle tags.

SUICIDE ATTEMPT BALKED.

John Gesiler, 55 years old, 1433 Ardmore avenue, a janitor, yesterday was revived by a pulmotor rescue squad after he attempted to commit suicide in the basement of his home by inhaling gas.

HONOR MEMORY OF ROBERT E. LEE

CROWDS ENJOY $100,000 STAMP EXHIBITION HERE

View Many Reminders of Human Progress.

Crowds visited the North club on the 18th floor of the Hotel La Salle yesterday to view the $100,000 display of postage stamps arranged there for the annual open house of the Chicago Philatelic society. The exhibit is to close tonight.

Of significance to the philatelists was a pair of provisional stamps issued by the City of New York in 1845, before the national government issued stamps. Signed by Robert H. Morris, then postmaster of New York City, they are credited with being the only pair in existence initialed personally by him and are valued at more than $2,000.

Depict Numerous Activities.

Of interest to the layman were the topical collections in which were group stamps portraying the development of many fields of civilization.

Art, as portrayed on postage stamps, started, for instance, with the reproduction of Lucca Della Robbia's "St. Francis of Assisi" on an Italian stamp and ended with Goya's modern "Maja Desnuda" on a recent Spanish issue.

For Chicagoans there was an extensive collection of Chicago cancelations, made by Dr. C. W. Hennan and given by him to the Chicago Historical society.

The Chicago Penny Post.

The earliest cancelation in this collection bears the date July 8, 1835, and the postage price [but no stamp] of 75 cents, that being the charge for a letter of triple weight from Chicago to New York, but the most significant cancelation in the group is that of the Chicago Penny Post, issued in the early '60s.

Chicago's letters were stamped at that time, not by the national government, but by private stamping firms, one of the largest of which was organized by John R. Floyd. It was this firm which later became the Penny Post and bore as its mark of distinction a beehive imprint.

The worn old letter bearing the Penny Post insignia was of twofold interest to stampmen attending the connvention; first, because it is rare and very valuable, and second, because its beehive insignia became the emblem of the Chicago Philatelic society.

WANTS HUSBAND OR WIFE WITNESS AGAINST OTHER

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Attorney General Homer Cummings today asked congress to lift the "dead hand of the common law rule of 1789" and let a husband or wife testify against the other in court.

Cummings drew the house judiciary committee's attention to "the present unsatisfactory condition of criminal procedure in the federal courts with respect to the competency of husband and wife to testify for or against the other."

Under the proposed bill the witness would be protected, however, from testifying on confidential communications except as the law now provides in cases of importation of aliens for immoral purposes.

A proposal to give to United States marshals and their deputies blanket federal authority to carry arms. The bill also would authorize a marshal to serve all processes originating either in his own or another district.

JACKSON, MISS., VOTES TO REJECT PURCHASE OF TVA ELECTRICITY

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Jackson voted down a proposal for municipal ownership of an electric power plant and a possible hookup with the Tennessee Valley authority at an election here today on a proposed $1,500,000 bond issue to finance the project.

Complete unofficial returns from the city's 21 precincts showed the bond issue had been voted down 3,888 to 3,098.

The result sent Mayor Walter A. Scott of Jackson, who led the fight for the issue and TVA power, down to his first political defeat in 20 years.

The Mississippi Power and Light company, which took up the gauntlet thrown down by the mayor and the city commission after a breakdown of negotiations for lower rates, fought vigorously to defeat the issue.

In exchange for rejection of municipal ownership, the company offered to put into effect, retroactive as of Dec. 25, a compromise schedule of reduced electric rates previously rejected by the commission and also immediate substitution of a new bus system and a five cent fare for the present outworn street car system and a seven cent fare.

The power company claimed its offer would mean an annual saving to Jackson citizens of approximately $184,000.

SCHOOL LIBRARY APPROPRIATION SOARS FOR YEAR

The 1935 appropriation for school library books amounts to 50 cents per pupil as compared to 6 cents in 1932 and 20 cents in 1929, said Don C. Rogers, director of the bureau of research and building survey, speaking yesterday to Chicago school principals at their monthly meeting in the Art institute.

Students in the vocal classes of 11 public high schools entertained the principals, and methods employed in teaching singing were demonstrated. The classes are conducted by members of the Chicago Music Teachers council. Superintendent Bogan observed at the conclusion of the program that it was a "practical demonstration of a theory I have always held—that boys and girls can do that which men and women can do, and do it better. That's education."

FREE TAX RETURN SERVICE AWAITS TRIBUNE READERS

Starting tomorrow morning THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE again, as in previous years, will give free service to its readers in the making out of income tax returns for 1934. A deputy collector has been assigned by Collector of Internal Revenue Harrison. The deputy will be on duty at THE TRIBUNE Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, every day except Sunday until March 15, the deadline for filing.

Still further service will be extended to readers in the Public Service office in the Tribune Tower on or about Feb. 8. Necessary forms for filing are provided, and a corps of assistants will be on hand to aid in the preparation of the returns. Free notary service will also be available.

ADM. CLUVERIUS EXTOLS MEMORY OF GENERAL LEE

Birthday Marked by Confederate Groups.

Gen. Robert E. Lee not only was a great soldier but possessed qualities of leadership and individualism which might well form a pattern for Americans of today, Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius declared last night at a dinner honoring the birth date of the Confederate leader given at the Medinah Athletic club by the Illinois division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

"I fear that the qualities of leadership exhibited by Gen. Lee are lacking today," Admiral Cluverius declared, "but now, in our present difficulties, we should remember Lee's warning that a true citizen should not serve divisions and factions but devote himself to the good of his country as a whole. Gen. Lee, serving the Confederacy, was serving a national ideal, and when the war ended he continued to serve a national ideal found in a united nation. We need to follow that example of devotion and unselfishness."

The dinner honoring Gen. Lee also was in tribute to Stonewall Jackson and to Matthew Fontaine Maury, commander of the Confederate fleet, whose birthdays are this month.

South Honors General.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Southern eyes turned back to Dixie and the Stars and Bars flew once more from myriad flagpoles in honor of the favorite hero of the confederacy—Robert E. Lee, whose birthday is today.

All the way from Baltimore—where Virginians in Maryland gathered to hear an address by Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, editor of the Richmond News Leader and author of the most comprehensive life of Lee yet written—to the states of the "deep south," which observe Lee's birthday as a legal holiday, special commemorative services were planned.

In many communities programs have been arranged to do joint honor to Gen. Thomas J. [Stonewall] Jackson, Lee's chief lieutenant, whose birthday is tomorrow. In Richmond and elsewhere the honors were shared likewise by Edgar Allan Poe, southern writer, whose birthday anniversary is today.

Paroled Convict Admits Part in San Quentin Break

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Police Chief William Quinn tonight announced Clyde Stevens, paroled San Quentin convict and confessed bank robber, had admitted he smuggled into the prison the automatics which enabled four prisoners to kidnap four parole board officials and escape for a few hours Wednesday. One of the prisoners was fatally wounded.

Four Frozen to Death in Hungarian Cold Wave

JOHN P. HARDING BUYS WASHINGTON PARK TRACK

WINN DISPOSES OF RACE PLANT FOR $2,000,000

Carruthers to Be General Manager.

BY FRENCH LANE.

John P. Harding, veteran Chicago restaurant and hotel owner, and a group of Chicagoans said to include Patrick J. and Richard Nash, Chicago Democratic leaders, yesterday became the owners of the Washington Park race track near Homewood.

They announced that the purchase price to be paid the American Turf association was in the neighborhood of $2,000,000 and that there was a down payment of $300,000.

Announcement of the pending deal was published exclusively in yesterday's issue of THE TRIBUNE.

Possession of the track will pass into the hands of Harding and his associates early this week after a few minor details are cleared up, it was announced by Col. Matt J. Winn, president of the American Turf association.

Harding To Be President.

After the deal was closed Harding announced he would serve as president of the new turf organization and that Roy Carruthers, for the last half dozen years executive director of the Arlington Park Jocky club, would become general manager of the Washington Park course and serve as director.

Carruthers also will continue as the active manager of the Arlington Park track, officials of that organization said last night. He is now serving as steward and adviser to the manager of the new Santa Anita track in California and will return next month to take over his Washington Park duties.

Other than to say he was associated with a "group of leading and influential Chicagoans who would add much to the prestige of Illinois horse racing," Harding refused to comment on the new organization. He would not say to what extent the Nash brothers were interested. They own stock in most of the race tracks in Chicago, it was pointed out. From other sources it was reported one of Nash brothers would be a member of the new Washington Park board of directors.

Lincoln Fields Not Included.

The deal does not include the transfer of the Lincoln Fields track in Will county just beyond the Cook county line. Lincoln Fields remains the property of the American Turf association and will be operated this year with Col. Winn directing the racing there.

The sale of Washington Park is one of the biggest race track transactions made in America in the last half dozen years.

"Several months ago Mr. Harding came to me and asked for a price on our race track properties in Illinois," Col. Winn said last night. "My organization made him a price on both the Lincoln Fields and Washington Park courses.

"I did not hear from him again until a few days ago when Mr. Harding met with me again and said he represented a group of Chicagoans who were willing to buy the Washington Park at the price we had made. It didn't take long to close the deal and, while I do not know all the men in the new organization, I am familiar with enough of them to be assured that their coming into Chicago racing will be to the sport a lot of good.

"I will remain as interested as ever in Chicago racing and I believe the natural competition that is bound to develop as a result of this sale will have a wholesome effect on horse racing in Chicago," he said.

Plan Some Improvements.

Harding said he would not be able to announce plans for Washington Park for some time. "We plan many improvements," he said. "The first move we make will be to install an electric totalizator similar to the one used at Arlington Park.

"Race tracks, to create public confidence, must have this system of betting," he added.

The Washington Park track is one of the most spacious and among the most attractive courses in the country. The American Derby has been renewed there each year the track has been operated. This race was formerly run at old Washington Park on the south side, one of the most fashionable courses ever to operate in America.

The American Derby will be renewed at Washington Park again this year, Harding said. It carried an added money value of $25,000 last year and was won by the 3 year old champion Cavalcade. It probably will be a $25,000 race this year.

Harding is a comparative stranger to most Chicago racegoers. He has seldom visited the tracks here except to see some noted horses perform, but has always been interested in horses, more for the ability they have shown than in wagering upon their performances.

White Sox Get Luke Sewell from Browns

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox yesterday purchased Catcher Luke Sewell from the St. Louis Browns for cash in a triangular deal which had sent Sewell from the Washington Senators to the Browns. The Browns had obtained Sewell from the Senators earlier in a separate trade which sent Pitcher Irving [Bump] Hadley back to Washington.

LUKE SEWELL.

The Browns received cash in both transactions amounting to more than $20,000, which Manager Rogers Hornsby said would be used to buy an outfielder.

The deal, in so far as the Sox end of it was concerned, had been on the fire since the minor league meetings at Louisville last November. The Sox had expected to get the veteran catcher at that time, and when they failed it was hoped, according to Sox officials, to announce the closing of the deal at the major league meeting in New York last month.

Hornsby Steps In.

In the New York confab Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators, threw the prospect up in the air by saying that he was not interested in a cash transaction and that the only way the Sox could get Sewell would be to trade Les Tietje, young Sox pitcher, for him. At this juncture Hornsby entered the picture by offering several deals with Washington, promising Owner Comiskey of the Sox that he could have Sewell in case Luke's contract came to the Browns.

Accepting Sewell as coming from the Browns instead of the Senators it technically may be said he is the third veteran catcher to come to the Sox from St. Louis in the last year, the other two being Muddy Ruel and Merv Shea. The Sox roster, recently published, bears the names of four catchers, Ruel, Shea, Bob Fenner, and George Caithamer, but it is said to be improbable that the Sox will take more than three catchers to the Pasadena training camp.

Never Lingered in Minors.

Sewell is one of the group of major league vets who never played a full season for a minor league team. He joined the Cleveland Indians in 1921, directly from the University of Alabama, and remained with the Indians, except for a brief term in Columbus in 1921, until traded to Washington for Roy Spencer on Jan. 7, 1933.

In helping the Senators win the American league pennant in 1933 Sewell had the busiest year of his career, catching in 141 games of the championship season and all five games of the world series with the Giants.

Last season Luke was out almost two-thirds of the season with a broken finger, suffered in spring training. The injury was a stubborn one, but the finger was pronounced sound in the latter weeks of the season.

Has Made 1,000 Hits.

Sewell has made exactly 1,000 hits in his 14 year major league experience for a lifetime average of .257. He never has batted more than .293 in his major league career, but always has been known as a rather timely hitter. Last season he made only 49 hits, but drove in 21 runs.

Sewell, whose name is James Luther, was born in Titus, Ala., Jan. 15, 1901. He was married in 1926 to an Akron, O., girl and since then has made Akron his winter home.

Luke is still one of the fastest catchers in the American league, an expert receiver and judge of batters, and somewhat famous as a handler of young pitchers.

Hadley goes back to his first connection in organized baseball, he having first joined the Senators in 1926. He finished the year with Birmingham, then was a regular beginning in 1927, and continuing with Washington until December, 1931, when at the minor league meeting at French Lick he was traded with Sam Jones and Jack Hayes to the White Sox for Carl Reynolds and Johnny Kerr.

On April 27, 1932, Lew Fonseca, then manager of the Sox, traded Hadley to St. Louis with Bruce Campbell for Red Kress.

STEPHENSON TO PLAY OUTFIELD FOR INDIANAPOLIS

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Riggs Stephenson, former outfielder for the Chicago Cubs, has notified officials of the Indianapolis American association baseball team he will accept their offer to play here next summer.

Dale Miller, road secretary for the local team, said Stephenson stated in a letter he would report at Mayfield, Ky., for spring training with the Indians.

Stephenson, who went to the Cubs from Indianapolis in 1926, was released last fall. He previously had played with Cleveland in the American league and with Kansas City in the American association. He will fill the place in the Indialapolis outfield created by the sale of Vernon Washington to the Chicago White Sox.

VANCE, FISHER LEAD PURPLE TO 36-31 VICTORY

Winners Solve Tight Badger Defense.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Northwestern solved Wisconsin's closely drawn man to man defense last night at Patten gymnasium to whip the Badgers, 36 to 31, for its first conference basketball victory of the season. Not only did the Wildcats gain revenge for the licking they took at Madison, when they scored only three field goals and were held to nine points, but they demonstrated to a crowd of 5,500 loyal supporters that, with the addition of two newcomers, Northwestern now has a wider spread of attack and considerably more speed on the floor than in any previous contest.

Vance's Play Big Factor.

Elmer [Tug] Blume, forward, and Hi Bender, guard, both sophomores, contributed necessary additional speed. But in the final analysis, Duke Vance's offensive work on the free throw line was of major value. The net result of these changes gave Lyle Fisher, star forward, an opportunity to shoot uncovered. Fisher came through with five long distance goals, one from under the backboard on a followup, and a free throw.

The score at the end of the half was Wisconsin, 16; Northwestern, 14.

Demark's goal to start the second half opened a four point gap. Within two minutes, however, Blume and Jess McAnally counted on free throws and Vance's second goal of the night tied the count at 18. Vance broke this deadlock on another shot from the pivot play, only to have Preboski dart under for an equalizing goal on a perfect short pass attack.

Blume's long shot gave Northwestern the lead, 22 to 20, and again Wisconsin tied when Poser took advantage of a quick break, dribbled to the foul circle, and dropped the ball through.

Wisconsin Rally Fails.

For a third time Northwestern took the lead, this time on Fisher's long shot from the side, and thereafter Wisconsin was engaged in a fruitless chase.

Vance passed back from the line to Fisher, who scored. Jones, replacing Stege at center, followed up a rebound and counted a one hander. Wisconsin trailed, 26 to 24. Then Northwestern built up an eight point advantage with field goals by Blume and Bender and free throws by Fisher and Vance. In the remaining minutes Wisconsin never came closer than five points, and five of their last seven points were from the penalty line. Northwestern kept possession in the main and controled the contest to the end.

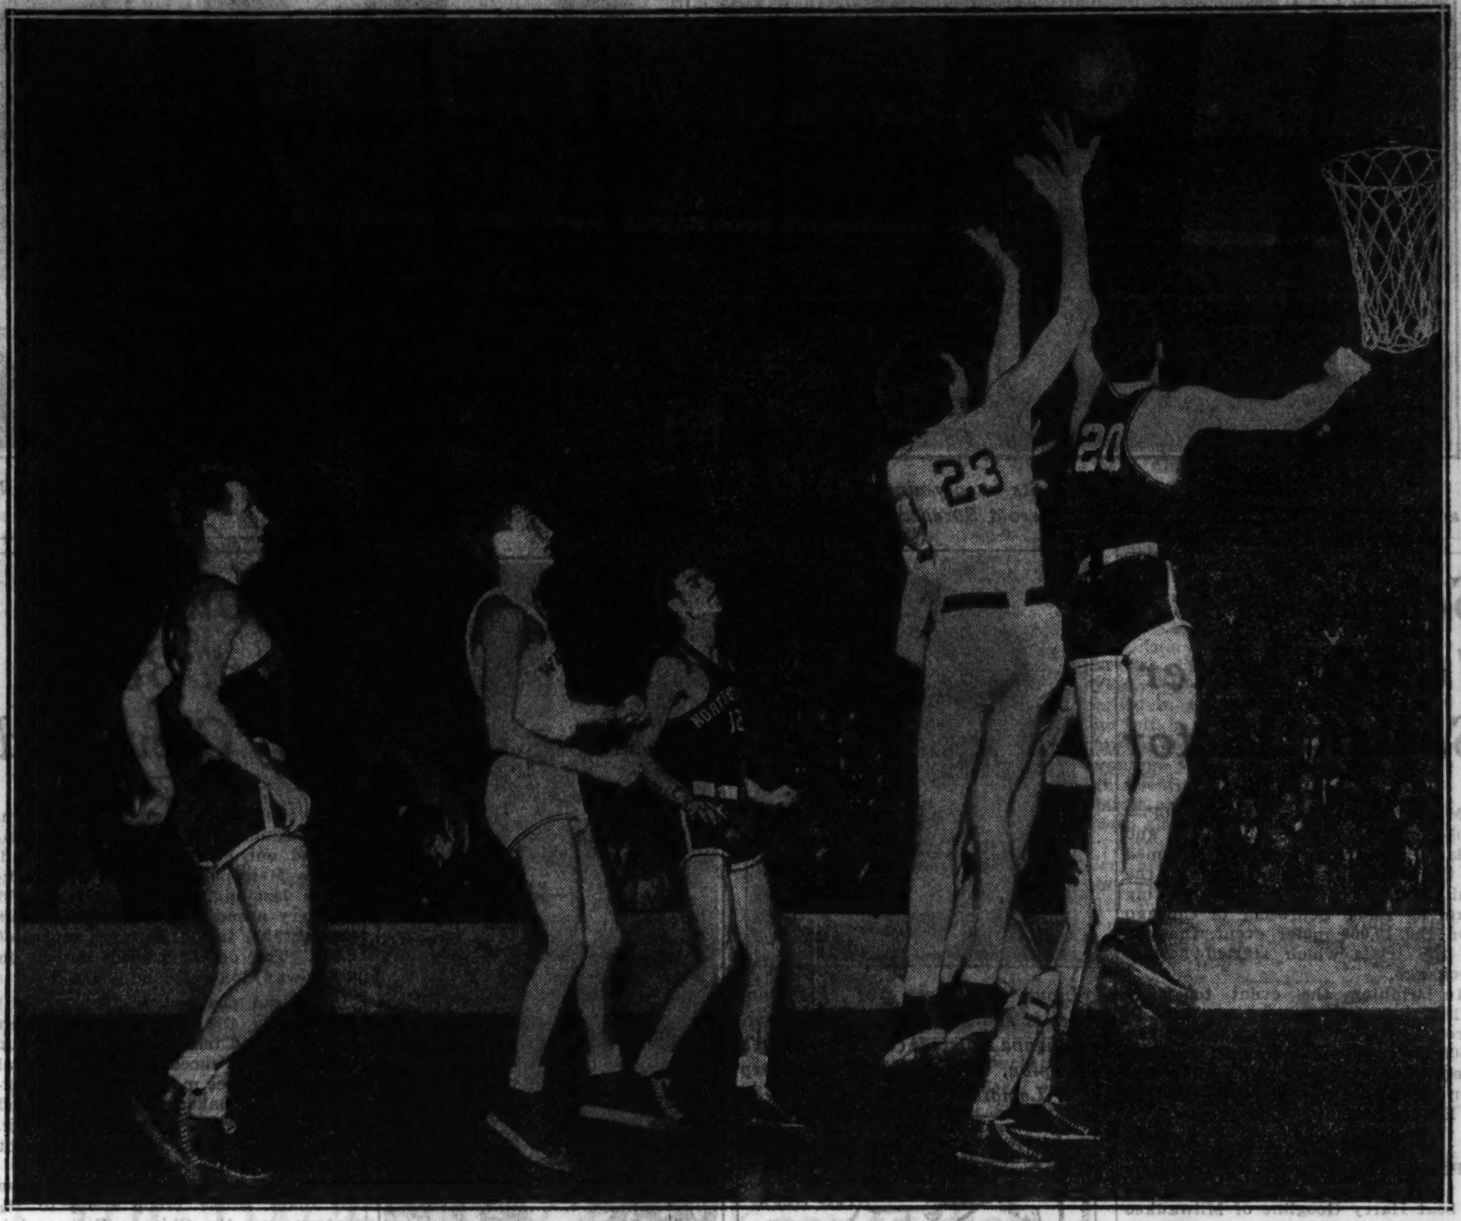
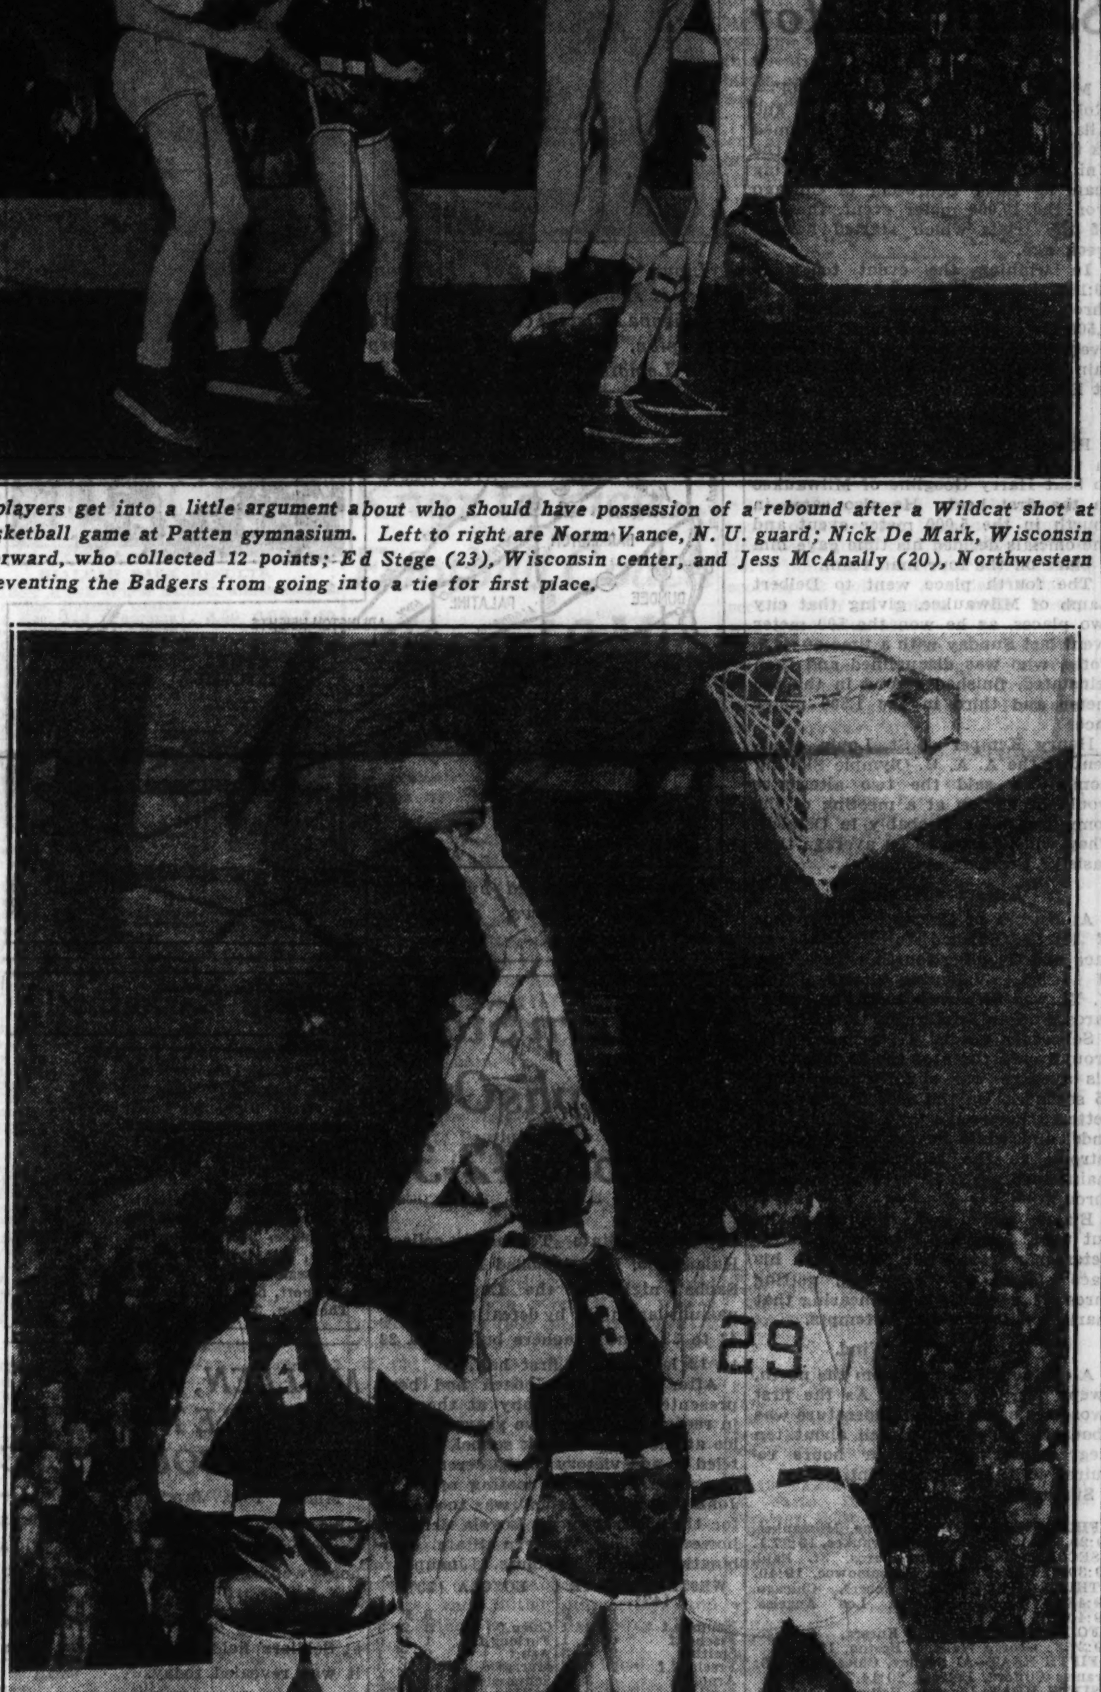
MISS A SHOT—THEN FUN BEGINS!



Wisconsin and Northwestern players get into a little argument about who should have possession of a rebound after a Wildcat shot at the basket in last night's Big Ten basketball game at Patten gymnasium. Left to right are Norm Vance, N. U. guard; Nick De Mark, Wisconsin forward; Lyle Fisher (12), N. U. forward, who collected 12 points; Ed Stege (23), Wisconsin center, and Jess McAnally (20), Northwestern center. The Wildcats won, 36-31, preventing the Badgers from going into a tie for first place.



Wisconsin misses a shot and again the players leap into the air to retrieve the ball. Left to right are Hi Bender (4), Northwestern guard; Vance (3), Northwestern guard; Jones (12), Wisconsin center, and Felix Preboski (29), Wisconsin forward.

Bears Meet Coast Stars in Battle Today

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 19.—Running through a snappy practice session at Gilmore stadium, with Bronko Nagurski in the full back position for the first time since mid-December, the Chicago Bears today wound up drill for a game here tomorrow against Ernie Pinckert's Southern California All-Stars.

This game, for which a gate of 10,000 is expected, will provide the Bears with just what is needed in the way of fast competition, for the Pinckert eleven will launch Cotton Warburton, platinum headed phenom of the Southern California football ranks, in the quarter back position in his professional debut.

Keeble, Pinckert to Play.

The team that will face the Bears has plenty of weight in the line positions, and has speed also, for Warburton will have Joe Keeble, full back from University of California at Los Angeles; Pinckert, and Marger Apsit as his back field mates, while Frank Baker of Northwestern, Mike Steponovich of St. Mary's, and Ted Shipkey of Stanford provide speed on the ends. Baker is in Hollywood trying to carve a film future.

Paul Schwegler, giant University of Washington tackle, who has been picked up to match George Musso of the Bears, is another film studio worker in the lineup of the coast team. Schwegler is an actor part time at the Fox studio, but when not acting is an electrician on the sound stages.

Karr to Play Part Time.

Bill Karr, who carried a lame right knee as a memento of last week's game in which the Bears lost to the Chicago Cardinals, 13-9, here, has responded to osteopathic manipulations and will play part of the game tomorrow, according to George Halas, owner-manager of the Bears. Halas says his team is taking tomorrow's game in stride, looking forward to next Sunday's revenge battle against the New York Giants for the real competition of the barnstorming season.

NEVERS' TEAM VS. GIANTS

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The New York Giants, National Professional league champions, will meet Ernie Nevers' Pacific Coast All-Stars here tomorrow in the annual football game sponsored by the Knights of Columbus. The game is expected to attract more than 20,000 spectators. Part of the proceeds will be devoted to charitable purposes. The Giants will line up as 2 to 1 favorites.

GALAN SIGNS CUB CONTRACT; ROOT PUTS HIS IN MAIL

Manager Charley Grimm of the Cubs announced yesterday that he had received the signed contract of Augie Galan and had received a letter from Charley Root in which the vet pitcher said his signed document had been mailed in Australia, where the Root family has been sightseeing.

Galan, a utility infielder last year, may be switched to the outfield this season. He has asked that the transfer be made. Though Augie is a 160 pounder he has a lot of power. He also is one of the fastest runners in the league.

Last year Root, with Babe Herman, was the most stubborn holdout on the Cub roster. It was reported that he finally signed for $16,000, which may have been something of an exaggeration. Charley won four games and lost seven last year. At times he confided to friends that he believed his ineffectiveness was due to the fact that he was not given regular starts.

Saunders Resigns as Colorado Football Coach

HOOSIERS WIN, 40-35; TRAIL AT HALF, 24-15

Stout's Five Goals Clinch Victory.

Iowa City, Ia., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Lester Stout, 5 foot 8 inch forward, paced the Indiana university basketball team with five baskets in the second half tonight as the Hoosiers broke the University of Iowa winning streak 40 to 35, before a crowd of nearly 9,000.

The Hoosiers played tirelessly as the Hawkeyes weakened midway in the last half. Iowa led 24 to 15 at the intermission and at one time appeared to have the game well in hand.

Hawkeyes Increase Lead.

At the beginning of the second period John Barko started the scoring which put the home team in front 26 to 16. Stout countered with an open shot from in front of the basket but Grim dribbled in to retain Iowa's ten point lead. Stout then sank a long one from the side of the court and Fred Fechtman scored a one hand shot.

Ken Gunning then dropped in two long ones from the side of the court which gave Indiana 25 to Iowa's 28. Kehrt and Walker each added field basket before the Hawkeyes scored again and the Hoosiers were leading 29 to 28.

Iowa Regains Lead.

After a time out Iowa rallied, Barko scoring twice from close in and Blackmer once from under the hoop, giving Iowa a 34 to 29 margin.

Kehrt of Indiana then found the net from in front of the basket, and Gunning added a point when fouled by Grim. The Hoosiers were trailing 32 to 34, but Stout staged his one man rally for three consecutive open shots under the basket.

ILLINOIS, 34; MICHIGAN, 22

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Michigan's basketball team, with four regulars benched for breaking training rules, battled stubbornly tonight, but eventually succumbed to the superior skill of Illinois, 34 to 22, in a Big Ten game.

The Illini led at the half, 13 to 12. Michigan took the lead on Evans' basket, but thereafter the score was tied three times, while the lead also changed three times. Frank Froschauer, Illinois captain, contributed 9 of the 13 points the Illini scored in the first half with four baskets and a field goal.

Joslin's basket at the start of the second half put the Wolverines in the lead, but their advantage did not last long, as the Illini soon overtook and passed them to maintain a lead for the remainder of the game.

MINNESOTA 42, CHICAGO 33

Bill Haarlow's individual performance, in which he scored 22 points, featured Minnesota's victory over the Maroons, 42 to 33, at the Midway fieldhouse last night. It was Chicago's third consecutive conference beating and its eighth straight defeat of the season. The Gophers led at the half, 21 to 11.

Haarlow scored six baskets and ten of 13 free throws to keep the Maroons in the game, but Minnesota found the Chicago defense easy and led by a comfortable margin most of the way.

Four men did the Gophers' scoring. Gordon Norman, center, accounted for 14 points; George Roscoe, guard, rammed in five one-hand baskets for 10 points; Baker, forward, made 12 on four field goals and four free throws, and Svendsen, guard, connected three times from the floor for six points.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Pittsburgh's basketball team defeated Notre Dame, 26 to 22, tonight for its ninth victory in fourteen games and its fifth consecutive triumph. Pitt also increased its all-time scoring lead against Notre Dame, the total for the series now being Pitt, 272; Notre Dame, 266.

The first half developed one of the closest defensive battles here this season, the half ending, Pitt, 11; Notre Dame, 9. Emerick and Ford led the scoring in the half.

With the opening of the second half, Marty Peters, Notre Dame forward, scored two field goals to give Notre Dame its lead for the first time, but Francis Wainio brought Pittsburgh from behind with two field goals.

MAROONS CRUSH AMERICAN SIX UNDER 8-2 SCORE

Russ Blinco Drives Four Goals Past Worters.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Montreal Maroons sank the New York Americans under an 8 to 2 score tonight. The defeat left the Americans third in the international division, only a point ahead of the victorious Montreal Canadiens and ten points behind the Maroons.

Montreal scored three goals in a 79 second stretch early in the first period and added a fourth before Deed Klein tallied in the last minute of the period. Two more tallies buzzed past Goalie Roy Worters in the second frame, and another pair followed Normie Himes' tally in the third. Russ Blinco, clever young center, led the attack with four tallies. Herb Cain scored twice, and Stew Evans and Baldy Northcott netted one goal apiece. A slim crowd of about 5,000 saw the game. Lineup:

TORONTO WINS, 6-2

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 19.—(AP)—After falling behind midway in the game the Toronto Maple Leafs ran wild tonight to defeat the St. Louis Eagles, last place club of the National Hocky league's international section, 6 to 2. About 9,000 saw the game.

Ralph [Scotty] Bowman, St. Louis defense man, was out with a fractured shoulder, and the Eagles missed him badly as the twelve man squad weakened at the finish and absorbed its fifth straight defeat.

Syd Howe put St. Louis ahead in the second period, but Chuck Conacher tied it with his second goal of the game and King Clancy sent the league leaders out in front. Hal Cotton was the scoring leader, getting one goal and assisting in making two others. Lineup:

CANADIENS, 4; BOSTON, 1

Boston, Mass., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The greatly improved Montreal Canadiens tonight won their third straight victory by drubbing the Boston Bruins, 4 to 1, in a National league hocky game before a crowd of 11,000.

Little Aurel Joliat was never in better form on this surface. He scored two of the Flying Frenchmen's tallies and his timely-poke-checking spoiled many a Boston scoring attempt. Leroy Goldsworthy got the other pair of Canadien tallies and his work was just a shade less spectacular than Joliat's sparkling performance.

The Bruins probably played their poorest game of the current campaign. Little they tried was successful and, if Sylvio Mantha had not drawn a penalty just at the wrong time, the home sextet would have been shut out. Mantha was off when the Bruins' five man attack broke through Wilfie Cude, Max Kaminsky doing the scoring in the final session. Lineup:

THEY'LL FLY THROUGH THE AIR IN TODAY'S MEET

When the Norge Ski club holds its twenty-ninth annual tournament today at the slide at Fox River Grove, Ill., these three riders will be among the leading contestants for class A honors. Left to right are Ottar Sathre of Salisbury, Conn.; Harold Sorensen, Norfolk, Conn., and Sverre Fredheim, Minneapolis.

NORGE CLUB TO HOLD 29TH SKI TOURNEY TODAY

Stars to Try for Record on Fox River Slide.

The 29th annual ski tournament of the Norge Ski club will be held on the tall steel slide near Fox River Grove, Ill., this afternoon. Twenty-five thousand, according to advance ticket sales, will gather on the club's grounds to watch the meet, which has attracted the nation's leading jumpers. The meet will start at 1:30 o'clock.

A leap of more than 183 feet, the record made three years ago, will be the goal of the skiers entered in the meet. The slide mark was made by Kaare Walberg, then a member of the Norwegian Olympic team, which participated in an exhibition tournament before competing in the 1932 winter Olympic events.

Fredbo Beats Champion.

Einar Fredbo of the Utah Ski club of Salt Lake City, Karl Baadsvik, champion of Canada; Roy Mikkelsen, Auburn, Cal., and Ottar Sathre, Salisbury, Conn., are among the jumpers rated as the outstanding skiers in the meet because of their performances on American slides this winter.

Fredbo defeated Casper Olmen, United States champion, in two tournaments this season. Sathre was an alternate on the 1932 Norwegian Olympic team and has made excellent marks in the east. Sathre was accompanied to Chicago by Harold Sorenson of Norfolk, Conn., who has competed in the Norge meet several times.

The Norge club will rely on Guttorm Paulsen, Lamoine Batson, and George Gundersen to capture the class A championship. Other Norge representatives in the meet include Ingvald Bruseth, Harry Tregillis, Gunnar Oman, and Ole Besseberg.

Snow from Escanaba.

The lack of snow during the week in the Chicago district again forced the citizens of Escanaba, Mich., to come to the aid of the Norge club. Seven carloads of snow, scraped off the streets of Escanaba, arrived at the scene Friday and workmen began packing in on the hill and huge slide.

The class A entries follow:

Leonard Bietila, Ishpeming Ski club, Ishpeming, Mich.; Lloyd Ellingsen, Madison, Wis.; John Oliver, Minneapolis, Minn.; Ingvald Bruseth, Norge, Chicago; Harald Sorensen, Norfolk, Conn.; Roy Mikkelsen, Auburn, Cal.; Rolf Wigaard, Auburn, Cal.; Robert Pabst, Milwaukee-Oconomowoc, Wis.; Sverre Fredheim, Minneapolis, Minn.; Ottar Sathre, Salisbury, Conn.; George Maki, Northern Ski club, Ishpeming, Mich.

Ingvar Arnesen, Wisconsin Rapids, Wis.; Guttorm Paulsen, Norge, Chicago; Harry Tregillis, Norge, Chicago; Laurence Maurin, Milwaukee-Oconomowoc, Wis.; Ted Petersen, Strum, Wis.; Jorgen Johansen, Rockford, Ill.; Jimmy Hendrickson, Canton, S. D.; La Moine Batson, Norge, Chicago; Peter Falstad, Devils Lake, N. D.; Gunnar Oman, Norge, Chicago; Walter Bietila, Ishpeming Ski club, Ishpeming, Mich.

Schroeder Is 10,000 Meter Skating Victor

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Robert Peterson of Milwaukee and Allan Potts, New York, were named as the remaining two members of the United States 1936 Olympic skating team as Eddie Schroeder of Chicago won the 10,000 meter event, the last of the trials which started here a week ago.

In winning the event today in 19:12.6, Schroeder came home first in three of the four events, taking the 1,500 meter race Sunday and the 5,000 event Tuesday night. He will be captain of the team which will compete at Berlin, Germany, next year.

Peterson Next Best.

Peterson made the second best time in the 10,000 race, setting up 19:27.1 to beat Harry Geogline of Milwaukee in the first heat. He also came in fourth in the 5,000 meter event and the officials decided his time gave him a place on the four man team.

The fourth place went to Delbert Lamb of Milwaukee, giving that city two places, as he won the 500 meter event last Sunday with a time of :44.8. Potts, who was disqualified and then reinstated, finished second in the 500 meter and third in the 1,500 meter race.

Henry Kemper of St. Louis, president of the A. A. U. Olympic Skating committee, said the two alternates would be chosen at a meeting of the committee later, probably in October. They will be selected on average time basis of the four events.

Kucera Is Fourth.

Al Kucera of Chicago, with a time of 19:27.8, finished third in today's race and Geogline fourth with a time of 19:29.5. Valentine Bialas, Utica, N. Y., was fifth with 19:35 and James Jaros, St. Paul, sixth with 19:39.2.

Schroeder needed 47 seconds to go around only three of the 25 laps, and his average was slightly more than 45 seconds. On the first four laps he bettered Peterson's time by eight seconds, and while he did not finish as strong as the Milwaukee boy, he maintained a steady pace all the way through.

Bialas, paired with the champion, put up a desperate attempt to better Peterson's record, but midway in his race slowed up too much, getting three :48 second laps and nearing that mark on four other attempts.

Race in Cold Wind.

A cold wind, coming from the north, swept over the course. As the first twosomes started the temperature was about 20 above but it fell about ten degrees during the four hours required to run off the event.

Summary:

10,000 METER.

FIRST HEAT—Harry Goegline, Milwaukee, 19:29.5; Robert Peterson, Milwaukee, 19:27.1.

Western State Triumphs Over Loyola, 42-33

Western State Teachers' college, Kalamazoo, Mich., spoiled Leonard D. Sachs' night at the Loyola gymnasium last night by defeating Loyola, 42 to 33. The Teachers built up a 22 to 12 lead in the first half.

After the Loyola coach had been presented with a trophy at the half in recognition of twelve years of service at the Rogers Park school, Loyola tried to add victory to the ceremonies. The accurate sharpshooting of Capt. John Miller and Arnold was too much for the inexperienced Loyola defense, however. The Western State combination scored 22 points. Lineup:

MULLEN, LEWIS MAY GET BAER TITLE BOUT HERE

Miami, Fla., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Unless Madison Square Garden finds an opponent for Max Baer, world's heavyweight champion, before the expiration of its option for a title bout on March 31, he may defend his title at Soldiers' field in Chicago next June, it was revealed today.

Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, revealed that he received an offer from Jim Mullen and Nate Lewis, Chicago promoters. Baer was offered 40 per cent of the gate receipts from Mullen and Lewis, who are financially backed by James Norris Sr. A $100,000 guarantee will be posted with the Illinois athletic commission if Baer accepts.

"I don't go for New York, anyway. Chicago is a swell place and I think we could put on a good show," Baer said.

Detroit Polo Team Beaten by Cleveland

Cleveland Riding club's polo team, 1934 national and Western champion, stepped out into an undisputed lead in the Metropolitan league senior division last night at the 124th Field Artillery arena, defeating the Detroit Eagles, 12½ to 6½, before a crowd of 9,000. The defeat placed Detroit in a five-way tie for second place.

The lead changed frequently until midway in the fourth period when the Cleveland trio drove through four goals in rapid succession. In that final assault all three members of the Buckeyes—A. Z. Baker, Bill Fergus, and Hank Evinger—figured in the scoring. Baker and Fergus tied for high point honors with six goals apiece.

A strong final chukker drive gave the Black Horse Troop a 5½ to 3½ victory over the Chicago Riding club in the junior division. The troop team waived its right to a 2 goal handicap. The troop, which is undefeated, pulled far out in the lead in the junior division Metropolitan league race.

Guy Bush Signs His '35 Contract with Pittsburgh

Guy Bush, former star Cub pitcher, yesterday signed his first contract to pitch for the Pittsburgh Pirates during the season of 1935. Guy said the first terms he had received from President Benswanger were "eminently satisfactory" and that the paper was returned with no hesitation over any of its clauses.

Bush never had signed a major league contract with any team other than the Cubs. He had affixed his name to an even dozen with the Cubs, and under these succeeded in winning 152 games while losing 101 in National league competition. He was the only pitcher to win a world series game in the nine played by the Cubs in 1929 and 1932.

After returning his contract to the Pirates yesterday, Guy said that he was confident he would give the Pirates a season performance equal to his all time best, his 1933 record in which, with an ordinary team, he won 20 games while losing 12.

Bonura Is No Holdout; Just Wants Raise

New Orleans, La., Jan. 19.—[U. P.]—Zeke Bonura, a genial son of old Italy who smacks a baseball with great relish, doesn't like the title "holdout" applied to him recently following contract troubles with the Chicago White Sox.

During winter months Zeke wrestles crates of produce and makes himself generally handy around his father's produce store.

Smiling in the genial manner which, with his heavy stick work, made him a hero to Chicago's Italian colony almost overnight, the big first baseman explained his situation today.

"Holdout is a bad name," he said. "It stands for trouble, arguments and such. I am no arguer, and I am no holdout.

"The management of the White Sox offered me a tentative contract. I didn't like it. I told them I wanted more salary. That was a business negotiation. Just a sort of preliminary to the actual business of signing up. I feel sure we'll get together right away."

Why a MISTLETOE MARTINI "tastes like more"

HOW different Martinis can taste! Those "made with Mistletoe" are smooth and delicious. The gin blends perfectly with either dry or Italian vermouth. The delicate flavor and bouquet whet the appetite and "taste like more."

The secret is in the Mistletoe formula — not successfully imitated since 1882 — and most expert and painstaking distillation. . . . Try a Mistletoe Gin — either Dry, Sloe or Tom — and "let the quality speak for itself."

RUTH'S CHANCES FOR POSITION AS MANAGER FADE

Boston Settlement May End Opportunities.

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—With the situation in the ranks of the Boston Braves considerably clarified as a result of the thirteen-hour special session which the club owners of the National league held last Friday, interest in local baseball circles today went back to its one remaining major problem of the current off-season.

Just what does 1935 hold in store for Babe Ruth, the game's greatest individual performer who repeatedly has asserted since last fall that he will never again sign a player's contract but who thus far has not succeeded in launching himself as a major league manager?

Boston Situation Settled.

The Boston situation may be said to have been definitely settled. There will be no dog racing at Braves field next summer, the Braves will continue to function on their historic stamping grounds and, barring unforeseen developments, necessary financial adjustments will be made in the club's affairs to assure the continuation of Judge Emil Fuchs as president.

Among close observers, the decision of the league owners to string along in their continued support of Judge Fuchs, once he alientated himself from any dog racing ideas, was seen as the definite elimination of Babe Ruth's last chance to connect himself as a manager for next season.

Rumor Is Unsupported.

During the days preceding Friday's special National league meeting, all sorts of rumors were abroad and not the least credited of these was one concerning the aging home run monarch. According to this report a way was to be found to bring the Braves into Fenway park as joint occupants with the Red Sox, Charles F. Adams was to succeed Judge Fuchs as president of the National league club and Adams would then install Ruth as the manager.

But now that no part of this program has been carried out, the legs apparently have been knocked right out from under the report and the Babe is still out in the cold so far as any managerial job is concerned. Not that Judge Fuchs holds anything against Ruth. But he has repeatedly committed himself to retaining Bill McKechnie as manager and insists he will not go back on that word, it is submitted.

No Opening For Ruth.

"I like Babe Ruth as well as anybody," said the judge just before returning to Boston Friday midnight, "and were the opportunity open I doubt whether I'd hesitate a second to make him an offer. But we feel McKechnie has been a very satisfactory manager for us and he can stay with me as long as he remains in baseball."

And so, with the Braves holding the same attitude that the Yankees themselves have taken, namely that their present incumbent is wholly satisfactory, the Babe seems further removed from his ambition to manage a major league club than ever.

All the other managerial portfolios in the two major circuits appear equally closed for 1935. There is still some slight talk that Connie Mack may find a way of bringing Ruth to the Athletics. But against this Mack himself repeatedly has asserted he means to continue as manager and Colonel Ruppert just as often has said that he will not release Ruth as a player.

Lynn Waldorf to Study Movies of Wildcat Eleven

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Lynn O. Waldorf, who faces one of the toughest assignments in the football coaching profession, at Northwestern university, hopped off the train here today with a suitcase full of movie films.

"I'm going to take those films of Northwestern's games last fall and run them again and again before going back to Evanston to start spring practice about the last week in February," he explained. "I hope to learn what those boys are capable of doing next fall."

"They seem big enough," he reported after a brief visit to the Northwestern campus. "Whether they're fast enough is something we'll have to find out. We will be pretty well fixed at every position except quarter back, and maybe a quarter back will turn up.

"System? I think we will get away somewhat from the Warner system and use something like we had at Kansas State last fall. There, I would say, we used the single wing back about 50 per cent of the time, and the other half of the time we had variations including the normal double wing back and a sort of cockeyed double wing back."

Waldorf is a believer in the value of motion pictures as an aid to football instruction.

"I think the best idea is to show the boys the previous year's pictures of the game, with the opponent they are to play next on the schedule."

He recalled that while he was playing tackle at Syracuse under Chick Meehan some of the first crude movie shots of football were taken.

"Neither Chick nor I noticed that I was stepping back from the scrimmage line with one foot before going in until we saw it in the movies. It was an involuntary movement, and I guess we corrected it after seeing those pictures."

The husky son of Bishop E. L. Waldorf of the Methodist Episcopal church believes Francis Schmidt's Ohio State eleven will be one of the best in the 1935 Big Ten race, probably on a par with Minnesota.

"This Schmidt is a fellow who picks up something about football wherever he goes. I remember one time down in Oklahoma he was a spectator at a high school game, and before it was over he had a whole notebook full of plays."

The popular south side course has been under control of the American Turf association, headed by Col. Matt J. Winn, since 1927. It is the home of the American Derby, won last year by Cavalcade, 3 year old champion.

New Deal Beats Late Date in Hialeah Race

Miami, Fla., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Running back to the fine form he showed as a 3 year old last year, J. W. Parrish's New Deal just lasted today to take the Granada handicap of one mile at Hialeah Park.

Jocky Eddie Arcaro, riding with a broken nose as the result of a recent tumble from a motorcycle, gave the son of Broadway Jones a strong whip finish to get him home a head victor over Late Date from the Brentwood stable. Fred Alger Jr.'s consistent Sabula was third, losing the place by five lengths.

The race, with six starters, was a wide open betting affair, New Deal going to the post favorite at slightly longer odds than 3 to 2. He ran the mile under 115 pounds in the good time of 1:37 2-5.

Sharing interest on the program, witnessed by a crowd of 10,000, was the one mile of the Seminole purse, in which eight 3 year olds, most of them eligible for the Florida Derby, faced the barrier. The winner turned up in William Woodward's Foxy Agnes, a daughter of Gallant Fox, which stepped off the eight furlongs in 1:37 4-5 under the light impost of 101 pounds.

Away last, the filly did not start her victorious bid until the far turn. Once Georgie Watson let her out, however, the Woodward miss ran a game race to beat the B. B. stable's Good Harvest by a nose. Dewey Bentham's Abner was third, four lengths behind and a length clear of S. H. Fairbanks' Earl Porter, the favorite.

IMPUNITY WINS AT N. O.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Impunity, a four year old gelding from J. J. O'Byrne's stable, surprised the field at the Fair Grounds today when he scored a driving victory in the Pansaretta handicap of six furlongs.

Content to run second while Mrs. E. B. Shipp's strongly supported Irene's Bob was setting the pace, Impunity, with Joe Jacobs in the saddle, closed strong in the stretch to win by a nose. Irene's Bob was second with B. J. Turing's Scythe third.

MICHIGAN MAT TEAM DEFEATS WILDCATS, 23-13

Michigan's wrestling team handed Northwestern its first defeat of the season yesterday, winning 23 to 13, at Patten gymnasium. The Wildcats previously had triumphed over Wisconsin.

The Wolverines piled up a commanding lead in the lighter divisions and then withstood a Northwestern rally in the heavier classes. Brooks and Heavenrich won by falls, and Capt. Harrod had a time advantage over Capt. Handley to give the Wolverines a 13 to 3 lead at the end of the first four matches.

King and Stanul of the Purple then pinned their rivals in the 155 pound and 175 pound classes, respectively, to cut into the Michigan lead.

Gibson, Northwestern, was unable to produce the fall which would have given the Wildcats a tie, and Wright pinned the Wildcat football tackle in 6:12.

Knox to Pick Football Coach from 10 Men

Galesburg, Ill., Jan. 19.—(AP)—From a list of ten brave, reckless souls, survivors of more than 200 who offered themselves, a football coach will be named next week to lead the gallant sons of old Siwash. Siwash is Knox.

The job of coaching a school holding a share of the intercollegiate record of 27 consecutive football defeats [junior college records not considered], with the end not yet in sight, might not appear attractive. But a company of wartime strength has applied for the position of head coach at Knox college. The list of candidates has been carefully screened by a committee of alumni and faculty men until only 10 remain.

The Big Day Nears!

From the ten one will be recommended to President Albert Britt, who will give his approval and make the announcement. President Britt is due to return from California early next week.

The leading candidate, from the latest reports, is Claud Harry [Satchel] Ludwick, an old Siwasher who played during the days when Knox was a power with which to be reckoned in football. Ludwick, a star half back at old Knox in 1919-'20-'21-'22, has coached successfully at Onarga, Ill., Military academy.

The names of all ten finalists have not leaked out, but three others, including a second Knox alumnus, Ray Holmes, have been mentioned. Holmes, a clever end, left Siwash in 1924. At present he is coach at East Moline, Ill., High school. The two others are Harry Bell, a Des Moines university graduate who coached at Lombard college and Butler university, and John Gillespie of Galesburg High school.

Freshman Squad Good.

Bell succeeded Paul Schissler, now coach of the Chicago Cardinals of the National Professional league, as head man at Lombard college. Lombard, a Galesburg neighbor of Knox, went out of existence several years ago. Bell is coaching now at Corpus Christi High school at Galesburg.

The new coach, whoever he turns out to be, will inherit from Lloyd Burdick, who lost weight and patience until he finally quit, one of the most promising freshman squads in Siwash gridiron history. Every one has promised to return to college next fall to lend his aid in the proposed march out of the football wilderness.

One of them, Tommy Larson, may not be among them, however. He suffered a serious abdominal wound yesterday when a shotgun he was cleaning accidentally discharged.

SASSE MAY COACH AT MISSISSIPPI STATE COLLEGE

Starkville, Miss., Jan. 19.—[U. P.]—Belief that Maj. Ralph Sasse, former Army coach, would become the next football coach at Mississippi State college was strengthened today when it was announced he would confer with college officials here tomorrow. Maj. Sasse is stationed at Fort Knox, Ky.

Capt. A. R. MacKechnie, Mississippi State's fourth coach in four years, resigned this week. Inability of his team to win in the Southeastern conference caused dissatisfaction, it was said.

Four Pros Tie with 70 Scores in Coast Golf

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A quartet of the country's leading professionals bettered par by two strokes today to tie for 18 hole leadership in the $2,500 Sacramento open golf tournament.

Gene Sarazen, New York; Charles Lacey, Great Neck, Long Island; Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., and Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill., turned in 70's over the long, windswept municipal links.

A stroke behind them were Jimmy Thomson, Long Beach, Cal., and Clarence Clark, Bloomfield, N. J.

Bracketed at 72 were Denny Shute, Philadelphia; Jim Demaret, Galveston, Tex., and Mark Fry, Oakland, Cal.

Arlen Shoots a 79.

Despite a chill wind, a large gallery turned out, with Walter Hagen, Detroit, and Richard Arlen, Hollywood film player, dividing most of the spectators with Sarazen and Ky Laffoon of Chicago.

Hagen toured the 6,787 yard course in 74, while Arlen, after playing a nice 37 on the out nine, took a 42 coming home for a 79.

Sarazen, cracking his tee shots down the middle and getting long distance, was out in 35. He three putted the 484 yard, par 5 second hole, but pitched five feet from the pin and ran down the putt for a birdie four on the 550 yard seventh. He gave the gallery a thrill on the ninth by laying a brassie second 12 feet from the pin and dropping a rolling putt for a birdie three. He ran off eight pars and a birdie three on the fourteenth to come home in 35.

Three Birdies for Smith.

Smith matched par 36 on the outward nine, dropped a stroke on the par four twelfth and recouped with three birdies and a par in the next four holes.

Lacey, with a great spoon on the second and another long wood on the seventh, got two birdie fours to go out in 34[and then ran off nine straight pars on the back side for a 36.

A long drive and a crisp brassie brought Picard to the 435 yard eighth green in two pretty shots, and he rolled in a short putt for a birdie to go out in 35. He picked up another birdie on the eleventh, lost his advantage when he took a five on the thirteenth, but followed up with a birdie on the fourteenth to come home with another 35.

Arlen and Hagen gave the big gallery around the ninth green a close-up of two of the best shots of the day. Hagen came within an ace of holing out a blast from a trap, while Arlen ran down a 37 foot putt for a par four.

BAER ARRIVES IN TAMPA FOR BOUT WITH CANCELA

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Max Baer, heavyweight champion of the fight world, and his party, came to town today—to a welcome by Mayor R. E. L. Chancey and more than 1,000 men, women, and children. Baer came here to box Tony Cancela, former local high school football star, in a four round exhibition match Monday night.

The welcome started at the outskirts of the city. There the champ boarded an official car and headed a siren-shrieking motor party downtown to the welcoming stand. Buddy Baer, Max's brother, and Ancil Hoffman, his manager, in another car, made straight for their hotel.

Waiting in Baer's room was a little middle aged woman.

"Aunt Mayme—Mrs. Wolf," shouted Max.

"My sugar plum," shrilled the woman.

It was the Baers' aunt, a local resident.

She commented that Max Baer was better looking than ever and recalled that the last time she saw him was when he was ten years old—in Denver, Colo.—and how Max was chased from school by his schoolmates.

WALES, ENGLAND PLAY 3 TO 3 TIE BEFORE 70,000

Turn Away 2,000 Fans at Rugby Match.

BY WILFRED BARBER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—England and Wales played to a 3 to 3 tie today in the first of the season's international Rugby football matches.

Seventy thousand fans jammed the stadium at Twickenham near London for the 80 minute battle which was the 47th between the English and Welsh teams. Two thousand more were turned away. Wales had won only once and tied once at this stadium and won only 18 times against England, but the betting was even.

No Heavy Padding.

Rugby football, as differentiated from the American game, has no first downs, no forward passes, no plunges through the line. There are no lines as American fans know them. No signals are called and there are no quarter backs, though several players fulfil the mechanical duties of American quarter backs.

Players, whose average age is 24 years, wore shorts, blue for Wales and white for England, red or white sweaters and no headguards. Some, however, wore ear guards.

England's three points were scored in the last few minutes of the game on a penalty kick. Wales made a try, tantamount to an American touchdown, but failed to convert the try, as the English call the attempt for extra point.

Plenty of Action.

The ball was constantly in motion and punts occurred every time a player decided to kick. Punts were much shorter than American kicks and the idea was not to gain distance, but to kick over the side line so the player may toss in the ball or over opponents' heads to a member of the kicker's team.

There was a great deal more passing—all lateral or backward—than in American football, though no Rugby player was able to achieve anything resembling distance American passes get.

Wales had a decided advantage in passing. England made so many fumbles an American coach would have resigned his position.

Instead of scrimmage, Rugby has the "scrum." Scrum consisted of nine forwards from each team, corresponding to guards, tackles and ends, throwing their arms around each other's shoulders and bending over as if in a huddle, with each side shoving against the other.

Heel Ball Back.

A half back then tossed the ball between the legs of the forwards from the side, and the forwards tried to heel it backward to a half back of their own team, who, like an American quarter back, tossed the ball to one of four other backs. England was better in scrum and got the ball more often than Wales. The man who got the ball started running and after a few fast, twisting steps passed or punted as soon as tackles closed in.

If he did not pass or punt, he was tackled, and the rules of Rugby require him to drop the ball between himself and the opponents' line. He must let go of the ball and cannot lie on it. Nothing prevented him from passing at the very moment he was tackled.

All tackles were shoulder high, but no one was injured. It is absolutely forbidden to make any interference for the ball carrier or knock down a man not carrying the ball. That would be violent Americanism and therefore is shunned by the British, several of whom remarked that the American game is "too utterly brutal."

Crowd Is Polite.

The crowd was very polite and there was not a cheerleader within miles.

There was plenty of shouting, all undistinguishable, but the height of British enthusiasm was reached when the gentlemen cried: "Well played, England" or "O, I say, well done Wales."

EARLY ENTRIES ALREADY EXCEED 2,000 FOR A. B. C.

Chicago Bowlers Make Plans for Trip.

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

Entries for the thirty-fifth annual tournament of the American Bowling Congress in Syracuse, N. Y., beginning on March 1 already are past the 2,000 mark, Elmer Baumgarten, A. B. C. secretary, reports. By the time the lists close on Feb. 1 the average of 6,882 contestants for the last decade is expected to be surpassed.

Chicago always sends a large delegation and although it is the east's turn to entertain the country's bowlers few tournament regulars will permit distance to interfere with plans to share in the prize distributed at the end of the year's biggest ten pin event. Not since 1931 when the old S. and L. Motors won the five man championship has Chicago captured a capital prize.

North End League.

Largely because of Joe Gratz's 728 series the Milfords regained first place in the North End Traveling league. Gratz shot 220, 233, and 275 to help his team sweep three from the Butterfingers. Pete Petersen lost ground, but continued to top the individuals with a 210 average.

On South Side Alleys.

Led by Tony McGlone with 635, the Everett Coals led the Woodlawn Major league with a 3,122 total. Individuals over 600 were: Bernhardt, 696; Sherman, 688; Skovie, 666; Thompson, 649; Cooksey, 643; McClintock, 633; Winsberg, 630; Brown, 624; Halgren, 619; Reinert, 619; Taylor, 614; Suss, 613; Garvey, 610; Armstrong, 609; Lightfoot, 608; Kobza, 608; Lassen, 606. The first 1935 member of the 400 club was Rys with 481. . . . Just look at the 700 series in the Bruck Major league: R. Hayes, 743; H. Heermans, 710, and R. Klem, 703. The W. G. Tegtmeier team collected an 1,130 game and the Stengel Florists, a 3,147 series. . . . The Wesley Smiths are leading the Stevenson and Schalk National league by two games with the Al Horans second and the Stevenson and Schalks third. High individual was Nolan with 651, followed by McClintock, 648; Schorling, 644; Konopha, 613, and Long, 616.

On North Side Alleys.

By shooting a 3,061 series the Curtiss Butterfingers won two games from Anheuser-Busch and increased their lead to three games in the Gold Coast Major league. Pullman sent in nine successive strikes, good for a 278, that led the Triangle Shirts to an 1,100 game. Daglow's 690 was high series. . . . The first half of the Chicago Junior Traveling league ended with the Ald. Orlikoskis on top with 22 won and 14 games. B. Ritter continues to the individual pace with a 200 average while the Luxor Cigars have high game of 1,092. . . . Clark-Lunt, led by S. Paulsen with 664 and C. Witry with 698, knocked off the leading Monte Cristos twice in the Northwest Travel-the league.

Classic League.

The Burlington Routes of the Randolph league will substitute for the Pabst Blue Ribbons against the leading Budweisers tonight in the Classic league matches at the Gold Coast Recreation. The Pabsts will be busy this afternoon and evening in a $1,000 match against the Hermann Undertakers of St. Louis at the Lorraine alleys. In other Classic matches tonight the La Salle-Windsors will meet Edelweiss, Vrba Motors will take on the Cardinals, and the Baby Ruths and Monarch Beers will battle for second place.

Randolph League.

All members of the Goldammer Milfords collected 600 or better against the Sunkist Pies, but they lost one of three games in the Randolph league. High individual were Walshon of Anheuser-Busch, 684; Dunn of Mineralites, 667; Pagni of Sunkist Pies, 664; Hall of Burlington Route, 665; Jerzyk and Spoden of Mell-O Ice Creams with 654 and 653, and Kraft of Milfords, 656.

About the Women.

Margaret Luchsinger clicked off games of 208, 193, and 232 for a 633 series in the Bruck Major league. Other leaders were Bernice Kemph, 592; Celia Rosecrans, 587; Bee Hochstadter, 574; Sara Evans, 554, and Carrie Enders, 549. . . . Mighty good for a mother and daughter combination is the 1,157 made by Mrs. B. Pherigo and Mrs. Vera Wells in the city tournament. . . . In the Railway Business Women's league Bessie Kelly shot a 226 game, Betty Wermuth 215, and Doris Schreiber 208.

Charlotte Ehrns' 165 average is best in the Samuelson Major league. High series were turned in by E. Sullivan, 556; A. Thielsen, 554; B. Ramsey, 544; A. Hogman, 533; C. Ehrns, 523; I. Johnson, 518; F. Roedell, 514; P. Strassburger, 503, and F. Scholz, 500. . . . Leading the bombardment in the Lorel Rug-Monte Cristo league were G. Ritchie, 594; B. Brown, 552; C. Ehrns, 522; M. Ledene, 510, and G. Griffon, 505. . . . High game and series both fell to Mrs. Ann Voet when she shot 210, 168, and 222—660 in the Garden Recreation Thursday Afternoon league.

Kent Furs and Nedlog Oranges again are tied for first place in the Pioneer Major league with 32 won and 22 lost. Sharpshooters were Emily Stylo, 586; Lee Schulz, 574; M. Fechtmeyer, 566; Mary Butler, 556; Hilma Krueger, 552; Alice Gay, 542; Clara Hartwig, 532.

Windy City League.

The Soper Brothers gave the O'Keefe Coals help in holding their lead in the Windy City Major league by whipping the Mineralites twice. Jelik paved the way for the Soper Brothers' achievement with a 692 series.

Here and There.

Ralph Blank tied high individual game of 276 in the Butler Brothers league and at the same time helped the Cubs establish season high series record of 2,867. . . . Two squads will occupy the alleys this afternoon in the sixth North End Traveling league sweepstake at the Gold Coast alleys. The Milfords, winners of four of the five sweeps, will shoot in the evening. . . . L. and J. Kulik won the 18th annual father and son tournament at the 131 South Wabash Recreation by scaling 1,232.

Ross to Defend Welter Crown Against Klick

Champions

[JUNIOR WELTERWEIGHTS.]

Barney Ross, Chicago, 1935.
Tony Canzoneri, New York, 1933.
Battling Shaw, New Orleans, 1933.
Johnny Jadick, Philadelphia, 1932.
Tony Canzoneri, 1931.
Jackie [Kid] Berg, London England, 1930
Mushy Callahan, Los Angeles, Cal., 1926.
Pinkey Mitchell, Milwaukee, Wis., 1922.

Barney Ross of Chicago will defend his junior welterweight boxing championship in a twelve round bout with Frank Klick, San Francisco, Cal., at Miami, Fla., Thursday. The stipulated poundage, 140, is a weight which will be easy for both. It may be harder for Klick, whose weight is 130, to come in over 135 in order to safeguard Barney's lightweight crown. Neither this title nor Klick's junior lightweight crown will be at stake.

Ross will be making his eighth defense of the junior welterweight throne since he earned it, in addition to the lightweight title, when he defeated Tony Canzoneri in ten rounds at Chicago Stadium June 23, 1933. His first defense of it was against Johnny Farr of Cleveland, O., whom he knocked out at Kansas City, Mo. In others he whipped Canzoneri for the second time, with both crowns at stake, and Sammy Fuller, Pete Nebo, and Bobby Pacho, twice. A ten round draw with Klick at San Francisco accounts for the other.

The champion did not appear at his best in his previous effort against Klick and some critics give the Californian a better than even chance to win the 140 pound championship.

Frank Wolfram, Winnipeg, Man., featherweight, took his first Chicago workout yesterday for a ten round tussle with Everett [Young] Rightmire, Sioux City, Ia., tomorrow at Midway arena. He displayed the ability which earned him two previous decisions over Rightmire, one by a knockout. In two other meetings Rightmire won the award each time. Everett has been victorious in nine of his eleven engagements here. In the two others he lost to Leo Rodak and held Jimmy Christy to a draw.

Laddie Tonelli and Puggy Weinert, welterweight rivals, will conclude drills today for their eight round topliner at Marigold gardens tomorrow. It will be their second encounter. Last Aug. 14 Tonelli was given a disputed verdict over Puggy at Western stadium.

Joe Louis, spectacular 20 year old heavyweight, will go to Los Angeles, Cal., tomorrow to begin preparations for a ten round conflict with Lee Ramage there Feb. 21. He will be accompanied by the youngest of four sisters, Miss Veunis Barrow, 19 years old. The boxer's full name is Joe Louis Barrow. His father, Mont Barrow, died when Joe was a little fellow in Montgomery, Ala. Joe lives with his mother, now Brs. Lily Brooks, and his stepfather and sister at 2992 Clinton street, Detroit, Mich. He has three elder brothers, none of whom is a boxer.

The 1934 Chicago Golden Gloves light heavyweight champion, a great admirer of his sister, Veunis, says he will pay her college tuition fees after she is graduated from high school this June. Louis' scholastic education did not go much further than grade school. When about 16 years old he enrolled in a Detroit trade school, where he was taught to be an automobile mechanic. This knowledge was put to use while he was an employé in the Ford motor plant. He decided to turn professional last June 12, and so quit his job.

Louis had received $25 a week while employed by the Ford company, a sum he now earns after only a few seconds of fighting. He was paid $50 for his first pro encounter in Chicago last July 4, when he knocked out Jack Kracken in one round. His purses have been gradually increased since then.

MOTOR CARS TO RACE TONIGHT ON ARMORY TRACK

The eighth series of indoor auto races will be held tonight at the 124th Field Artillery armory, largest indoor auto race track in America.

Three drivers who arrived yesterday afternoon will make their first appearances at the armory tonight. Ronnie Household of Los Angeles heads the list of out-of-town drivers. He rates high among the leading drivers in the United States.

Harry and Marshall Lewis are the other two pilots who will make their debut tonight. Harry will drive around the track twice blindfolded before the races start. He will also compete in the races.

Marshall Lewis is from Hollywood and holds many records on the coast. He will drive a new car.

Jimmy Snyder, Harold Shaw, Tony Willaman, Jimmy Rogers, Ted Hartley, Ted Tetterton, and Shorty Sorenson will have plenty on their hands tonight when they compete against these champions from the coast.

There will be eleven events headed by the race that will decide the Chicago champion. There will also be a twenty lap race that will draw more than fifteen cars to the post.

Culver Cadets Defeat Central Y. M. C. A., 31-14

Culver, Ind., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Culver Military academy opened its basketball season with a 31 to 14 victory over Central Y. M. C. A. of Chicago tonight. The Cadets led throughout, the score being 13 to 7 at the half. Hook, Cadet center, scored 11 points.

Boy Dies from Blow on Head During Hocky Game

Nashville, Ill., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Harvey Zacheis, 12, died today at his home at Cordes, Ill., from injuries suffered yesterday when a schoolmate accidentally hit him on the head in a hocky game. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Zacheis.

Lott's Chicago Pro Debut on Card Saturday

William Tatum Tilden and his tennis colleagues, George Lott, Ellsworth Vines and Lester Stoefen will be in Chicago next Saturday night for one of their series of exhibitions at the 108th Engineer's Armory, 34th street and Wentworth avenue.

A capacity crowd is expected to view this match. Chicogans are apparently eager to see Lott, former University of Chicago star make his first appearance in his home town as a professional against his old time enemy of ameteur days, Tilden.

After this singles contest, Lott and Stoefen, national doubles champions, will play Tilden and Vines.

In more than a half century of tennis only two players have won the national doubles championship with three different partners. Tilden is one of them and Lott is the other.

Big Bill was victorious with Vincent Richards, Brian I. C. Norton, of South Africa and Francis T. Hunter. Lott triumphed with John Hennessey of Indianapolis, John Hope Doeg, of Santa Monica, Cal., with whom he twice annexed the title, and his present partner, Stoefen.

Most anything is liable to happen when these two teams meet. In one match played in the East last week one set was probably a record for tournament play, lasting for sixty games before Lott and Stoefen finally broke service and won the set at 31-29.

Vines, present world professional champion, will meet Stoefen in the last match.

Two Amateur Hocky Leaders to Clash Today

The undefeated Baby Ruth team and the Boston Store, co-leaders of the Chicago Amateur Hocky league, will meet at the Stadium this afternoon, the C. Y. O. All-Stars clashing with Postls in the opener at 2 o'clock.

The Ruths handed the Boston Store its only setback in four starts, but the merchants since have added Al Carlson, Lawrence Bots, and Dominik Blatnik in the front line and Bill Nord on defense.

The Ruths also have additional strength in John Rozinka, Albert Soumi, Leonard Saari, and Paul Schaefer, who played with the midwest championship Eveleth Junior college six.

The Intermediate league will play three games at 55th and Kolin avenue, the first game starting at 1 o'clock with the Lawn Arrows meeting Austinites, followed by Hammond Rangers vs. Roseland Phantoms and St. Nicholas vs. Berwyn Shamrocks.

THERE'S WORK AHEAD, ALEX!

Hunters Again to Need Duck Stamps in '35

BY BOB BECKER.

Although no duck hunter knows just what kind of a hunting season we will have next year, nor does anybody else at this particular time, the duck stamp which we will have to purchase and affix to our state hunting license next season has been designed. Therefore, the first step toward the 1935-'36 waterfowl season has been taken officially.

The new duck stamp is the work of Frank W. Benson, the noted American painter, who has been called the dean of American duck etchers. His design depicts three canvasbacks in their first sweep through the air after taking off from the water.

Diving Ducks Next Year.

With the 1934-'35 duck stamp featuring mallards and the stamp for next season depicting canvasbacks, the government can't be accused of favoring any particular kind of ducks. This year the play was on the marsh or puddler ducks. Next season the open water or diving ducks are going to stimulate the imagination of waterfowl hunters when they look at their duck stamps.

Like this season's stamp, which may still be purchased at the postoffice, the one for 1935-'36 will be on sale at postoffices for $1 next fall. The program calls for 90 per cent of all the proceeds from the sales to be used in acquiring refuge areas in connection with the biological survey's work of waterfowl restoration. Although we haven't received any very late figures on the sale of duck stamps this season, it appears as if a sum of $500,000 at least will go into the biological survey fund to purchase duck marshes.

Open Game Conference.

Starting tomorrow, the survey scientists, the state conservation departments, Canadian investigators and authorities, and others will lay down their smoke screen on the waterfowl situation, because the annual American Game conference being held in New York gives all the boys a chance to quote their figures, offer their opinions and enjoy a merry fight about what should or should not be done on the waterfowl question.

Illinois will be represented at this conference by at least three men who can think straight on the duck and goose situation. They are Brooke Anderson, a member of the migratory waterfowl advisory board; Charles F. Thompson, head of the department of conservation of the state, and S. Barry Locke, manager of the Izaak Walton league.

NORTHWEST CLUB SKATE DERBY ON SCHEDULE TODAY

The Northwest Skating club will hold its 43d annual skating Derby this afternoon at Humboldt park. The Derby was originally scheduled for Jan. 6 but on account of warm weather was moved up.

A complete list of events will be provided for all classes, and will include a half-mile and one mile race for the class A skaters, one mile for class AA, one mile for class B, one mile for class C and novice skaters. Half-mile for class A ladies and quarter-mile for class B ladies; the intermediate boys, under 18 years, will skate a one mile race, junior boys one-half mile and the juvenile boys one-quarter mile.

A gold trophy will be awarded the team scoring the greatest number of points. The Northwest club will make a strong bid for this trophy, being represented in the class A races by Corny Ewerts, winner of the Silver Skates Derby last Sunday, and Wallace Fee Jr., the runner-up. In the class A women's events the club will have skating under its colors Erica Bock McConnell, the winner of the women's Silver Skates Derby last Sunday.

Both Wilbur Marks Menne of the Norwegian-American A. A. and Eddie Stundl of the Olympic Skating club, who competed in the 500 meter trials at Minneapolis, have returned to Chicago and will skate in the two class A events.

HAWKS GET NEW CHANCE TONIGHT TO BEAT LEAFS

Levinsky Counted On for Plenty of Help.

The Blackhawks and the Toronto Maple Leafs, who put on one of the thrillers of the hocky season last Tuesday, tonight will go out to do it all over again at the Chicago Stadium. The Leafs won Tuesday night, 3 to 2, in the closing minutes.

Toronto's speed and scoring record stamp the team as one of the finest that ever played hocky. Charlie Conacher and Busher Jackson are No. 1 and No. 2 public enemies to the rest of the league because of their scoring leadership.

Tough on Defense, Too.

King Clancy and Red Horner, one of the most belligerent defense pairs in the league, are having a battle to hold their regular jobs because Happy Day and Flash Hollett are performing so well. In the game here last week Manager Connie Smyth jerked Clancy and Horner to substitute Day and Hollett every time the Leafs were short handed with a man in the penalty box and the Hawks were putting on the pressure.

The Blackhawk defense will be stronger for tonight's game, with Alex Levinsky doing his share. There has been nothing lacking in defensive play with Coulter and Burke on the blue line, but the two Hawk regulars have been so overworked for 50 minutes a game on the ice that their offensive value has suffered. Now with Levinsky, purchased this week from the Rangers, Manager Loughlin has an experienced defense relief man and can rest Coulter and Burke. Coulter got two of the Hawks' five goals at St. Louis Thursday night when the presence of Levinsky on the ice gave him some much needed rest periods.

New Second Line.

Injuries to Doc Romnes and Donnie McFadyen, both of whom came out of the St. Louis fray with shoulder separations that will keep them on the hospital list for at least two weeks, caused Manager Loughlin to arrange a new second front line. Gottselig, Morenz and March will continue to operate at the first line, and the third line, composed of Trudel, Cook, and Kendall, remains intact. The new second line combination will be Thompson, Couture and Locking.

Marty Burke and Art Weibe, who were minor casualties in the St. Louis game, reported for practice yesterday and will be ready for the Maple Leaf game. Burke had a charlie horse that responded to treatment, while Weibe's sprained thumb won't keep him out of duty.

Levinsky, the new Hawk defense man, seemed greatly pleased with the deal that brought him from the Rangers to Chicago last week. New York had five defense men and, despite the fact that Alex was one of the best young defense men in the league, he was not getting much work. Ching Johnson and Earl Seibert, the regular Ranger defense pair, saw to it that the younger Rangers were used only for occasional relief duty.

Probable starting lineup:

BLACKHAWKS.		MAPLE LEAFS.
Chabot	G	Hainsworth
Weibe	L. D.	Day
Coulter	R. D.	Hollett
Trudel	L. W.	H. Jackson
Cook	C	Primeau
Kendall	R. W.	Conacher

Schwabens to Battle Sparta Eleven Today

The Lawndale Rangers will oppose the Schwaben Reserves in a preliminary game which will start at 1 o'clock.

Several other teams in the Chicago district will continue preparations for the national challenge cup competition. The Wieboldt Wonderbolts, undefeated in the Chicago area, and favorites to win the trophy, will meet Olympias at DePaul stadium, Sheffield and Webster avenues.

The Wonderbolts will meet Detroit in their cup match on Feb. 3. In a preliminary contest today the Viennas will play Sloboda at 1 o'clock.

The Maccabees will meet the Hungarian-Americans at Maccabee field this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

PIRATE CATCHER, DEMONSTRATING TRACTOR, IS HURT

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Badly bruised while demonstrating a tractor in Attala county, Hal Finney, 28 year old catcher, under contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates, was in a hospital today.

The tractor rolled under a tree and a limb snapped back and hit Finney on the head. He was said to be responding to treatment satisfactorily at the hospital here.

Finney was farmed out to Albany in the International league last summer. He probably will report to the Pirates' spring training camp in California next month.

EUROPE RUSHES GOLD HERE TO BEAT DECISION

Fear Return to Old Price of Metal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Uncertainty regarding the future of the dollar is causing gold hoarders in London hastily to dispatch large shipments of the metal to the United States.

It is feared here that if the Supreme court decides that congress acted unconstitutionally in revoking the gold clause the dollar will revert to its former value and the gold price in the United States will fall accordingly. As a result gold held in London, mostly by foreigners, is being rushed to the United States in order to insure obtaining the present price of $35 an ounce.

The United States liner Manhattan today sailed with gold valued at $12,500,000 and $7,500,000 in silver bars in its strong room. The North German Lloyd Europa also sailed with gold estimated at $6,250,000. Between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 of gold was shipped to the United States on the Berengaria Wednesday, bringing the total of gold and silver shipments to more than $50,000,000 in four days.

Gold Currencies Firmer.

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The gold bloc currencies showed further slight improvement in the foreign exchange market today. Dealings were extremely dull, however, and many quotations were unchanged from the previous day.

The French franc gained ¼ point to 6.58¾ cents, at which level it was still under its gold export point. Sterling was ¼ cent higher at $4.88¼. Guilders dropped 2 points, while belgas and Swiss francs were unchanged. At the closing price on the French franc the dollar was worth $1.0070 against the franc, compared with $1.0074 yesterday. The gold value of the dollar, based upon the old par of the franc, was 59.47 cents, compared with 59½ cents yesterday and par of 59.06 cents.

HIGH PRESSURE BUSINESS

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A group of men, whose activities are something of a mystery even to most members of the Wall street financial community, suddenly thrust themselves into the financial limelight this week. Foreign exchange traders swung into spectacular action as the dollar soared in a few hours of trading to levels not equaled since it was revalued in terms of gold in January, 1934.

In the boom years of 1928 and 1929 these agents of forces which swing huge amounts back and forth throughout the world had been almost forgotten in their inconspicuous offices in the great banking institutions. Engaged for the most part, in those days, with supplying moneys for our external trade and foreign lending business, the importance of their activities as fundamental mirrorings of the ebb and flow of confidence in this or that monetary unit was largely obscured.

Deal With World Events.

Such world important events as the collapse of the Austrian Credit-Anstalt in June, 1931, and the departure of England from the gold standard in September of that year emphasized the importance of the rôle played by the foreign exchange traders in the international financial drama.

They became the instrumentalities of that wild scurrying of liquid funds from country to country, as first one center and then another showed apparent signs of monetary difficulties which might endanger the established values of balances held there.

The sharp upward surge in dollars which occurred in the early days of last week was another chapter in this striving for monetary stability. Those with balances abroad were faced with the possibility of a sharp depreciation in their value if the Supreme court should render a decision in the gold clause cases which would reëstablish the dollar at its old gold value.

Foreign Funds Dumped on Market.

The immediate reaction of those having such funds was to dump them on the foreign exchange markets and to seek the dollar before it might rise. Such a course was equally advantage to those who speculate in exchanges or those who keep foreign balances for business purposes.

Probably no more hard working members of the financial community exists than the dealer or broker in exchange. His business, conducted after a network of private telephone lines connecting every important banking house in the financial district and even in other cities, is perhaps the busiest and most exciting of all the Wall street occupations in a period of crisis such as has just occurred.

With as many as half a dozen telephones before him, the exchange trader, with his fellows, sits at a long table conducting one of the major markets of the world and setting, in a free trading market, the value of the dollar against the principal moneys of the globe.

Trading Around the Clock.

His day extends the clock around as he follows markets separated by half a world and as much as 13 hours of time. London, the most active of exchange markets, begins to trade while the New York exchange man is still in his bed in the morning, but many an executive in the foreign departments of New York's banks is awakened at 5 o'clock as a clerk relays the opening rates there and gets instructions for cabled orders to buy or sell.

Nor does his day end when late afternoon closes dealings in New York. By 9 o'clock in the evening, New York time, it is already mid-morning of the following day in Shanghai, the leading mart for silver currencies. Most of the men responsible for the funds of the great New York banks held in the far east are appraised of the market trends in far-off China before at last they turn in for the brief snooze before the London opening.

Britons on Jobs Equal to Peak, Says Minister

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions, has given general pleasure by declaring roundly: "As many people are actually at work in Great Britain today as there ever have been in the history of the country."

The ministry of labor, it should be noted, has never actually claimed this, possibly because the total employment can only be estimated. At the same time it is assumed that Thomas, as a member of the government, must have had official support for his statement.

Across the North sea is Sweden, another member of the sterling bloc. Sweden does not go so far as Thomas does but it does state that more people are gainfully employed in Sweden today than since 1920. Argentina, a third member of the bloc, is easily leading all other South American countries toward recovery.

Doubtful of Stabilization.

Unquestionably it is this sense of the sterling area's relative prosperity which makes Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, reluctant to consider proposals for international currency adjustments. He feels that Britain does pretty well and hesitates to commit himself to any change.

But British industrial shares have been marking time for nine long months and market letters of brokerage firms are beginning to show signs of strain. The decline in business activity during the second half of 1934 will be reflected in a crop of poorer earnings during the next six months. The market will need something cheerful and positive if it is to resist the effect of these reports.

There is accordingly a very noticeable tendency for London market letters—in marked contrast with those of Wall street firms—to swing to the left in the sense of suggesting that the government's piecemeal attack upon the depression might safely be superseded now by a bolder program.

If these brokers' circulars are fairly representative of informed financial opinions then London's City is much closer to that little band of left wing conservatives [headed by Capt. Harold Macmillan the publisher] when urging a "planned economy" than it is to the weary Titans in the cabinet.

And it is precisely this issue which gives unusual interest to the forthcoming speeches by officials of the great joint stock banks at the annual meetings this month. Reginald McKenna, chairman of the Midland bank, has long hammered away at this without any support from his colleagues and rival chairmen of other big banks. If the latter now bless in sonorous phrases the idea that the public will stand behind the government in formulating cautiously a British recovery plan, things are quite certain to quicken their pace here. If not the national government may find a certain fretfulness in the city where it is accustomed to look for applause.

NIRA INTRASTATE INDUSTRY RULES HELD ILLEGAL

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Federal Judge Alexander Akerman held today that the National Industrial Recovery act is unconstitutional in so far as it attempts to regulate wages, hours and prices of a purely intrastate manufacturing plant.

The decision was made in a case brought by the government against Logan A. George, in an effort to enjoin him from alleged violations of the lumber code.

Evidence in the case showed George was engaged in the manufacture of lumber, principally railroad car decking, in Florida, and while his manufacturing plant and the material used by him was situated within the state his output was principally sold to railroad companies, f. o. b. his mill, and transported in interstate commerce.

Reserve City Bankers' Chief Will Speak Here on Jan. 24

COMMODITY PRICES UNEVEN; THREE REACH NEW HIGH FOR SEASON

Commodity prices showed a highly irregular trend last week. The influence of the pending gold case continued to bring selling into most markets, with price declines. However, new high prices for the season were recorded by three commodities—butter, eggs, and cottonseed oil. Most other commodities, including all grain futures, closed at small losses.

The following table shows Saturday's close, final quotations a week ago, and the high and low quotations for the season:

Steel Leaders Predict Vast Future Needs

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Long term prospects of the steel industry far overshadow recent gains in production, steelmen believe. Obsolescence of the last few years has built up a tremendous potential backlog, while the steady appearance of new uses through improvements and inventions is expected to bring marked expansion.

Much, however, depends on the opening up of long term credit facilities. Banks are looking with greater favor on medium term loans, but most of this is going into rehabilitation and modernization, and little into new construction. Revival of the capital goods market, it is felt, must await a more friendly attitude by investors. Another deterrent to immediate expansion is the railroad industry, for years one of the greatest markets for steel.

Predict Better Railroad Buying.

Authorities declare, however, that this field is by no means dead and that railroads will continue to form the backbone of the nation's transportation system. As a result, steelmen predict the carriers will again assume their position as a principal customer. They cite the fact that many lines are sadly in need of new track. Only 15 per cent of present motive power is efficient, and machine shops and equipment are obsolete, they assert. Lighter rolling stock for freight service is receiving marked attention, and general rehabilitation is needed in many lines, it is declared.

Another major opportunity is provided in the building field, where new devices and new methods are making many fairly modern buildings obsolete. Air conditioning will be demanded before long, which, it is said, will require razing thousands of structures not capable of being air conditioned efficiently.

Homes, Farms New Outlets.

Homes and farms provide almost virgin territory. Present estimates disclose this field can absorb 1,500,000 tons of steel annually. Steel homes, steel barns, corn cribs and grain storage facilities, and fence posts are only a few outlets cited. Savings in insurance through utilization of steel barns will be enormous, it is predicted.

The refrigeration industry, while essentially a boon to the electric power field, has used large amounts of steel. Business is bolstering tonnage through its use of steel desks and furniture, while homes, clubs, and hotels are steadily expanding their use of all types of steel furniture.

The latest new outlet which improved manufacturing processes have made possible is the steel automobile top. Each day sees the laboratory turning out additional fields for utilization.

In some quarters it is said a tapering off in aggregate tonnage may occur because of the introduction of lighter weight alloys, but the steel so produced is of higher grade and the price is consequently greater, so that revenues should hold the same relative parity.

1½ BILLION LENT, FCA HAS TASK OF GETTING IT BACK

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Albert S. Goss, land bank commissioner of the Federal Farm Credit administration, said here today that with one and a half billion dollars in land bank and commission loans made since the organization of the FCA in May, 1933, "the next big problem will be to get it back."

"If, in making a loan, we left the farmer carrying more debts than he could pay, we have failed in doing the job congress assigned to us," he said. "We have tried to do it well, and it is my belief that with the return of normal prices our borrowers can meet their payments except in cases of sickness or other exceptional circumstances.

"There will be cases where the borrower either can't or won't pay. If he can pay, but refuses to do so, this means foreclosure. The problem then is to determine just when foreclosure is justified. I speak of foreclosure only because I think it will keep in mind that pay day is coming."

26 Favorable Dividend Actions Voted in Week

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Favorable dividend action was taken by 26 corporations last week against 39 the week before, Standard Statistics company reports. There were 4 unfavorable announcements compared with 2 in the previous week.

ROCKEFELLER REPORTS STOCK HOLDINGS CUT BY ABOUT 48 MILLION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—John D. Rockefeller Jr. today filed a second report of his stock holdings with the securities and exchange commission showing that in December he had disposed of about 48 million dollars of Standard Oil stocks. This revision left him with holdings valued at about 201 millions.

John N. Willys, slated to return to direction of the motor car company bearing his name, was shown to hold 26,800 common shares of Affiliated Products, Inc.

The report showed that he has sold his 1,420 preferred shares in Fisk Rubber corporation. Willys also holds 3,200 common, 380 shares of 6½ per cent preferred, and 530 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock in Consolidated Cigar corporation, and 4,653 shares of Warren Foundry and Pipe Co. common.

CUT COMMUTER FARES TO CITIES ON NORTH SHORE

Passenger fare reductions between Chicago and Kenosha, Racine and Milwaukee, will be inaugurated by the Chicago & North Western railway Feb. 1 with the introduction of ten ride commutation tickets between these points.

A saving of 38 per cent will be provided over the one way first class tarif. The first class rate between Chicago and Kenosha is $1.56. The new ticket, good for a year, will cost the passenger 95 cents a ride. The tickets, good in parlor cars with the payment of additional seat charges, will be honored on all trains including the new high speed "400," which stops only at Milwaukee.

COTTON CONTROL FOR 1936-'37 CROP TO BE PROPOSED

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Legislation authorizing extension of the Bankhead compulsory cotton control act through the 1936-37 crop year will be presented to congress soon with the administration's approval, Senator Bankhead, co-author of the measure, announced today.

Continuation of the present cotton loan policy whereby twelve cents a pound is advanced to farmers against all cotton still in their possession for which they have warehouse receipts was also predicted by the senator, if that is necessary to maintain the incomes of producers at existing levels.

NEVADA SUES U. S. SHIP LINES FOR $9,608 TAX

Reno, Nev., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A petition seeking to compel the United States Steamship Lines to pay taxes to the state of Nevada on ten steamships was filed in District court today. The company is incorporated under the laws of Nevada.

The petition, filed by the Washoe county district attorney and the attorney general of Nevada, asks the court to cite the company to pay $9,608.

Roosevelt Kin Once Sued for Gold Payment

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Briefs of government counsel in the 69 billion dollar gold clause cases now awaiting decision by the United States Supreme court rely heavily upon the famous legal tender cases of the Civil war greenback era, particularly upon Knox vs. Lee. But the first of the legal tender cases to reach the court is not cited as a precedent. It is the case of Roosevelt vs. Meyer, 1 Wallace 512.

Shortly after congress passed the legal tender act of Feb. 25, 1862, there came due on a mortgage held by James J. Roosevelt of New York City the sum of $8,171, principal and interest, payable in gold. Lewis Meyer, the mortgagor, proffered the amount in the new United States notes which congress had made legal tender, but Mr. Roosevelt demanded gold or the equivalent thereof.

One of President's Family.

This Roosevelt, who was an uncle of Theodore Roosevelt and thus a member of the family of Franklin D., accepted the $8,171 only under protest and on condition that final determination should be made by the courts. So Meyer sued Roosevelt for his mortgage in the New York Supreme court and lost, that court holding that he owed Roosevelt an additional $326.78.

Meyer appealed to the New York Court of Appeals and won, that court holding the act of congress valid. Roosevelt then sued out a writ of error to the United States Supreme court in an effort to get his gold or the extra $326.78.

Supreme Court Refuses Review.

The Supreme court did not decide the case, for under the judiciary act of 1789 it could not entertain jurisdiction on appeal from the highest court of a state where that court had sustained an act of congress. Had the New York court held otherwise, the Supreme court could have acted, and historians are agreed that subsequent American history would not have been the same. This was in 1863, and the court at that time undoubtedly would have declared the law invalid by a large majority.

In 1869 the legal tender act was held unconstitutional, in Hepburn vs. Griswold, but in 1871 the act was sustained in Knox vs. Lee. In the meantime a vacancy on the court had been filled, there had been an appointment to a new judgeship, and President Grant had been accused of packing the court.

Roosevelt vs. Meyer remains as a curious bit of legal lore, but not as a precedent for Roosevelt vs. All the gold bond holders in the United States.

TVA Asks Continuance of Power Control Suit

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Tennessee Valley authority today moved for a continuance of the suit filed by preferred stockholders of the Alabama Power company to halt the TVA's "yardstick" power program in north Alabama. Judge W. I. Grubb of United States District court here set the motion for hearing Friday. The suit had been set for hearing Jan. 28.

Insurance Companies Pledge Support of New Illinois Code

Full coöperation to obtain proposed changes in the Illinois insurance code was pledged yesterday by Illinois life insurance companies through Henry Abel, vice president of the Franklin Life Insurance company of Springfield, at a hearing before the state insurance commission in the Hotel La Salle.

While admitting the revisions will impose stringent restrictions, Abel said from a long range standpoint they will result in further strengthening of life companies in this state. However, the provisions, which he termed the most severe in the country, will enable Illinois concerns to demonstrate that the seal of approval on a life insurance company by the state of Illinois marks a company of outstanding strength.

Pledge Made at Hearing.

His statement was made at a hearing at which insurance concerns have been stating objections and proposing changes before submission of the bills to the legislature sometime in February.

Abel said a committee of state insurance companies spent ten days analyzing the new code and prepared a number of changes in the preliminary draft.

"These suggestions were discussed with Ernest Palmer, state director of insurance," he said, "and practically all differences were ironed out to the satisfaction of every one. We are not in complete agreement, but it is hoped the commission and department will give further consideration to the few remaining unsettled recommendations."

Expects Modifications.

He said the proposed changes do not lower the standard of conservatism which the code commission set up in its original draft, and for that reason the modifications probably will be incorporated in the final law.

Andrew Gates, attorney for the Travelers Insurance company, complained the new law would prohibit life companies from handling workingmen's compensation and liability insurance.

"That is just exactly what we want it to do," Palmer said. "Writing of such insurance will be barred to life firms and must be handled by concerns dealing only in those classes of risk."

BULGE IN STEEL STOCKS SHOVES MART UPWARD

Senior Shares Lively; Volume Shrinks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 19.—Prices fluctuated within a narrow range in an extremely dull trading session on the New York Stock exchange today until a flurry of buying in the steel shares gave the list an upward tilt. The majority of active issues went into the overnight record showing fractional gains. U. S. Steel common and Bethlehem finished about a point higher, and some of their satellites improved their rating proportionately.

Estimates of steel mill operations at Youngstown placed the operating rate for next week at 64 per cent of capacity, a jump of four points over this week and the sharpest January upswing on record for that district. Some of the farm implements also looked up a bit. J. I. Case, the leader of the group, rose more than a point, and smaller gains were scored by International Harvester and Deere.

Preferred Issues Lively.

Preferred issues cavorted after a fashion on both sides of the line. The senior stock of Associated Dry Goods, which essayed a mild display of fireworks on helpful dividend news yesterday, fell off its perch today for a count of 4 points. Activity in the A and B shares of Radio was much more subdued and the changes were fractional. Other preferred stock swings to attract attenion were those of Colorado Fuel, Bush Terminal, Otis Steel and Pressed Car, which rose from 3 to 6 points, and those of Spalding and Johns-Manville, which dropped 3 points or so each.

There was some activity in low priced carrier shares on reports from Washington that provisions permitting the RFC to scale down the outstanding railroad debt through open market purchases of rail bonds at depressed prices will be provided by amendments to the existing act.

Oils and Mines Mark Time.

Oils continued to mark time, ignoring gasoline price rises in the New York metropolitan district. The mining shares were likewise neglected.

Meanwhile, week-end market letter comment agreed that as further evidences of business improvement come along sentiment grows a little more confident. Items of news which created a favorable impression included weekly trade reviews, railroad car loading data showing a somewhat better than seasonal gain in freight movement and an increase of about 36 per cent in bank clearings.

While the gold clause scare still causes sufficient uncertainty to restrict trading, actual fear of the pending Supreme court decision is being allayed as the foreign exchange market shows more stability. The fall of stock prices was largely in sympathy with the alarming unsettlement early in the week in the international money market.

GOLD PAYMENT CLAUSE FOUND IN U. S., STATE AND CORPORATE BONDS

Interest in the gold clause abrogation case now pending before the United States Supreme court brings into sharp relief promises made by various federal, state, and corporate issuing bodies at the time the bonds were floated.

In most cases promise is made to "pay in gold coin of the United States of America of the present standard of weight and fineness," to which the date of issuance is appended, although in some instances the obligation is further strengthened by "or the equivalent thereof."

The state of Illinois promises to pay on its highway bonds of 1953 principal and interest "in gold coin of the United States of America of the present standard of weight and fineness at the office of the treasurer of the state of Illinois in the city of Springfield."

A similar obligation was assumed by the United States in issuing its Fourth Liberty 4¼s, dated Oct. 28, 1918, which carry the promise to pay "in United States gold coin of the present standard of value."

The American Telephone & Telegraph company in its 5 per cent debentures of 1965, goes even further. Its bonds read "payable . . . in gold coin of the United States of America of the standard weight and fineness existing Feb. 1, 1930, or the equivalent thereof."

The Standard Oil company of New Jersey provides for payment in "gold coin of the United States of America of the standard weight and fineness existing Dec. 15, 1926," in its 5 per cent coupon gold debentures of 1946.

Reserve Rate Cut Can Bolster Federal Credit

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Reduction of the rediscount rate by the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago from 2½ per cent to 2 per cent at the behest of the federal reserve board in Washington is in line with the government's effort to reduce the interest rate on its forthcoming new bond issues.

The rediscount rate is the rate of interest paid by commercial banks when they go to the federal reserve bank to borrow money. At present they are not borrowing money from the federal reserve bank. The reduction, therefore, is meaningless at present. It's like reducing the rental on row boats in the middle of winter.

The authorities in Washington, however, are looking down the road to the time when the commercial banks may need to borrow from the reserve bank. When that time comes they want the rates low.

One of two things might force the commercial banks to borrow from the reserve banks—either a big increase in demand for commercial loans or a collapse of the market for government bonds—or both.

If business recovery should occur in a big way, the banks would need more cash to accommodate the resultant increase in the demand for commercial loans. In that event, having a large part of their liquid funds tied up in government bonds, they might suddenly need to dump large quantities of these bonds in order to raise the necessary cash to accommodate business. To get this cash by selling great quantities of their government bond holdings would demoralize prices for such bonds and reduce the market value of the rest of their holdings of government bonds. Therefore, the logical step would be not to sell them but to put them up with the federal reserve bank as collateral for loans.

With the rediscount rate as low as 2 per cent, the banks could borrow against their government bonds, pay the 2 per cent per annum interest, and still be money ahead as long as the bonds themselves pay more than 2 per cent interest.

The same scheme would work in case the market for government bonds should collapse because of public fear of inflation.

* *

In addition to these reasons for reducing the rediscount rate the authorities at Washington have another important one.

The national debt during the depression years has increasd from 16 billions to more than 28 billions, and, according to the President's budget message, it will rise to more than 34 billions next year—possibly more.

This inflation of the public debt, brought about by government borrowing to pay for vast expenditures in excess of the government's income, has greatly increased the amount of money that the treasury must pay out each year in interest. And as the debt continues to rise interest charges will swell accordingly, thus adding greatly to the cost of government.

In an attempt to beat down the cost of borrowed money the administration has been using all the instruments at its command to reduce the interest rates on government bonds. It is reported on good authority that the treasury hopes to bring the rate on new long term bond issues down in the neighborhood of 2½ per cent, instead of from 3 to 3½ per cent at present and 4¼ per cent during the world war.

As part of the scheme to get banks to buy government bonds paying lower rates of interest the treasury has been using the reserve banks to manipulate money rates to artificially low levels.

The ordinary citizen suffers from this in various ways. As a bank depositor he gets lower interest on his deposits because the bank cannot afford to pay as much for the use of his money when it cannot employ that money at a fair rate of return. As an insurance policyholder he is forced to pay higher premiums or receive lower dividends because the insurance companies likewise are forced to accept lower rates of interest on their investments.

All of this tends to discourage frugality and to encourage spending rather than saving. Part of the New Deal theory is that there should be less saving and more spending to make jobs. Accumulation of capital even by people of modest means seeking to build up a competency against old age is thus frowned upon.

BILL GIVES RFC WAY TO REVAMP RAIL FINANCES

New York, Jan. 19 — [Special.] — Amendments to the Reconstruction Finance corporation law presented to congress on Friday are regarded in Wall street as giving the government agency wide powers in reforming railroad finances. An example cited was the provision enabling the RFC to guarantee railroad obligations and to substitute its bonds for high coupon railroad issues.

A measure once suggested in Wall street, but little discussed recently, was revived in the proposal that the RFC be permitted to buy railroad bonds on its own account or for the account of a given company, charging the railroad only the RFC's interest rate on the cost of the bonds to the government instead of on the coupon rate of the securities.

The amendments would give the RFC increased power in reorganizing railroads through enabling it to buy securities of a reorganized company. This, it is thought, would serve to reinforce the new bankruptcy laws designed to hasten railroad reorganization, but which until now have failed of their purpose.

Elect Fleming Governor of Cleveland Reserve Bank

Cleveland, O., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The board of directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland tonight announced the election of Matthew J. Fleming as governor. He has been deputy governor of the bank since September, 1920, and succeeds E. R. Fancher, who died recently.

RFC AUTHORIZES LOANS TOTALING NEAR 9 BILLION

Bulk Is Disbursed in Roosevelt Regime.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—A picture of the manner in which the Reconstruction Finance corporation has approved nearly nine billions of dollars in loans and other advances is given in a report which Jesse H. Jones, the corporation's chairman, has addressed to "the President and the senators and representatives of the congress of the United States."

The report of the corporation's stewardship of the huge sums which have been made available to it to carry on its activities is made at a time when a two year extension of its functions is being requested in bills which have been submitted to congress.

Nine Billion Authorized.

Loans, investments, and allocations authorized since the establishment of the RFC on Feb. 2, 1932, to Dec. 31, 1934, totaled $8,964,712,929, of which $784,266,128 has been canceled or withdrawn and $6,848,073,233 disbursed.

A breakdown of these figures shows that of total authorizations, $2,787,436,569 was made between Feb. 2, 1932, and March 3, 1933, during the Hoover administration, and $6,177,276,360 since President Roosevelt was inaugurated on March 4, 1933. Actual disbursements, as listed, totaled $2,027,064,236 in the Hoover administration and $4,821,008,987 since that time.

One of the reasons for the great increase was the campaign staged by the present administration under broadened authority granted by congress to the RFC to aid in the releasing of money to depositors in closed banks, and to strengthen the capital structure of banks by purchases of preferred stock, capital notes or debentures of the institutions.

Loans to Closed Banks.

The report shows that $1,035,687,742 in loans to closed banks have been authorized over the entire period, of which $948,491,732 have been made during the present administration. Actual disbursements to closed banks totaled $761,704,109, of which $318,322,974 has been repaid, $682,132,092 of these disbursements having been made since March 4, 1933.

The largest loan authorized to one institution was $174,609,000 to the conservator and receiver of the First National Bank of Detroit.

Authorizations for purchases of preferred stock, capital notes, and debentures of banks, and for loans on preferred stock, total $1,156,904,075, and, if conditional commitments are included, the total is $1,232,366,545. Of these, $938,004,050 has been disbursed and $72,920,565 paid back by banks which retired the government's holdings of their stock.

Makes 5,697 Purchases.

The authorizations numbered 7,213 for purchases in 6,694 banks, and disbursements have been made for purchases in 5,697 banks. The transactions were authorized by the emergency banking act adopted March 9, 1933, and were all in the Roosevelt administration.

Jones recommended that congress grant authority for the corporation to extend the time for repayments from five to ten years, so that, he said, money which otherwise would be paid the government might be used to aid recovery.

"With bank repair approximately completed," the report said, "the objects which we believe still need especial assistance by the RFC are:

"(1) A continuation of commodity loans through the Commodity Credit corporation.

"(2) Nation-wide assistance to real estate mortgages.

"(3) Assistance to railroads on a secured basis.

"(4) Industrial loans for modernization and replacement of plant and equipment, including in some instances composition of debts on a basis that will enable the borrower to continue operations."

PWA'S PROGRAM CHALLENGED BY OHIO UTILITY

Columbus, O., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The constitutionality of the federal public works administration program was challenged today by the Columbus Railway, Power and Light company.

It cited the first, fifth, tenth, and fourteenth amendments to the United States constitution in an effort to support a contention that not only the PWA but also the Naional Recovery act are invalid.

It made the contentions in an application for a temporary restraining order from Federal Judge Benson W. Hough to prevent the city from constructing its proposed $1,140,000 extension to the municipal light plant. Judge Hough took the application under advisement and said he would give his decision Monday.

GRAINS RALLY ON WEATHER AND UPTURN ABROAD

Much of Buying Is Caused by Short Covering.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Rising prices in foreign markets and falling temperatures over the American grain belt engendered a brisk rally in prices on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday which lifted wheat and corn futures more than a cent a bushel.

The trading was not heavy and a good deal of the buying was believed to represent short covering on the possibility that the Supreme court will hand down a decision on the gold clause case tomorrow. Should the court uphold the abrogation of the gold contracts by congress, speculators believe that the market will quickly retrieve the ground that has been lost during the last week or so.

Frightened Selling Possible.

If a contrary opinion is given, the consequences are difficult to predict, but there is a general conviction that speculative markets, temporarily at least, would be subject to a wave of frightened selling. Facing such an uncertain outlook, there has been a disposition on the part of traders to even up both long and short commitments.

Temperatures began to fall yesterday morning in Kansas and Nebraska with the prospect of sub-zero weather in the latter state. The northwestern states reported severe cold. The cold weather has a double edged effect.

In the southwest much of the winter wheat has an inadequate snow blanket and is vulnerable to the cold. All over the grain belt the cold is stimulating the demand for corn and other feedstuffs.

Comparative Figures.

Closing prices on the May grain futures in Chicago were:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Week ago.
Wheat	$0.98⅜	$0.97⅝	$0.99¼
Corn	.87⅜	.86⅝	.89⅛
Oats	.52⅝	.52¼	.53⅜
Rye	.69⅛	.68⅛	.73⅛

Wheat prices were moderately higher in Winnipeg and a moderate export business was reported. Because the market there is so completely in control of the government pool, its action lacks its normal significance. Wheat rose again, however, in Liverpool and had more influence on the trading here.

SEC DESIRES POWER TO RULE 'COUNTER' TRADE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Securities and Exchange commission is considering asking congress for additional authority to control over the counter markets handling about $26,000,000,000 of security business annually. This was disclosed today in testimony Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy gave the senate appropriations committee in asking for more funds for the commission's stock exchange regulatory activities.

The present law, Kennedy said, was inadequate to handle the over the counter business, in which securities are sold directly to investors without going through exchanges. The chief objective of new legislation or rules would be to subject over the counter transactions to regulation by the commission on an even basis with registered exchanges.

The commission has been studying this problem for some time and still hopes to take action without additional legislation, already moving to enlist the coöperations of the Investment Bankers' association in registering security dealers throughout the country. It also is seriously contemplating requiring some sort of registration or licensing of these dealers.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today. Although no sales were confirmed, it was revealed that late yesterday a local refiner bought 34,200 bags of Puerto Rican for February arrival at 2.80c per lb and an outport refiner 30,000 bags of Cuban for March shipment at 2.79c. The former represented an advance of 3 points, and there appeared to be nothing available today below that level, while some holders were asking slightly higher. Price changes in futures were narrow and the market closed unchanged to 2 points lower in the old contract and unchanged to 1 point lower in the new. Sales were 10,600 tons in each contract, including considerable exchanging between months.

COTTON PRICES IN CHICAGO ADVANCE IN LIGHT TRADING

YEAR END TRADE UPTURN SHOWS LEVELING OFF

Regarded Normal Reaction from Unusual Rise.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The 40-day business bulge of the year-end has shown some signs of levelling off in reports of the last week from leading industries and the various federal reserve districts. Business analysts did not regard this as more than a normal reaction from an unusual upswing, however, and 1935 prospects were not regarded as dimmed.

The automobile industry still continued to shed a rosy glow over the business reports of the week. Production of the week ended Jan. 12 was estimated at 59,825 units, the highest point since December, 1930, and retail sales were said to be limited only by the capacity to run cars off the line.

Steel, aided by the demand for the automobile makers and from miscellaneous lines, again lifted its production schedules to new high levels since last June.

Unseasonable Weather Is Factor.

Electric power output and cotton cloth production, for the week ended Jan. 12, failed to show gains as large as usually expected for the week following the New Year's day holiday period, but this may have been due to the fact that there was not the usual let-down at the year-end. The freight movement jumped 11.2 per cent over the preceding holiday week, but the total was .6 per cent under the like week of 1934.

Electric power production scored a small gain over the previous week, and continued to run well ahead of the previous year, the margin amounting to 7.7 per cent. Unseasonably warm weather may have tended to keep the freight and power figures down.

Cotton mills lagged in cloth production, but the movement of raw cotton to the mills was higher last week than for the same week a year ago.

Lumber and coal production advanced slightly, lumber against a normal seasonal drop. Retail food prices were reported up 1.5 per cent for the two weeks ending Jan. 2.

Gold Case Disturbs Prices.

Most sensitive commodity prices broke sharply early last week when traders feared the effects of a possible Supreme court decision against the government in the gold clause cases. A returning confidence, however, snapped prices back as the week wore on. That same fear caused spotty adverse business activity reports from some coastal centers and areas where production depends on world prices in dollar terms.

Retail and wholesale business maintained a high activity level generally. Reflecting that condition and the momentarily higher velocity of trading in financial and commodity markets, bank clearings for the week ended Jan. 16 were 36.3 per cent higher than a year ago for the country as a whole.

The week closed with an ominous note of labor difficulties which might break in the spring. Labor leaders disclosed plans of an alliance between workers in textiles, automobiles, steel, oil, and tobacco.

CHRYSLER ACTS TO EFFECT WORK STABILIZATION

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The Chrysler corporation is making headway in its effort to stabilize work at its plants, according to a message sent to employés by Walter P. Chrysler, chairman of the board and president. Chrysler said that despite the difficulty of eliminating seasonal unemployment, the corporation had made progress toward this and by introducing new models earlier than formerly, and by manufacturing parts for cars in the dull season.

The announcement by Chrysler follows a similar statement made about two months ago by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of the General Motors corporation. Mr. Sloan said then that his company would delay the introduction of some of its new models until next summer to reduce the seasonal slump in production in the latter half of the year.

CHECKS ATTEST BUSINESS GAINS IN MIDDLE WEST

Business activity in the Chicago reserve area expanded 13.4 per cent last week, based on the volume of checks drawn against individual deposit accounts. Debits by 155 banks in 40 leading clearing house cities, for the week ended Jan. 16, totaled $1,015,681,000, against $895,838,000 a week earlier.

Excluding Clinton, Ia., for which comparable figures are not disclosed, volume for the 39 cities was $1,014,373,000, against $747,450,000 in the same period last year, an improvement of 35.7 per cent.

Debits in Chicago aggregated $630,775,000, against $442,964,000 in 1934. Detroit reported $158,870,000, compared with $123,960,000; Des Moines, $19,806,000, against $12,993,000; Indianapolis, $38,516,000 against $34,231,000, and Milwaukee, $54,617,000, against $41,209,000.

RFC GETS GRIP ON WISCONSIN'S LARGEST BANK

Will Buy $10,000,000 Preferred Stock.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's largest bank, the First Wisconsin National Bank of Milwaukee, will become a government controled bank soon after Feb. 1 when 10 million dollars of $100 par value preferred stock will be sold to the Reconstruction Finance corporation. At the same time, the common stock of the bank will be reduced from ten million dollars to five million dollars.

There will be no change in the operation of the bank, officials said. Walter Kasten, president, reported the government has not asked for representation on the board of directors. William H. Taylor, Chicago, former national bank examiner, recently named an official of the First Wisconsin, is not in the bank as an agent of the government, Kasten said.

Establishes Branch Banks.

Since the decision to sell the stock to the RFC was reached on Nov. 8, the First Wisconsin has announced the consolidation of the Commerce Street bank and the Second Ward bank, both affiliates, and the transforming of all affiliates, including the Oakland Avenue, the Vliet Street, the North Avenue, the Merchants and Farmers, the Sherman Park and the East Side banks into branch banks.

The transaction will be completed shortly after Feb. 1, it was said at the bank, that date being selected because it is dividend date, and the new capital setup will be made effective soon after.

Admit Federal Control.

Completion of the RFC deal will place the government in control of the bank, bank officials admitted. Wisconsin Bankshares corporation at present is the principal owner of the First Wisconsin bank.

The statement of the First Wisconsin to the controler of the currency as of Dec. 31, 1934, reported cash and government securities totaled more than $110,000,000 and deposits were $163,474,846.

FURNITURE SALES INDICATE RISE IN FACTORY OUTPUT

Furniture factories throughout the country will step up operations tomorrow as the result of the big volume of orders placed at Chicago's two furniture shows in the last two weeks, officials said yesterday. At the close of the exhibits nearly 11,500 persons had registered at either the Merchandise or American Furniture marts, setting new high records for buyers present at both exhibits.

No accurate figures were available on the volume of business placed, but buying orders were conceded to have run into many millions of dollars. Practically every exhibitor reported sales well above initial expectations and many declared orders were the largest since 1929.

Attendance at the Merchandise Mart totaled 5,256, which was 29 per cent above last year. The Furniture Mart registered 6,240 buyers.

"The market just closed indicates widespread recovery in the furniture industry," Laurence H. Whiting, president of the Furniture Mart, said. "Retail sales in the first two weeks of January were exceptionally good. If the same pace continues a great number of buyers will be forced to return to Chicago to stock up again before the next regular buying period in May."

T. J. Reed, general manager of the Merchandise Mart, declared the event the most successful in his organization's history. It is impossible to approximate the volume of business transacted but we know its percentage increase was well ahead of the rise in attendance.

CHICAGO BANKS' STOCKS HIGHER; TRADING ACTIVE

Chicago bank stocks closed the week with an increased volume of trade and higher prices. First National was up 4 points to 104 bid, 107 asked after selling off at 100 earlier in the week. Active trading saw Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust a point better at 43¾ bid, 44½ asked.

Northern Trust stock was in greater demand and jumped 15 points to close at 400 bid, 405 asked. Harris Trust and Savings rose 5 points to 190 bid, 200 asked. In the miscellaneous group, Chicago Title and Trust eased a point to 70 bid, 71½ asked.

PRICES OF LARD FUTURES INCREASE 5 TO 12½ POINTS

Buying of lard futures carried prices up readily yesterday, and while there was considerable profit taking in evidence, the close was at net gains of 5 to 12½ points. Some improvement was reported in the demand for cured meats, with bellies closing 2½ to 17½ points higher on futures. Cash lard closed at 12.95 cents; loose, 12.97 cents; leaf, 13 cents, and bellies at 16 cents per pound. Prices follow:

Butter and Egg Futures Again Rise to New High

The sharp rise during the last week in butter and eggs on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday brought out heavy profit taking selling by professional speculators, but it failed to halt the advance, and both commodities again pushed up to higher levels.

The January butter future advanced to 31⅝ cents a pound, the best price any future has brought since March, 1931. Closing transactions were made at the best price of the day. Final quotations on all the futures represented net gains of ½ to ⅞ cent a pound. Quotations on eggs were ⅜ to ⅞ cent a dozen higher, with the October future reaching 23⅝ cents a dozen, the highest price in more than two years.

Storage Egg Supply Reduced.

Withdrawals have cut the storage egg supply in Chicago to approximately 45,000 cases, or about enough to fill requirements for three days. Stocks of butter are also at an extremely low level as compared with the supply on hand a year ago.

The buying that came into the market yesterday was said partly to represent removal of hedges by dealers against sales of the commodities in the cash market. Cash butter prices are now at a premium over the future quotations. Short covering was also believed to have contributed to the buying demand. A leading dairy products concern was credited with substantial purchases and is believed to be the biggest factor in the market at the present time.

Sub-zero temperatures were reported over a large part of the important egg and butter producing sections and this held out the prospect of a reduction in receipts.

The government recently let contracts for 37,000,000 pounds of evaporated milk and 3,000,000 pounds of dried milk. Diversion of milk to fill these orders has a constricting effect on butter production. The range of prices yesterday follows:

New Zealand Ships Butter.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Jan. 19.—(AP)—New Zealand is shipping 10,000 cases of butter to New York, it was announced today, to meet a shortage reportedly arising out of drouth conditions in North America last year. It was also made known that the government of New Zealand is considering the extension of official representation to the United States and Canada.

NATIONAL C. OF C. URGES HELPFUL SHIPPING POLICY

Want Mail on Poundage Basis, Subsidies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—An effective and consistent national shipping policy was advocated today by the United States Chamber of Commerce. The organization pointed out that rehabilitation of the merchant marine is of paramount importance to commerce and military security.

The chamber specifically urged changes in the present method of giving government aid to American shipping to provide a substitute for the present mail contract system. It is proposed that mail should in the future be paid for on a poundage basis rather than a carriage basis.

Present Plan Confusing.

"The fact that the present system of government aid to the merchant marine seems to link aid to the carriage of mails has caused a great deal of confusion in the public mind as to the service which the payments cover," a committee of the chamber reported. "It has also brought about uncertainty within the shipping industry."

The chamber suggests that the subsidy be granted to American built vessels used in establishing and maintaining regular service on essential trade routes between the United States and foreign ports, but preferably not to more than one line on the same route. Vessels granted aid should meet requirements as to size and speed.

Urge 20 Year Contracts.

"Due to the fact that the capital differential is the main consideration in the determination of an ocean shipping subsidy and the further fact that this charge remains the same throughout the life of a ship, subsidy contracts should be for the period of the vessel's life, usually considered 20 years," the committee reported.

"The operating differential, on the other hand, is likely to vary from time to time. To permit adjustment of any changed conditions, there should be provision for review of the contract terms not more often than once every two years."

A striking omission in the present act, according to the organization, is the lack of provision for vessel replacement. It suggests this be provided for in the subsidy contract, with specification as to size, type and speed of the vessel.

"Trade and military needs should be of prime consideration in fixing construction requirements," the committee said. "Plans for all ships to be constructed should be subject to the approval of the navy department."

United Air Lines Sets Trafic Record in 1934

United Air Lines carried 33,100 revenue passengers to and from Chicago in 1934, W. A. Patterson, president, stated yesterday. This is a substantial increase over the preceding year, he said, and a record for the company since it began operating the New York-Chicago-Pacific coast route and Chicago-Kansas City route seven years ago.

PRICES OF LIVE STOCK SHOW SHARP SWINGS; MEAT STOCKS HEAVY

Sharp price fluctuations marked the live stock trade last week, with the general undertone most unsettled since the sensational rise began a few weeks ago. Buyers obviously were "marking time," influenced by actions of grain and provisions. Packers seemed a bit cautious about increasing their stocks of meats, since they already are carrying more tonnage than ever before at the start of a new year.

Many branches of the markets sagged badly in midweek, but the extremely light receipts held off a general relapse and some of the better grades of cattle actually brought as much at the close as any time in recent years Total arrivals of all species at Chicago for the week at 221,100 were among the smallest on record for that period, and compared with 317,700 for the same week in 1934.

Despite the unsatisfactory actions of the trade last week the general price level still is 33 per cent higher than two months ago and 54 per cent over a year ago. Following are averages for 25,000 pound carloads of cattle, hogs, an sheep at Chicago:

	Cattle.	*Hogs.	Sheep.
Last week	$2,263	$2,488	$2,200
Year ago	1,325	1,100	2,063
Two years ago	1,250	788	1,475

*Hog price includes $562 processing tax last week and $250 a year ago. There was no processing tax two years ago.

Top grades of steers closed steady with a week ago, but others lost 50 cents to $1. Butcher stock closed unevenly steady to $1 lower. Calves were erratic, finishing $1 lower to 50 cents higher.

Lamb prices closed 35 to 60 cents lower than on Monday, but the general average for the six days at $8.80 indicated 5 cents advance over the previous week. Selected wooled lambs reached $9.85 at the start of the week, but finished at $9.25.

A marked decrease in lightweight hogs saved these from much punishment during the week, but others declined, with the sharpest losses in the "lard hogs" and stock that furnishes trade with heavy product.

GERMANY OFFERS MORE SCRIP ON BOND INTEREST

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The securities and exchange commission announced today that the German government office for foreign debts has filed a registration statement seeking to offer 46,000,000 reichsmarks in scrip for about $16,000,000 face value of interest due American holders of German securities. Previously the office had registered 45,000,000 reichsmarks in scrip for other securities.

In the connection with interest payments maturing between Jan. 1, 1934, and June 30, 1934, the office proposes to issue 70 per cent in scrip and to pay 30 per cent in cash.

The date at which the scrip will be redeemed has not been determined. It has no maturity date and bears no interest. The securities commission has yet to pass on the proposed issue.

TEXAS OIL BAN HELD ILLEGAL BY DISTRICT JUDGES

Austin, Tex., Jan. 19.—(AP)—District Judges C. A. Wheeler and J. D. Moore today denied the railroad commission state oil regulatory body had power to prohibit the shipment of crude oil products in storage prior to issuance of the commission's order Dec. 10 requiring approved tenders for movement of refined petroleum.

Oil men estimated approximately 1,500,000 barrels of oil products would be permitted to move under the decision.

State's attorneys asserted the commission was not attempting to make its tender order retroactive, and that the products could be moved if legality of the crude from which they were processed could be shown.

INLAND STEEL CO. AIDED DECIDEDLY BY AUTO DEMAND

Expansion in automotive demand enabled Inland Steel company to get off to the best start this year since 1930, according to Dow, Jones & Co.

The company's automobile body sheet department is running at capacity, while ingot production is near 60 per cent of theoretical capacity, the agency says.

Inland's net last year will approximate $3,700,000, or about $3 a share, the largest profit since 1930, Dow, Jones says. In 1933 profit totaled $166,693, equal to 13 cents a share. Indicated 1934 income will cover dividend requirements six times.

PEEK URGES U. S. MODIFY FOREIGN TRADE POLICIES

Roosevelt Adviser Assails Sec. Hull's Program.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Renewing his criticism of Secretary Hull's methods, George N. Peek, special adviser to the President on foreign trade, today urged reorganization of the administration's foreign trade policies and program. Peek, former farm administrator, presented a five-point plan to correct what he called "mistakes" and give Americans an opportunity to compete "successfully" with other nations.

Sharp differences of opinion between Hull and Peek were known to have existed, but the latter's statements in an address today served to emphasize the split. Secretary Hull has based his tarif policy on the retention of the most favored nation policy in negotiating trade agreements. In other words, he would extend any favors granted one nation to all.

Peek Opposes Hull's Policy.

Peek urged an abandonment of this principle, but he would continue a modified favored nation arrangement. Other points in his plan were:

Permanent governmental assistance to American foreign trade interests.

An adequate bookkeeping and accounting system to accumulate data on all trade transactions.

Adoption of a policy of selective imports and exports including utilization of barter agreements.

Insistence that foreign nations having exchange restrictions correct such conditions before entering into trade agreements.

Hull is negotiating trade agreements with fifteen countries on the unconditional most favored nation basis. He has vigorously opposed barter transactions on the ground that they are an impediment in clearing the clogged channels of international trade.

Roosevelt Favors Hull's Theories.

To date President Roosevelt and his cabinet have supported the Hull rather than the Peek theories. The unconditional most favored nation policy, Peek said, had failed in practice.

"The attempt of many nations to make it the basis of their foreign trade policies," Peek said, "has been accompanied by their increasing use of devices to defeat the purpose, and lead to a multiplication of the trade barriers it was meant to reduce."

He added that he had knowledge of over 200 special agreements entered into by other nations from which the United States was excluded. Adoption of a policy of selective imports and exports, he said, should be carried out through "making individual arrangements with individual nations, country by country, rather than through a horizontal reduction of our tarifs, either through tarif legislation or generalizing tarif concessions under the trade agreements act."

8,861 ILLINOIS HOMES USE HOLC CASH FOR REPAIR

More than six thousand small homes in the Chicago area have been repaired or modernized at a cost of $709,166 through funds obtained from the Home Owners' Loan corporation, according to Henry G. Zander Jr., state manager. For the entire state the total of homes reconditioned is 8,861, totaling $1,018,955.

Most of the jobs were for minor repairs, it was stated. The average amount for each of the 6,342 contracts in the Chicago area was $106.54, making a total of $709,166 disbursed. Of this amount, $608,040 for 5,707 contracts were inside the city limits.

"Bids have been obtained on an additional 19,410 applications for repair loans in the Chicago district," said Mr. Zander. "This represents over $3,500,000 worth of work. Contracts already have been executed on 3,884 of these and the contractors' work is proceeding as speedily as possible.

"It is estimated that 14,000 building trades workmen, an average of three men per contract, were employed on the jobs already completed in the Chicago district."

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Strength in United States government issues and in railroad obligations was the feature of a generally dull bond market today. Trading in bonds on the New York Stock exchange aggregated $8,550,000, compared with $12,755,000 last Saturday. Dealings in United States government issues came to $1,871,000, against $6,363,000 a week ago.

The advance in government issues amounted to 1-32d to 11-32ds point, with only two issues failing to share in the rise. The discrimination between "gold payment" bonds and others had completely disappeared from the market. Treasury 4s of 1944-'54 showed the greatest activity and advanced 8-32ds point.

U. S. Guaranteed Issues Firm.

Treasury guaranteed securities were uniformly firm, with federal farm mortgage 3s of 1949 up 3-32ds point and Home Owners' 3s up a like amount.

Improvement in the rails was ascribed in the case of the lower grade issues to relief over the plans for extending the life of the RFC.

Santa Fe general 4s reached a new high at 108½. Chicago and North Western convertible 4¾s of 1949 rose 1¼ points on fair activity. New York Central debenture 6s of 1935 were up 2⅛ points.

Other Issues Strong.

Other issues gaining 1 to 2 or more points were Alleghany corporation 5s, Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, Chicago Great Western 4s, and International Great Northern 6s. Higher prices also were paid for obligations of the Illinois Central, Kansas City Southern, Missouri Pacific, New Haven, St. Louis-Southwestern, Texas & Pacific, and Wabash. Denver & Rio Grande 4s lost 1½ points.

A number of prime investment bonds advanced close to their old 1934-35 peaks.

In the foreign section improvement was shown by most German, Polish, and Scandinavian issues.

Insurance During 1934.

Insurance men will remember 1934 as the year during which full hearted confidence of the public in insurance as an institution was restored. They will also remember it as the year during which they had more money than they knew what to do with.

Following the bank moratorium in the early part of 1933, because of falling security prices and the constant striving for liquidity, a nation-wide moratorium on cash surrender and loan privileges of life insurance policies was imposed in order that the life insurance companies might not have to fulfill the functions of a bank, which they were not designed to do.

As the bank situation eased the moratoria on life insurance companies were relaxed, although with less ballyhoo. There were no federal guarantees of life insurance policies, although the government did prove to be of substantial help, not so much by way of the RFC as by refinancing of frozen mortgages.

It is true that there were some life insurance company failures, but the percentage of insurance involved, in comparison to total insurance outstanding, has been surprisingly small, and most of the reinsurance agreements were favorable to policyholders.

Such a record should inspire confidence, and it has. A recent tabulation of estimates of insurance in force at the close of 1934 for 47 life companies showed that every one had either increased the amount of its business during 1934, or lost less insurance than in 1933.

National Life and Accident, for instance, showed a gain of $57,000,000 of insurance in force for 1934, against $34,500,000 in 1933; New England Mutual Life gained $32,150,000, against a loss of $30,047,000 in 1933; Penn Mutual Life lost $50,231,000, against $111,604,000, and Union Central Life cut its loss to $1,540,000 from $147,383,000.

This was all well and good, but it has raised another problem for insurance executives—what to do with the money that is pouring in every day. Amounts paid on new business and repayment of policy loans run into substantial figures. The yield on high grade bonds has shrunk to a low point and the outlook for farm and home mortgages is uncertain. These two media represent the customary insurance company investments. Consequently the bulk of the funds is going into government and municipal bonds.

Not much in the way of return can be obtained on such investments, probably on the average not more than 3 per cent. But insurance rates are based on the assumption that the company will earn 3½ per cent on its investments. As a result rates are going up.

Several of the leading companies have already boosted their rates to reflect a return of 3 per cent on their investment instead of 3½, and many more are considering taking such action in the near future.

AUTO COMPANIES SPEND MILLIONS REVISING PLANTS

Plan Far Ahead as Demand Expands Steadily.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Under the stimulus of slowly but steadily mounting consumer requirements, the motor car industry's production plants are undergoing what in many instances amounts almost to a complete transformation.

These preparations for the future are based on an assumption that the upward trend in automobile distribution that began two years ago will continue for some time. The millions of dollars that are being invested include a large share for activities far beyond the 1935 production programs.

The control of production facilities is one of the interesting developments of the automobile industry's course through the period of economic dislocation that began in late 1929 and reached its low level in 1932.

Plants Have Excess Capacity.

It was commonly believed when buying power froze up late in 1929 that the industry, which in that year produced more than 5,600,000 passenger cars and trucks, actually was equipped to produce nearly twice that many vehicles. A reduction of factory inventories was one of the first steps and this curtailment continued as consumer demand dwindled. It was a step made imperative by the necessity of avoiding price increases in the face of a declining market.

The upturn that came in 1933 required the expenditure then of a considerable amount not only in extending production facilities, but replacing much that had become obsolete. As the demand continued on the upgrade last year many more millions went into plant expansion and equipment, and the investments have been further increased as output programs are being stepped up still further for the current year.

1934 Figures Show Recovery.

The extent of the recovery movement in the automotive industry is given a rather striking illustration in preliminary statistics for 1934, issued by the Automobile Manufacturers' association. The figures show that the 2,885,000 passenger cars and trucks produced in the United States and Canada, together with accessories, replacements of parts and tires and service equipment, represented a total wholesale value of $2,216,477,000.

In 1929 the wholesale value of the cars and replacement of parts and tires amounted to $5,142,315,542. A significant fact, however, was that of the product of 1929 something like 1,000,000 cars and trucks were carried over into the following year, while the carryover of 1934 was relatively inconsequential.

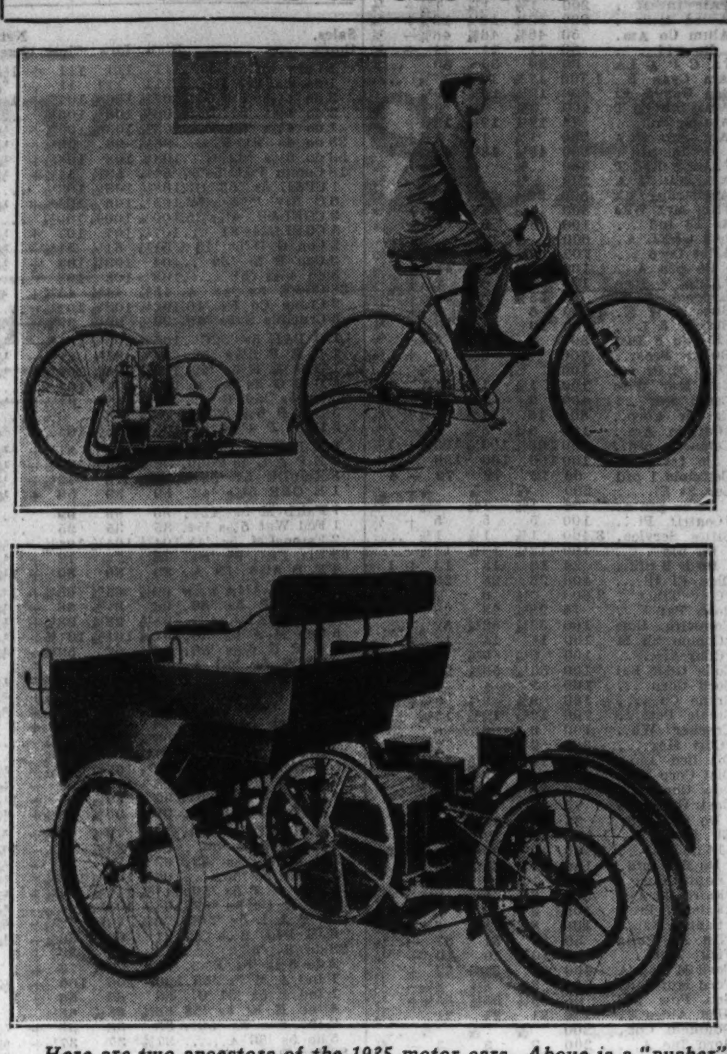
MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

AUTO'S ANCESTORS



Here are two ancestors of the 1935 motor cars. Above is a "pusher" that made its appearance in Italy in 1893. Below is the luxurious two seater on three wheels that was developed a year later. The 1935 offspring of these early petrol vehicles may be seen at the annual automobile show opening an eight day run in the Coliseum next Saturday. These pictures were resurrected by the A. C. Spark Plug company.

NEWS AND VIEWS

This is the last day to see Chevrolet's private exhibit in the Illinois armory at Michigan avenue and 16th street. The doors will be open from noon until 11 p. m. Admission is free.

All five body styles in each of the company's two 1935 lines of passenger cars are on display, as are a dozen trucks. Ther are also mechanical exhibits, including a cutaway of Fisher Body's "turret top," all metal top insulated against heat, cold, and noise. Music is furnished by George Olsen's and Art Kassel's orchestras.

More than 1,500 automobile dealers, distributors, branch and zone managers in metropolitan Chicago area will attend the Chicago Automobile Trade association's annual pre-show banquet, which will be held Friday evening at 6:30 p. m. in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. This is the only official event on the eve of the Chicago automobile show, opening at the Coliseum on Saturday.

At the speakers' table will be several presidents of auto factories. Local men will include H. T. Hollingshead of Nash and La Fayette, and chairman of the show committee; M. J. Lanahan of Dodge and La Salle; Harry Lewis of Chevrolet; Franklin M. Miller of Buick; J. J. Wright of Ford, and A. C. Faeh, manager of the auto show and secretary of the association.

The principal speakers will be John B. Kennedy of New York, radio news commentator; William B. Burrus of New York and Jo G. Roberts, deputy administrator of the automobile division in Washington.

Plymouth shipped 11,730 new 1935 cars to dealers in the United States during the week ending Jan. 12, to establish a new all-time record for a week's domestic shipments, D. S. Eddins, president of the corporation, announced last week. He said that the previous peak week for Plymouth shipments was the week ending June 30 of last year, when the corporation shipped 11,490 units.

With orders pouring in from all over the world for the new car, it was announced by M. M. Gilman, vice president and general manager of the Packard Motor Car company, that actual production work on the Packard 120 would start this week. For months work has been carried on 24 hours a day completing the installation of equipment in the plant in which the new smaller Packard will be built.

"Reception of the car by the public has been such," said Mr. Gilman, "that we will have to carry on with three shifts, or a twenty-four hour day, for considerable time after we begin producing cars. We will be producing cars in February but do not expect to get up to full production until March 1. We built only a limited number of show cars and these are now being exhibited at the automobile shows."

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company announces the appointment of M. R. Spransy as Chicago district manager. Mr. Spransy succeeds L. H. Sheperd, who has been recalled to Akron as assistant sales manager of the tire division of Goodyear.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

TAXES AND MORE TAXES.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—I happen to be one of the unfortunates who own two automobiles. The fact that I do is no reason to believe that I can afford to be squeezed for every last penny my dear home town, state, and federal government can extract from me.

When we buy a new car the U. S. gets a tax [from the consumer, of course] on the car; then, as has been often hashed over, we in Illinois pay an exorbitant state license. In my case I must pay the state $12 twice, where in a great many states the rate is $3 per car.

Then our dear city comes in for $10 for each car, which tax has been proven unconstitutional in several states, and, I believe, once in Illinois.

We pay 3 cents on every gallon of gas we burn to our state, 1 cent on every ten gallons to the government, and now they have stuck on a 2 per cent sales tax on gas and oil and tires. Last year they gave us the certificate of title law with another fee of 50 cents per certificate. All we need now is a driver's license law, with another fee attached, and then they'll tax the water we use.

If it is possible to kill the goose [the automobile industry] that laid the golden egg it certainly looks like they will succeed with only a little more effort.

HAL CLARK.

CARBON MONOXIDE.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Your editorial on the continuous and appalling growth of automobile accidents was timely and I hope it will be read with the earnestness that it deserves.

I wish you had stressed a factor that I am convinced is a major cause that most drivers are ignorant of. That is driving without ventilation, causing the driver to become drowsy and in many cases to be entirely overcome by the slow absorption of monoxide with the result that the car is suddenly out of control and goes into a ditch, smashes into another car, or runs wild into or in front of a train.

The safeguard against this is to have a window open in your car. No matter how cold the weather, keep one window well open. You will be safe and feel better at the end of your drive by so doing.

SAFETY FIRST.

ICY STREETS.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—An appeal was made to the people of Chicago to drive carefully on New Year's eve by Capt. David Flynn. Going south from Grace street to North avenue Sheridan road was paved with a sheet of ice. The most careful driver was helpless under those conditions. Why are not the taxpayers shown a little consideration and coöperation, when all it would take is trucks of cinders strewn at very little cost to the public?

HILDEGARD SCHWANDNER.

WINDSHIELD PLACARDS.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Another annoyance added to the lives of motorists is the practice of placing circulars or placards under the blades of windshield wipers.

When circulars are left in or on our car it isn't so bad, though we generally litter up the streets with more paper.

But with so-called "ads" under the wiper we generally don't see the thing until we're in the driver's seat, then we either have to get out and remove the "plugger" or we attempt to get rid of the darned thing by starting the wiper in motion. The latter is the general course and results in an additional driving hazard.

If business people realized they created antagonism instead of good-will they'd stop the practice. I suppose we could call on the police to keep the handbill passers off our cars, but possibly a better course would be a process of education.

NATE COHN.

ELEVATED HIGHWAY.

Glen Ellyn, Ill., Jan. 16.—Your editorial efforts to have an elevated highway constructed in the Chicago area are highly commendable. As you point out, it may save many lives, and in spite of its cost I am beginning to fear it is the only way.

In his private capacity John Citizen is a fine fellow. He loves his children, does not beat his wife, treats his customers and his business rivals fairly, and on Sundays—when his wife can make him go to church—he passes the plate. But when he slips behind the wheel of the family bus John Citizen is transformed. He instantly develops all the intelligence of a chicken and the social graces of an adult hog at the swill trough.

Go ahead and get your elevated highways—it seems the only way to keep John Citizen from killing several thousand of himself every year. All appeals to his respect for the rights of others and the safety of his own skin have proved fruitless.

CHICAGO'S MOTOR SHOW WILL OPEN NEXT SATURDAY

300 Models of 24 Makes to Be Displayed.

BY HAL FOUST.

The 35th annual Chicago automobile show will open in the Coliseum at 2 o'clock next Saturday afternoon. The doors will remain open daily, including Sunday, from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m.

Three hundred models of twenty-four makes will be on display, the only opportunity to view all of the 1935 vehicles under one roof. Ford, for the first time, is participating in the exhibition.

This will also be the first time that the show has not been sponsored by the Automobile Manufacturers' association, formerly known as the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. This year, the event is under the auspices of the Chicago Automobile Trade association.

Factories Give Aid.

In the Coliseum, the public will not note the change in sponsorship. The factories have aided their local representatives in presenting a show as decorative and informative as any of its predecessors—informative because there will be demonstrations of the engineering advancements incorporated in the new machines.

This year, there will be the hotel exhibits by individual companies that accompanied the annual shows of the past. These have been abandoned by the manufacturers as an economy measure, because the same money spent in other advertising and promotion efforts reaps a bigger return.

Heavy Attendance Predicted.

For this reason, interest will center in the big top event at the Coliseum. Anticipations are for a heavy attendance, running well over a quarter of a million.

As a promotion effort, the Chicago Automobile Trade association yesterday announced a slogan and essay contest. The theme is trafic safety. Slogans should be of not more than ten words and the essays of not more than fifty words. Contestants are asked to mail their entrants to parlor B2 of the Congress hotel. The deadline is Feb. 4. There are to be cash awards although the amount has not been determined.

Farm Produce Market Jams Randolph St.

The Cook County Truck Growers and Farmers association recently protested against the city's alleged mismanagement of the West Randolph street produce market. Whatever its complain might have been, it could not have been stronger than the objections of motorists to the very existance of a farmers' market on a wide pavement that might otherwise serve as a much needed trafic artery.

This broad pavement, from Union park to Des Plaines street, is cluttered with farmers' trucks and hucksters' wagons from early morning until late at night. Intermingled with the vegetable carts are passenger automobiles in a tangle of unregulated parking.

Disorderly Parking.

A block to the south is Washington boulevard, choked with a congestion of trafic bound to and from the loop. Any motorist deserting the boulevard's slow rush-hour parade for Randolph street finds himself in a blockade of disorderly parking.

"While the farmers' are arguing about the management of the market would be a good time to abandon this antiquated commission district," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club. "The superannuated buildings along the street could be condemned and the businesses moved to the new South Water market in Racine avenue near 14th street.

"Millions of dollars were spent in twenty-three years to develop this broad plaza 6,000 feet long and it's too valuable to trafic to be used as a vegetable market and parking lot."

Would Absorb Overload.

With the removal of the market, some trafic engineers have favored a continuation eastward of the Warren-Washington one-way trafic system that now extends from Garfield park to Union park. With or without the one way regulation, Randolph street could absorb much of the overload from Washington boulevard were the wagons and trucks removed from the street.

With the street cleared of the market and with the introduction of boulevard trafic, some city planners have visioned West Randolph street as a potential Place de la Concorde or a Place Vendôme with public buildings, monuments and ornamentation replacing the dilapidated old structures on the plaza.

This section of Randolph street would carry an elevated highway under the plans prepared by Dr. Miller McClintock of Harvard university for the council street and trafic committee. As drawn for the committee, the design does not provide for the market. However, the Illinois highway department, in recommending the project to Washington for "easy money" construction, redesigned the structure so that it might form a roof project to Washington for "easy drive now shelters lower level parking.

RUSH AID FOR COUNTY'S SCHOOLS

LEADER IN CLUBS IS A SPECIALIST AS HOMEMAKER

Mrs. Fairweather Advises Parents.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

"I can't imagine what I can tell you that you can make a story of. I consider myself a professional homemaker, and only incidentally a clubwoman. I really have done very little in club work. Now if only you would see Mrs. ——"

MRS. GEORGE FAIRWEATHER.

Words familiar to any interviewer, but in Mrs. George O. Fairweather's case they turned out to be the expression of a deep seated conviction. Perhaps also an explanation of the fact that she has been elevated to high office by two aggregations of the city's most talented women.

Mrs. Fairweather is truly a professional. With a specialist's bias she interprets her early experiences prior to her marriage in terms of the profession she was later to adopt. Her subsequent activities have originated in that same devotion to her chosen calling, she contends.

When "Baby" Becomes 21.

"Rearing children is difficult if you don't like it—soul satisfying if you do. But when the baby of your family reaches the age of 21, you find that you can't depend on that to fill your life with any longer," she commented.

"Your children won't need you physically any longer, but they will need you mentally. And if you are wise, you will begin to prepare for this state of affairs before the actual need arises. You will find your niche, fill your life with stimulating experiences, make yourself a real companion to your children before they are ready to take their own places in life. After that it is often too late.

"I had another reason for taking up clubwork—also on account of my family," Mrs. Fairweather went on. "I had a feeling that I owed the community a debt for having had the privilege of bringing up three children in it. It was a claim that I felt I must meet to the best of my ability."

Woman's City Club Official.

A member of the Woman's City club almost since its founding, Mrs. Fairweather is now first vice president. She described her present duties as "taking up the slack" wherever her services are required.

Previously she headed the club's city finance committee which attended meetings of the city council, studied budgets and appropriations. She also has served on the county committee, which keeps the City club abreast of county affairs. Outside of the interest of the work itself, Mrs. Fairweather finds particular satisfaction in association with her fellow workers, women expert in their respective fields.

She has developed her civic interests quite independently of Mr. Fairweather, Mrs. Fairweather declared.

"Because my husband is so much interested in such matters, I have made it a point not to talk about them to him," she smiled. "A wife must be a balance wheel, you know, and in one's own home one must be able to get away from these things."

Active in Settlement League.

The activity which Mrs. Fairweather described as nearest to her heart is the University Settlement league, which brings together wives of members of the University of Chicago and of the surrounding community. For two years she was president of the group.

Besides contributing to the support of the university's settlement house in the "back o' the yards" area, the league gives its members an opportunity to develop a variety of talents and interests. The membership is divided into 13 groups, each devoted to a special type of activity. There is a musical group, a dramatic group, a current events group, and others for which the members themselves present programs.

Mrs. Fairweather was born in Ohio, but when she was nine years old her family moved to Chicago. She attended Wellesley college and the University of Colorado, and then returned to Chicago to teach first grade in the public schools.

Mothers' Responsibility.

"I was not particularly anxious to teach, but I was always interested in young children, and girls did not then have the wide variety of careers open to them that they now have. But I found teaching in the Chicago schools one of the most developing experiences," Mrs. Fairweather recalled.

"Every type of child to study, and the parents, too. I learned then how important a mother's rôle is. When the children came to me they were six years old, and at six they were already actually formed, you might almost say, set in their ways. It was almost entirely the mother's responsibility what sort of children they were. The school could do little about it."

Mrs. Fairweather's own family includes a son, now a student at Dartmouth college, a daughter who has just completed a course in photography in New York, after graduating from college, and another daughter who is studying painting in Paris.

'LITTLE WOMEN' COMING TO ST. MICHAEL'S SCHOOL THURSDAY

Mary McGraw Lane, Friend of Lincoln, Dies Here at 97

In a small cottage, whose warm comfort belied the fashions of passing years, a slim great-great-grandmother passed away last Thursday. Mrs. Mary McGraw Lane had just celebrated her 97th birthday. Taken ill on Christmas day, she had continued to decline through her birthday on Jan. 14. Up to the time of her illness, however, she had maintained an active interest in those about her.

MRS. MARY McGRAW LANE.

Mrs. Lane was the matriarch of 12 children, 43 grandchildren, 58 great-grandchildren, and 5 great-great-grandchildren. For many years she had made her home with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Oettershagen, whose twin cottages are nestled far back on the property at 7410-12 Yates avenue.

Blue Grass Belle.

Born in the famous "Blue Grass" region of Kentucky in 1838, the winsome Mary McGraw was the daughter of James and Polly Ellis McGraw. By 1855, the family had acquired a covered wagon and was plodding its way in the direction of Illinois. The trail through the town of Cincinnati made the entire wagon train witness to an event of historical import—the opening of the first railroad in Ohio.

With pulses pounding, the men stood beside the heads of their horses in an effort to check what surely would be a stampede when the snorting "monster" roared down the tracks at the startling speed of 15 miles per hour. Mrs. Lane used to relate that the pioneers were far more excited than the animals, when the little engine and its billows of smoke finally arrived.

Over corduroy roads, the company of twelve wagons continued on its way through Indiana and reached Chicago in February, 1856. It was not until Trivoli township in Peoria county, had been reached that the new settlers staked their claims and built stout cabins from the virgin timber.

Meets Future Husband.

Mrs. Lane always was fond of recalling her meeting with the handsome George J. Lane. It was the first Sun-

The Legionnaires actually had reached the point of arranging to lease ground at 64th street and Western avenue from the city as a site for the cozy little Colonial building when Col. Spirit of the sky,
Fearless, dauntless, earthless,
The strong iron bird you fly.

Whirring through the air,
Full of a vast freedom,
Far from everywhere.

We all remember your smiles.
Our hearts are with you, Amelia,

SHARE OF SALES TAX SOUGHT TO AVERT CLOSINGS

Some of Teachers Unpaid 2 Years.

The separate moves were initiated last week to obtain relief for financially distressed school districts throughout Cook county. Three districts recently closed their schools when their funds gave out, while several others are in arrears two years or more in the payment of teachers' salaries.

A bill authorizing the diversion of $200,000 from surplus state sales tax funds was introduced in the legislature by State Representative Frank Foster of Harvey. Coincidentally, the county board took cognizance of the situation with the adoption of a resolution empowering Clayton F. Smith, president of the board, to appoint a committee of five to make a survey with a view of developing a program to aid the county schools.

44 Schools in Trouble.

The measure sponsored in the legislature by Mr. Foster calling for the diversion of $200,000 from surplus sales tax funds to aid the distressed school districts has the support of several legislators from Cook county, according to Otto F. Aken, county superintendent of schools.

Mr. Foster said that his measure probably would be advanced to third reading in the house on Tuesday and brought up for a vote on Wednesday. It has been estimated that about $153,000 would be required for four months' salaries of teachers in the distressed districts.

The surplus tax funds approximated $10.000,000 prior to the passage last week of a bill by the legislature diverting $9,000,000 for state relief purposes. The $200,000 sought from this source, Mr. Aken asserted, would enable the school districts in financial straits to operate through the remainder of the school year. If some kind of aid is not forthcoming, however, a number of districts probably will be forced to close their schools, he said.

Of the 191 school districts in Cook county outside of Chicago, 44 are in serious financial difficulties. Most of them lack funds with which to meet their full operating expenses and are paying only a part of their obligations with cash and the remainder with orders or tax warants.

Some Unpaid for Two Years.

This situation has placed a great many of the 409 teachers in the 44 districts in straitened circumstances, Mr. Aken pointed out. They are not eligible to apply for relief because they are listed as employed, yet some of them have not received any salary for two years or more.

"These teachers cannot be praised too highly," Mr. Aken said. "They have carried on faithfully under such discouraging circumstances, a fact not generally known or appreciated by the public because there have been no parades or demonstrations calling attention to their plight."

The financial crisis in the school districts in the county outside of Chicago has been brought about largely by a great reduction in assessed property valuations, slow tax collections, and delay in the payment of the state distributive fund, Mr. Aken pointed out. A new and more dependable source of school revenue, other than the general property tax, which has ceased to provide sufficient funds, must be found, he said.

Must Have Aid to Continue.

The immediate problem is that of keeping the schools open, and that can be done only by a direct grant of money, diverted probably from other funds, such as the Foster measure provides, or full payment now of the distributive fund, Mr. Aken asserted.

A recent survey of the 44 distressed school districts showed an amazing percentage of the population of each district on the relief rolls. In one district approximately 50 per cent of the population was found to be relief. The survey also showed that assessed property valuations in this same district had dropped from $1,689,450 in 1930 to $800,000 in 1934, while the tax rate has increased only from $1.90 to $2.

The district's tax levy also was shown to have dropped from $32,000 in 1930 to $22,000 in 1934.

Board to Make Survey.

The county board resolution was presented by Commissioner Elizabeth A. Conkey. The committee, which probably will be composed of civic leaders, will meet with the board's education committee, headed by H. Wallace Caldwell, "to make a comprehensive survey as to prevailing conditions to ascertain ways and means of developing a program for raising sufficient funds for necessary expenditures, including teachers' salaries."

Inasmuch as the county board has no supervision over the county schools and no authority to appropriate funds for them, other than an appropriation for the operation of the county superintendent's office, the resolution simply places the board on record and pledges its active support of efforts to aid the schools, it was explained.

TWO DISTRICTS REOPEN

Two of the three districts, the Steger school district, No. 184, and the Tinley Park school district, No. 146, in Bremen township, which recently closed their schools, reopened them last week, Mr. Aken announced. The Midlothian school district, No. 143, also in Bremen township, probably will reopen its schools this week, he said.

The schools are reopening under

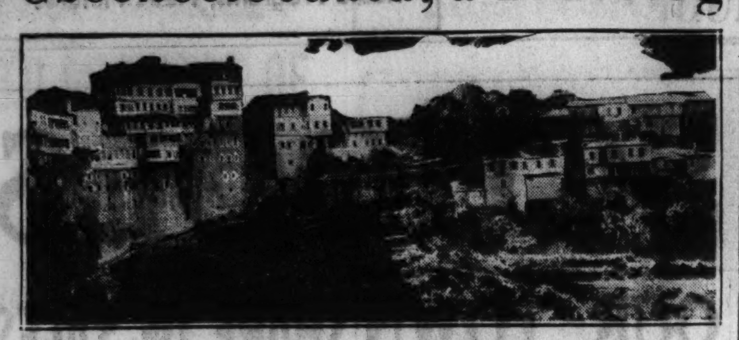
Czechoslovakia, a Travelog



BY ALEX SMALL.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia. — [By Mail.]—Your train has come to a stop in the monstrous glass roofed vaulted shed, like every other European railway station, which in this city bears the name of our Woodrow Wilson. Like the orthodox traveler you have seen gesticulating porters fight over your bags and have made the winner understand—in plain American or halting German or lame French, according to your means and luck—that you want a taxi to go to your hotel.

You are off, after endowing the porter with a silver piece engraved with the highly complex armorial bearings which still serve as a device in this very modern republic. Then you prepare for violent death. The man is driving madly down the wrong side of the street. A few seconds and there will be the inevitable smashup. There is a good chance that he will not understand if you try to tell him you are not ready for death, just yet.

Strangely enough, everything is all right. Other cars go whizzing by. They are all on the left. So that is the way trafic goes in Czechoslovakia. Where have you seen that before, or heard of it? England, yes; for the English love to do things upside down, but where else? Vienna, was it not, and Austria, or at least a part of Austria?

Lesson in Complexity.

Then all becomes clear. You are in Bohemia, now part of the Czechoslovak republic, but before the war part of the Austro-Hungarian empire. You are having a first lesson in the complexity of things in this country, in the way practices linger over beyond changes of régimes. Trafic on the left is one survival from Austrian domination. It is the only obvious survival you are likely to see for a long time—at least in this capital of the new state created by the treaty of Versailles and the other treaties of 1919.

Prague boasts that over 90 per cent of its population is pure Czechoslovak, and speaks the native tongue, though the vast majority have a fair command of German and a substantial proportion can understand English [preferably with an American accent] or French.

The German language, you would have noticed, if you came into the country either from the north or west, still makes a good showing in public signs in those regions near the frontiers, where lives the bulk of the German minority included within the limits of the new state. But Prague is the heart of ancient Bohemia, and has visibly affirmed its emancipation from Germanic rule.

Safe for Democracy.

There is at once a principle by which this state is guided—away from Germanism. A positive principle you might have seen just as you were coming out of that station. It is named for Woodrow Wilson, and there you have before you the man himself, gigantic and in bronze. The flanking foundation of the statue bears the words, "The world must be made safe for democracy," and its translation into the Czech language.

Our war President may have become a subject of mixed feelings to his fellow Americans. To the English radical economist, John Maynard Keynes, he was the "bamboozled Presbyterian" of the peace conference, and has remained such for all wisecracking liberals. But in Czechoslovakia he is no subject for irreverence, even for criticism. He is a national hero.

More—he is considered a founder of the Czechoslovak republic. His insistence on the self-determination of small nationalities made this revived nation possible. His words were a charter of independence. Only one other name, that of the 84 year old president for life of Czechoslovakia, Thomas G. Masaryk, commands such unanimous respect.

Blend of Centuries.

Forgetting for the moment that this country was the farthest western outpost of Slav peoples, a spearhead thrust into the body of Germanism, a racial peninsula in an ocean, with all the complications that entails, I set out to see the surface aspects of a city which has blanded modern enterprise, modern architecture, with a rich background of centuries of history.

Prague has been bursting at the seams. Its population has increased by over 200,000 within the last ten years, till now it counts over 850,000 inhabitants. That sudden growth accounts for the congestion in the main street of modern Prague, Saint Wenceslaus' place, the Vaclavske Namesti. People are tumbling over each other, for all the great width of the sidewalks.

Nowhere else in Europe, probably, will you habitually see so dense a throng as here in the early evening. Down the middle of this wide avenue [for it is an avenue, not a square] move an unending procession of trolley cars, red and yellow, each with one or two trailers behind. They are the only means of public transport.

Follow American Plan.

In double rank on either side of the parked cars, and still there are four trafic lanes. The arrangement is new, post-war, on the American plan, and a rarity in Europe. American, too, are the signal lights at the main corners. Although the street lamps are old fashioned, the street is one incandescent blaze of white, blue, and red signs, on facades which, for the greater part, belong to the "modern" style in architecture.

There is, for instance, the big building of the Bata corporation, the shoe kings of Europe, a plain packing box, with an all glass facade. The only ornament is those blazing signs. Others are like it, and sandwiched between them are the dull facades of dingy brick with gingerbraed decoration, which date from before the war.

Of those signs hardly a one will strike a familiar note. Are they all proper names, or are they advertising sewing machines, men's hats, or what are they? Here is a lesson in how pure is the Czech vocabulary, and how adequate it is to express by its own means all necessary commercial notions. If you have not learned some Slavic language you are lost.

Familiar Words.

Rays of hope will dawn. The word "vchod" occurs with sufficient frequency to discover that it indicates an entrance. And there appears a "restaurace." That one is obvious, but you will be foiled if you try to make sense of the bill of fare.

Then you will see often enough one word which America has given to the world—"Automat." It is not, you discover, exactly that, but a combination giant cafeteria, with gulasch, varieties of hot sausages starting with the ordinary hot dog and heaps of the pastries of which the Czechs, like all Slavs, are so fond.

Mr. Small's second article in this series of European sidelights will appear in next Sunday's Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE.

DRIVE ON TRAFIC DANGERS BEGINS ON SOUTH SHORE

Study Accident Causes to Find Remedies.

In connection with the city-wide safety campaign launched by Mayor Kelly, the South Shore Community council is sponsoring a drive to make every south shore resident "safety conscious." Headed by Norman N. Eiger, chairman, the drive is being supported by business, civic and social organizations.

A special committee has been chosen to survey accidents which have occurred on the south shore, and possible causes. Physical hazards, such as hedges, narrow streets and dangerous curves, will be investigated. Efforts also are being made, according to Mr. Eiger, to bring about strict enforcement of all trafic regulations, and the abolition of the practice of "fixing."

Enlist School Aid.

By means of drama skits, the children in the neighborhood schools will be encouraged to join in the safety drive. The members of parent-teacher associations, school principals, and faculty, the Boy and Girl Scouts, and the "Y" groups will be contacted for support.

Members of the committee in charge include Andrew J. Reed Jr., Dr. Carl Greenwald, Mrs. Ray Gibson, Paul R. Anderson, I. M. Levy, Harry M. O'Rourke, Mrs. William R. Brookman, Roger Rosenblum, James W. Ryan, Alderman Thomas J. Daley, James J. Danaher, Judge William J. Brooks, Judge George A. Rooney and Harry AuBuchon.

Organizations Listed.

Others are Dr. Lewis L. Brown, Charles Bradley, John F. Browne, S. W. Streater, Theodore A. Rehnquist, Edgar L. Schnadig, E. J. Ryan, Dr. Robert H. Offil, Floyd M. LAUNCH 2 MOVES FOR RELIEF OF COUNTY SCHOOLS

Assembly Asks $200,000 from Sales Tax.

an arrangement whereby funds are to be raised for paying the living and transportation expenses of the teachers by holding bazaars and other benefits until money for salaries and operating expenses are forthcoming, as Mr. Aken assured the trustees it would be if the Foster bill is passed.

The Steger schools, with an enrollment of 649 and with 15 teachers, closed last Oct. 31. The district lies in both Cook and Will counties and has a population of 3,566, almost 50 per cent of which is receiving relief.

Exhausts Revenue Sources.

The district has exhausted all sources of revenue, Mr. Aken said. It had already exceeded statutory and constitutional limits in its bonded indebtedness, and has levied the maximum tax rate of $2.

Among the factors that have contributed to the financial dilemma in which the district finds itself is a 48 per cent increase in pupil enrollment within the past nine years, although only two teachers have been added, and the total payroll has been reduced 28 per cent; shut down of the Steger Piano Manufacturing company, which at one time employed 1,800 men; a 40 per cent reduction in assessed property valuations during the last three years; slow tax collections, and the fact that 31 per cent, 39 per cent, and 46 per cent of the tax extensions for the years 1930, 1931, and 1932 respectively remain uncollected. Another unfavorable factor is that the district has too great a bonded indebtedness in the face of reduced assessed valuations.

Indebtedness Mounts.

Its bonded indebtedness is $80,000, while it had other obligations outstanding, as of Oct. 1, 1934, of $65,141. This included maturing bonds and bond interest which fell due on that date totaling $7,521, teachers' orders amounting to $19,008, and tax warants outstanding of $31,415.

Salaries and operating expenses were met prior to the closing on Oct. 31 with receipts from the monthly distributive fund and by issuance of 1934 tax anticipation warants. Since 1934 taxes were not to be put in collection until this year in Will county and not until 1936 in Cook county, and with no more money available, the schools were forced to close, Mr. Aken said.

The Tinley Park school district has a population of 1,487, of which 35 families are on relief. The district has a school enrollment of 213 and a teaching staf of five. Its assessed property valuations have dropped from $1,004,701 in 1930 to $706,488 in 1932, with a corresponding increase in its tax rate from $1.58 to $2.

Tax Levies Insufficient.

Its bonded indebtedness is $43,000, and it has tax warants outstanding of $39,991. Payment of all uncollected taxes would not provide sufficient money to redeem outstanding tax warants, it was said.

The Midlothian school district, with a population of 4,221, has 919 school children and employs 22 teachers. The pupil enrollment of this district has increased 72 per cent since 1926, necessitating added facilities, bonds outstanding totaling $170,500. Teachers' orders total $39,372, and tax warants outstanding, $121,023. Uncollected taxes for the years from 1927 to 1932 amount to $147,968.

The district's assessed property valuations dropped from $3,701,990 in 1930 to $2,223,583 in 1932, while its tax rate has remained at $2. A total of 582 families, or two-fifths of the population, are on relief.

Two Districts Face Closing.

Two other districts will be forced to close their schools unless immediate aid is forthcoming, Mr. Aken said. They are school district No. 156 in Calumet City, and district 152½ in Hazel Crest.

The Calumet City school district has a population of 7,240, of which more than 25 per cent is on relief, while an additional 20 or 25 per cent have not had a steady income for the past three years.

Poor tax collections and a decided drop in assessed valuations have been primary factors in bringing about the district's improvement, the survey showed. Expenses have been reduced by 50 per cent in the last three years, but school officials assert it is impossible to bring their budget down far enough to meet a steadily decreasing tax revenue. The district's educational and operating payroll has been reduced over a three-year period from $32,710 to $15,250.

"About two years ago we compelled the teachers to accept teachers' orders because we had no cash with which to pay them," says a report by P. Harle, secretary of the district. "We have now outstanding $23,526.73 in teachers' orders which we hope to redeem some day, but have not the slightest idea now where we can obtain funds to do this."

Exceed Legal Debt Limit.

The district's assessed valuations dropped from $2,855,417 in 1929 to $1,908,183 in 1932. The district has levied a maximum tax rate of $2, but because of decreased valuations and tax revenue has outstanding debts in excess of its five per cent constitutional debt limit.

The district had total liabilities of $211,620 as of last June 30. Tax delinquencies for the years 1929 to 1932 inclusive amount to $80,994.

Its school enrollment is 558 and it has a teaching staf of 13.

Hazel Crest district with a population of 2,059 and a school enrollment of 416, is only now paying its 14 teachers their December, 1933, salaries. While the district's annual tax levy has increased from $30,000 in 1928 to $55,000 in 1932, there has been a steady decrease in the percentage of tax collection. At the present rate of collection, according to school officials, not more than $7,000 of the 1932 levy will be collected.

57 Per Cent on Relief.

The survey showed that 103 families, or approximately 57 per cent of the taxpayers of the district are on relief.

Other school districts in southern Cook county in need of financial assistance are as follows: Summit-Argo, No. 104; Spring Forest, No. 108; Willow Springs; Justice Park, No. 109; Derby school district, No. 114; Cleveland school district, No. 115, and Maple Lake district, No. 116, all in Palos township; Palos Park district, No. 118; Weir school district, No. 119, and McCord district, No. 120, in Palos Park; Town Line district, No. 129, in Worth; Orland Park district, No. 135; Stehl district, No. 144, 169th street and Crawford avenue; West Harvey district, No. 147, and Homewood district, No. 153, which is just now paying teachers their December, 1933, salaries.

MRS. MARY LANE, LINCOLN FRIEND, IS DEAD AT 97

day in the new home. Attired in billowy hoop skirts, cape and half-handers, she was received with her parents into the congregation of the Rev. Thomas Lane's Concord church, which still stands. The meeting of the minister's young son and the Kentucky belle that sunny morning was to result in their marriage in the old Joel Lane homestead, Feb. 4, 1858.

Mary McGraw Lane was a model homemaker. She made her first window curtains from her petticoats, sewed cloth scraps and made her own carpets to cover the rude floor of the new "home on the hill." All the materials for the clothing of her growing family was home carded, spun, and woven. She was a beautiful seamstress, her daughter reports.

With the cooking, housekeeping, and sewing, young Mrs. Lane administered to the sick of the neighborhood and helped to cut out little garments for the children. "If anyone could get a garment from tiny scraps, Mary Lane could do it," was the town byword.

Lincoln "a Good Chap."

George Lane's law interests brought him in contact with another lawyer in Springfield, a gangling young man named Abraham Lincoln. They became good friends. And when an assassin's bullet halted the career of President Lincoln in 1865, the hearts of the Lanes ached. "He was a good chap," Mr. Lane used to say. One of the Lane children, Thomas, lies buried beside the grave of Ann Rutledge in the old Petersburg cemetery, Petersburg, Ill.

For 50 years the Lanes held open house upon their hill. "Never turn one traveler from the door" was their unwritten motto. "I never locked my door and never lost one cent from any stranger I thus befriended in my home," was George Lane's one boast.

With the passing of the years, Mrs. Lane saw seven members of her family fighting in the service of the United States as war broke out. Her own grandfather had seen service in the War of 1812.

Family of Soldiers.

Both her father and brother fought in the civil war, the one for the Union and the other for the Confederacy. Five grandsons served in the world war, and only four returned. The fifth died of wounds suffered in action.

On the Lane side of the family there were three distinguished soldiers of the Revolution, Maj. John Hinton, Col. Joel Lane, and Col. Barnabas McKinney.

Funeral services were held at 2:30 o'clock yesterday in Farmington, Ill., with interment at Concord, Ill.

Our Lady of Peace Club Will Sponsor Card Party

Our Lady of Peace Woman's club will hold a card party at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at 7050 Jeffery avenue. The proceeds will go toward the Lady of Peace building fund.

C. OF C. OFFICERS ON SOUTH SHORE TO BE INSTALLED

John F. Browne will be installed as new president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce at the annual installation dinner Wednesday evening at the Shoreland hotel.

Other officers to be installed are: First vice president, L. J. Pelegrin; second vice president, W. M. Devine; third vice president, W. J. Bryar; fourth vice president, J. P. Lavin; secretary, David Saper; treasurer, F. E. Downey, and financial secretary, L. E. Armijo.

Directors are J. D. Unwin, representing 79th street; Roger Rosenblum, 75th street; Paul H. Fine, 71st street; Al Wilson, Stony Island avenue; Norman N. Eiger, counsel, and Elmer J. Schnackenberg, advisory counsel.

Among the accomplishments of 1934 the chamber lists in its annual report the formation of an organization opposing erection of a water filtration plant on the lake front from 67th street north 1,600 feet. Feeling that one of the south side's greatest assets is its lake front, the chamber undertook a poll of the residents. The plan finally was discarded, it is reported.

In coöperation with the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, the South Shore chamber endeavored to have the sales tax on merchandise and other articles shown as a separate item rather than be absorbed in the selling price of the article.

During the coming year the chamber will work for the establishment of a bank in the south shore district and the establishment of a bus line on 71st street.

Of course, it would be reassuring to look forward to a workable system of Unemployment Insurance that worked no hardships on any in the community—but first comes the important problem of obtaining employment.

True as it is that one must be an employe to benefit by job insurance, it is equally true that only sound training to perform valuable service will obtain employment for you.

WCFL CLIMBING UNDER NEW CHIEF AND AID OF NBC

New Programs and Plant to Boost Station.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Have you noticed how WCFL has been quickening its pace the last two months? It's practically out of the walkathon class and seems to be emerging as a radio station of importance. And when it puts its new 5,000 watt transmitter into operation at Downers Grove about March 1, its reception is likely to show the same improvement that is already reflected in its programs. The station is now operating at 1,500 watts from Navy pier and the reception is not up to the standard of an up to date broadcasting plant.

Colby Harriman, brought here last fall from New York, as director of productions, seems to have been given more or less of a free hand by Federation of Labor officials in the revamping project. And if he continues making changes at the pace he has started out you won't know the station by the time its new transmitter is put into operation.

Takes Over NBC Features.

All you old KYW fans can find practically all of the former NBC sustaining features, formerly carried by the Westinghouse station, on WCFL now. Among these are Cheerio, the morning inspirational broadcast; Eddie East and Ralph Dumke, Honeyboy and Sassafras, Fields and Hall, the Banjoleers, Phillips Lord from "The Seth Parkers," Jack and Loretta Clemens, the Morin Sisters, and Armand Girard.

In the matter of sustaining dance bands from out of town, WCFL seems to have just about the pick of the lot. Among them are Rudy Vallee, Jack Denny, Hal Kemp, Eddie Duchin, Don Bestor, Dorsey Brothers and Bob Crosby, Enric Madriguerra, Emil Coleman, Jolly Coburn, Harry Sosnik, and Henry Kink.

Develop New Acts.

The station is developing a number of new entertainment units of its own. Next week its Little Air theater is to make its first appearance presenting Ibsen's "Doll's House."

A Philharmonic chorus is in process of development, as is a group of male choristers.

A College of the Air is to be launched with the aid of leading educational institutions in the city.

Irene Castle McLaughlin is to be presented in a series of true life dog stories.

Avis McDonald is the new director of the WCFL studio orchestra. Leo Terry, who has long presided at the console of the organ, is to be replaced by Preston Sellers, another veteran organist.

Well Established Programs.

Among some of the well known names featured regularly on the station are Virginia Clark, singer, actress, and commentator; Grace Wilson, contralto; Mona Van, soprano; Grace Dunn, Ruth Phillips, Clara Lewis, singers; Musical Miniatures with Vera Von and William Owen; Maud Josaphare, literary critic; the Romancers trio, the Melodists, a string ensemble; the University Singers, Herr Louie and the Weasel, and Johnny O'Hara and Jack Elder, sports commentators.

An unusual program is "Skylines," conducted by John Metcalfe each week in the form of an open letter to President Roosevelt. This broadcast has been acknowledged by the White House as a program of merit.

Dolores Gillen on Bing's Show.

Dolores Gillen writes from Hollywood that our report that she is appearing in a Bing Crosby picture is incorrect. The report came from a too ambitious press agent. Dolores is, however, appearing in speaking parts on Bing Crosby's commercial program and doing other radio shows on the west coast. She also confided that she may get a part in a big Universal production. But details can't be divulged yet.

Out of the Grab Bag.

From the point of view of a radio listener, a visit to "Roberta" at the Erlanger is well worth while if only to see and hear the glamorous Tamara, who used to be the star of NBC's Manhattan Merry Go Round, and the take-off on Arthur Tracy, the Street Singer. The satirical impersonations of several other microphone big shots are tops, too. . . . Hall Burnett of CBS special event department has resigned to take over the insurance business of his father, who died recently. . . . Adrian Freiche, George Olsen's pianist, plays a $10,000 Stradivarius. Freiche formerly was concertmaster of the New Orleans Symphony orchestra. . . . Jack McCormick of W-G-N's studio staf, is flying at Municipal airport on his days off.

The New Programs.

The new Ward program, "Immortal Dramas," is an exceptional piece of dramatic work. Those great stories of the Old Testament really come to life in this new hour. It makes a fine addition to Sunday afternoon radio fare. The program is in perfect taste for a program utilizing the scriptures. There is no sales talk—in fact, no commercial copy.

* *

Jackie Heller's show for that Rockford dog food maker is a pleasant 15 minute musical interlude. Jackie is in fine singing form and he is ably supported by Harry Kogen's orchestra. The program is aimed mainly at the ladies. Somehow we feel that the words "horse meat" are just a little strong in a program addressed to the feminine listening contingent.

PARTNERS

Deon Craddock, the winsome young songster, and her partner, Little Joe Rardin, whose programs are heard every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday morning at 11:15 over W-G-N. They will be heard also at 6 o'clock tonight in the finale of the Sunday evening programs for their present sponsor.

ALLEN ON DOGS

Dear Larry:

Here's Town Hall bulletin for this week: Corporation is formed to exercise dogs for New York apartment dwellers, while the band plays "Let's Take a Walk Around the Block!" . . . Ice hocky is now in full swing. Hundreds of youths get set to take it on the shin. . . . One thing worse than a hill-billy song is a hill-billy joke. It's like hayseed—it gets in your hair. . . . Several prominent tennis players turn professionals. Doubtless they want a little net profit. . . . These radio amateurs who are stopped by a bell are optimistic. They hope it'll be a question of "gong but not forgotten." . . . Society hold "old clothes" bazar for the poor. And it's a mean deb who doesn't gave a wrap for charity.

Cordially,

FRED ALLEN.

For his inaugural program Director Weber has arranged a varied program. Raphael Spiro, violinist, and Joseph Vito, harpist, will appear as the instrumental soloists.

For his solo violin offering Mr. Spiro will play "Nana Jota" by De Falla. Joseph Vito's harp solo will offer the first movement from Zabel's concerto.

On Tuesday evening Lawrence Salerno will present songs of four groups of people. They are "Torna a Sorriento," a Neapolitan folk song; "The Pirates' Song" by Tipton, "Tonerno," a Swedish song by Sjoberg, and "Serenata Cubana."

"Romanze" from the opera "Mignon" will be the principal offering of Attilio Baggiore, W-G-N tenor, in his concert with the W-G-N orchestra Friday evening. Mr. Baggiore also will sing "On Wings of Song," "For You Alone," and "Venetian Song."

DELAMARTER TO DIRECT CONCERT NEXT SATURDAY

Becker has invited Dr. Bennett to join in a radio tribute to the collie breed. Owner of the Tazewell kennels, a breeder of collies for thirty years, Dr. Bennett is today considered one of the best informed collie fanciers in America. He is the author of the book "The Collie."

Elson to Report Hocky Contest at 9:45 Tonight

W-G-N will broadcast the final period of the Chicago Blackhawks-Toronto Maple Leafs hocky match tonight from the Chicago Stadium. This is the second game to be played by the two teams within a week. Tonight's broadcast by Bob Elson will start at 9:45 p. m.

Appearing at the Chicago theater this week with Frank Parker, their vocalist, they will be heard on the Chicago Theater of the Air at 9:30 o'clock next Tuesday evening over W-G-N.

STOKES TO START NEW HALF HOUR SERIES TONIGHT

Harold Stokes and the W-G-N dance orchestra will present two half hour programs of modern popular music today. In addition to his regular concert from 3:30 to 4 o'clock Maestro Stokes today inaugurates a new series of Sunday evening programs which will be heard regularly throughout the winter and spring season from 7:30 to 8 o'clock.

On his afternoon program, "Land of the Loon," from the brilliant Adirondack Sketches, will be offered in a special salon arrangement. Leo Shuken has made a special arrangement of an old favorite, "Sometime," and a special waltz medley consisting of "Wonderful One," "Alice Blue Gown," and "Naughty Waltz" also will be included.

A Noel Coward medley from "Bittersweet" will be among the feature presentations of the evening program. This includes "I'll See You Again" and "Ziegeuner." Also included will be "April in Paris," Shuken's arrangement of "Tea for Two," "Mighty Lak a Rose," "Blue Moon," a very popular new tune, and that smooth tango tune, "Adios."

Wednesday evening the dance orchestra will present a half hour of uninterrupted music under the title of "Sweethearts," using Victor Herbert's grand old favorite by the same name for a theme song and presenting twenty-four tunes, all having girl's names for titles.

"Golden Bird" Will Be Heard on Canary Chorus

The Golden Bird, a canary that has appeared on the stage in practically every country in America, the orient, and Australia, will be heard on the Canary Chorus program over W-G-N this morning at 10:45. Nathan Provol, owner of the Golden Bird, has trained many canaries, but his star is one of the few that can follow and carry the notes of any musical number.

RYAN TO RETURN TO VERSIFYING IN NEW PROGRAM

Singing Cadets to Aid in Morning Show.

A new program of reminiscent songs and original poems will be heard, starting this week at 9:45 o'clock Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday mornings. Quin Ryan, master of ceremonies, appearing for the first time on a daytime program, returns to the rôle he had before entering radio—that of a writer of humorous and sentimental verses. For many years Quin wrote almost daily for the "Line o' Type or Two" column in THE TRIBUNE, and later conducted columns on two other local newspapers.

Mr. Ryan will be assisted by the four Singing Cadets, composed of Sam Thompson and Lonny Arnold, tenors; Cal Scheibe, baritone, and Al Strache, bass. Tuch old favorites as "Put On Your Old Gray Bonnet," "In the Good Old Summer Time," "I'd Love to Live in Loveland," "By the Light of the Silvery Moon," and "She's Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage" will be heard on every program.

A new program, catering to the housewife, will have its debut on W-G-N tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. The show known as "Party Making with Mickey" features Miss Eda McCready, social director of one of the Great Lakes steamship lines. Miss McCready will suggest ideas for home entertainment. The program will be heard at 9 a. m. every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Henry Weber's "Musicale Intime" program at 9:10 o'clock tonight, with the W-G-N Concert orchestra conductor playing the piano for the trio in a chamber music program, will present the work of three great composers—Mozart, Schumann, and Haydn. With Phillip Kauffman, violinist and concert meister of the concert orchestra, and Adolph Hoffman, cellist, Mr. Weber will present Mozart's "B Flat Major Piano Trio," first movement; Schumann's "Humoresque" and his great violin and cello duet "Duett" and the brilliant, gay "Gypsy Rondo," by Haydn.

A visit to the land of Robert Burns will be described by Clara Laughlin at 4:45 this afternoon on W-G-N when the famous world traveler, lecturer, and authoress presents her regular Sunday afternoon travelog program. In addition to the talk the sponsors of the program will present a musical of the favorite songs and dances of Scotland, with a special stringed trio, violin, cello, and harp, and a vocal soloist. Included on the musical program will be "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton," and "John Anderson, My Jo."

GARBER TELLS HOW LISTENERS IMPROVE MUSIC

While Jan Garber's W-G-N listeners are at home listening to his broadcasts from the Trianon, they are helping him set the style and giving him program ideas that have won for him the title of "the idol of the air lanes." So claims the diminutive maestro who seriously heeds the advice and ideas of his many listeners who write and advise him.

In his early days at the Trianon, Lee Bennett was featured frequently, but at different times in the program. To many of the listeners this seemed not quite what they wanted for the baritone, and suggestions for changes were forthcoming. The fans felt Lee's voice entitled him to a so-called "star" rating and suggested that Jan give him the No. 1 spot on his broadcasts. Jan thought this a good idea, and in consequence he has for months featured Bennett on the first number broadcast in every program.

Jan also was the recipient of a great deal of "pan" mail from listeners who objected to his "number dedications." These writers felt that when Jan dedicated a song to some birthday or wedding or anniversary celebrant, he was catering only to one person, and was talking about some one that no large portion of the audience knew. In fairness to the majority wanting his orchestra entertainment, they suggested that he stop his program and "number dedications." And since the mail is so overwhelmingly in favor of discontinuance of this practice, Jan has practically ceased dedications.

Margo to Be Heard in "Sally of the Talkies"

Margo, the Spanish dancer of the movies, will appear in the "Sally of the Talkies" broadcast over WMAQ at 2 o'clock today. Her portion of the show will include dramatic bits and a song from her new picture, "Rumba." She will be supported by Marjorie Hannan, Joan Blaine, Bob White, Basil Loughrane, and Henry Saxe.

MITZI GREEN WILL APPEAR 3 TIMES ON W-G-N IN 2 DAYS

Mitzi Green, talented girl actress of the stage and screen, will make three appearances on W-G-N programs during the coming week. At noon today, Mitzi will join Uncle Quin Ryan and his group of youngsters who read the Sunday TRIBUNE comic section over W-G-N. Tomorrow evening at the Midnight Flyers program at Blackhawk restaurant, Mitzi will make her second appearance, while her third showing will be on Tuesday evening when she will travel from the Oriental theater where she is showing on the stage this week to the Chicago theater to take part in the "Chicago Theater of the Air" program at 9:30 o'clock.

MITZI GREEN.

Incidentally, the "Chicago Theater of the Air" broadcast will reunite four old friends of the movie lots when Mitzi meets Jack Benny, radio comedian; Mary Livingston, and Frank Parker. The three radio personalities were featured in the recent picture, "Transatlantic Merry Go Round" in which Mitz also played.

MASSMEETINGS TO ADOPT PLAN FOR WOODLAWN

Co-operation for Mutual Aid to Be Keynote.

Plans for the future of Woodlawn are to be discussed and formulated during a series of four public mass meetings, beginning Wednesday evening in the Hayes hotel, 64th street and Univeristy avenue.

Held under the auspices of the Associated Clubs of Woodlawn, the meetings will provide opportunity for the 75,000 residents of Woodlawn to develop a more active interest in the affairs, both business and social, of the community.

"The Financial Future of Woodlawn" is the topic to be discussed Wednesday evening by Prof. Garfield Cox of the University of Chicago, and Clarence Buetel, president of the new Southeast National bank.

Trade and Coöperation.

Joseph Grayson, president of the Woodlawn Business Men's association, and Dr. Frank P. Hammond, chairman of the Greater South Side Better Housing bureau, will discuss "Trade and Coöperation" Friday evening.

On Jan. 30, "The Youth of Woodlawn" will be the subject of talks by Mrs. Charles E. Merriam and Mrs. Mary Young of the United Charities, and Joseph F. Gonnelly of the Hyde Park High school.

Frank J. O'Brien, head of the East 63d Street council, and James J. Burke, president of the Woodlawn Property Owners' association, will address the final meeting on Friday evening, Feb. 1, on the subject of "Property Owners and Real Estate."

At each of the programs Dr. Alexander Carr will speak on "The Power of Personality in Business."

According to Dr. Glenn M. Tipton, president of the associated clubs, the meetings will be held in an informal manner. A questionnaire, for suggestions and questions regarding improvements in Woodlawn, will be turned over to the audience at the first meeting. During the second and third meetings there will be open discussion of the ideas contained in the completed questionnaires.

Program to Be Adopted.

At the fourth and concluding session, a definite program for civic betterment will be drawn up and adopted, it is announced.

Quoting a recent editorial in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Dr. Tipton explained the underlying purpose of the massmeetings.

"A requirement of democratic government is that people so governing themselves shall be in sympathy with each other. They must be within call of each other. They must have a common idea of what is desirable and workable."

"If given a reason, and shown how, the people of Woodlawn are certain to coöperate in a project of this kind," said Dr. Tipton. "We realize that any discussion of plans for Woodlawn's future which does not give first place to the principle and practice of coöperation, cannot be productive of lasting and constructive results."

Organizations Represented.

Organizations represented in the Associated Clubs of Woodlawn include the parent-teacher associations of Hyde Park, Fiske, Walter Scott, Wadsworth, Sexton, and St. Clara schools, the Woodlawn League of Women Voters, the Woodlawn Woman's club, the Woodlawn Mothers Round Table, the Woodlawn Study club, the Woodlawn W. MARIE LOUISE'S DIARY REVEALS FEMININE TRAITS

English Owner Induced to Sell Volume.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—By one of those startling coincidences which the auction room continually furnishes, the autograph diary kept by the Empress Marie Louise has come to light at a time when the collecting world is agog with excitement over the sale at Sotheby's of the letters which Napoleon wrote to her during the most momentous stages of his career. For over a century this precious document of 133 closely written pages has been in the possession of the family of Lady Thompson, who has been induced to send it for sale on the day following the dispersal of the emperor's dossier. The story of this diary's adventures begins on March 29, 1814, when Marie Louise, in her hurried flight from the Tuilleries, dropped the little volume on the floor of her boudoir. One of her pages in waiting found it after she had gone and carried it to his tutor—who annexed it. Some years later he handed it to his sister, Mlle. Müller, a Swiss governess, who eventually sold it to Lady Thompson's grandmother, Mrs. Smith Windham.

This diary is a very human—and feminine—document. In one particular letter Napoleon had bragged to her about not having suffered from "mal de mer" when on board the Charlemagne. As Marie Louise had never seen a fleet at sea she took the first opportunity to go to Cherbourg. In the intimate pages of her diary she relates her own experiences on the Charlemagne. She counts her wounds and disarray, including two lumps on her head, a sprained wrist, and a gown blackened with tar. When Napoleon lets her see some of his soldiers she finds that he orders her about like a grenadier, and that he is as short-tempered as a sergeant major. She is clever enough not to answer back, and thereby reduces him to silence. Then, as many another woman has said and sworn: "Men are unbearable—and if ever I come back in another world, then no remarrying for me."

The diary fills certain gaps in the Napoleonic dossier. For example, she saw some English prisoners at Verdun, and quickly recognized them as such on account of their proud and independent manner. At Wiesbaden she catches rheumatism because her imperious spouse orders her to take an evening stroll in short sleeves. It has been shown how Napoleon found time to write to her on nearly every day, yet at the time of the battle of Dresden in 1813 she confides to her diary that, because she has not received a letter, she will punish him by not writing for a week. "Only we women love with constancy," she writes.

LIVERPOOL HOME OF HAWTHORNE TO BE RENOVATED

LONDON.—The house in which Nathaniel Hawthorne, the author, lived when he was American consul for Liverpool is to be turned into an apartment house.

Overlooking the Mersey at Rockferry on the Birkenhead shore, it has been visited by scores of writers and historians and thousands of tourists from America.

At the moment the house is almost as it was when Hawthorne occupied it, between the years 1853 and 1857. During the last year it has been occupied.

Hawthorne regarded the house with its domed roof as a "dream house." There are several allusions to it in a series of articles collected under the name of "Our Old Home." So great was his attachment to it that during his last illness he is recorded as having said: "If only I could go to England, I think the sea and the sight of the old home would set me right."

I WOULD LIKE TO TELL HER A THING OR TWO!

"YES, she's a charming woman, and the spirit of hospitality. But she has the wrong idea about coffee. I tried politely to refuse it but she simply insisted. I had to take it. And now I'll lie awake for hours."

Rinso

"Gives the richest suds I ever saw," says Mrs. E. Q. Best, 7650 Eggleston Ave.

"I SEE that Rinso has been tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. That's no surprise to me! I'm sure Rinso would pass every test to which it was subjected—it's such an efficient, economical soap. It gives the richest, longest-lasting suds I ever saw—and such safe suds! My clothes come 4 or 5 shades whiter when I use Rinso—and colored clothes come brighter, too. I find also that dishwashing is much quicker and easier with Rinso."

MRS. ERIC Q. BEST,
7650 Eggleston Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Rinso is marvelous for tub washing, too. Just soak everything in those thick suds—let the dirt float out by itself—rinse—and hang out the whitest wash ever. Clothes last 2 or 3 times longer washed this safe way. Gives creamy suds—even in hardest water. Recommended by makers of 34 famous washers. Safe for your finest cottons and linens—white or colors. Easy on the hands.

AHA! THE TELEPHONE CALL THAT WE FORCED YOU TO MAKE IS HAVING ITS EFFECT—YOUR DETECTIVE FRIEND IS HERE NOW! THAT IS HIS KNOCK. AT LAST WE'VE GOT HIM TRAPPED!
MARY STEELE.. BORIS ARSON!
COME IN, DETECTIVE!
KNOWING THIS TO BE A TRAP, BECAUSE OF WHAT HE HAD OBSERVED WHILE HE AND JUNIOR WERE IN DISGUISE, TRACY HAS HAD THE PLACE SURROUNDED BY POLICE, AWAITING HIS SIGNAL. PAT PATTON AND THE CHIEF ARE IN THE BUILDING'S ENTRANCE . . .
I DON'T THINK TRACY SHOULD HAVE GONE IN THERE ALONE.
DON'T WORRY, CHIEF.
TRACY FIGURES THAT'S THE ONLY WAY TO CAPTURE ARSON'S GANG ALIVE AND SAVE THE LIFE OF THIS WOMAN, WHOEVER-SHE-IS. IF THE CROOKS MAKE A BREAK FOR IT, THEY'LL NEVER GET THROUGH OUR CORDON OF MEN.
THE GREAT DETECTIVE AND HIS STOOL PIGEON.. SHE GOES AROUND SPYING ON PEOPLE AND STEALING THEIR PLANS AND PAPERS... AND HE DOES THE REST.. I MEAN HE TRIES TO.
ARSON, YOU'RE COVERED WITH A .38 IN THIS GOOD OLD RIGHTHAND POCKET OF MINE. IF YOU MAKE ONE MOVE YOU'RE A DEAD MAN. EVEN IF YOUR MEN FIRE AT ME, I'LL BE ABLE TO SHOOT YOU BEFORE I FALL. TELL THEM TO STICK UP THEIR HANDS.
AS THE WORDS LEAVE TRACY'S MOUTH—ARSON MAKES ONE SWIFT MOVE! GRABBING MARY STEELE, HE LUNGES STRAIGHT AT TRACY, USING THE WOMAN AS A SHIELD . . . .
INTO THAT CLOSET WITH YOU, DETECTIVE.
QUICK BORIS!
THROWN BY THE SUDDENNESS OF THE MOVE INTO THE INTERIOR OF THE CLOSET, TRACY HEARS THE DOOR SLAM QUICKLY AND AT THE SAME INSTANT—IS AWARE OF A RESOUNDING CRASH BEHIND HIM . . . .
CRASH!
A GLASS DECANTER—BROKEN TO SMITHEREENS! WHAT'S THAT..? CHLOROFORM!
CHLOROFORM IS RIGHT! ONE QUART OF IT! SO ARRANGED ON THAT SHELF THAT WHEN THE DOOR WAS CLOSED, THE CONTAINER WAS HURLED TO THE FLOOR AND BROKEN!
OPEN THAT DOOR, ARSON! YOU CAN'T GET AWAY WITH THIS. THE PLACE IS SURROUNDED WITH COPS. THIS SHOT WILL BRING THEM UP HERE IN TWO MINUTES!
WE CAN STALL THEM OFF FOR FIVE MINUTES, AND BY THAT TIME YOU'LL BE WHERE WE WANT YOU. AND BE CAREFUL WITH THAT GUN—YOU ALMOST HIT YOUR LADY FRIEND.
BANG
NOW WE'LL FASTEN HER TO THIS DOOR IN CASE OUR VISITORS TRY TO SHOOT THEIR WAY IN!
LET'S GO, CHIEF! THAT WAS TRACY'S SIGNAL! IT LOOKS LIKE THE FIREWORKS ARE ON!

JUST IMAGINE! All you need do is to write not more than 50 words on "Why I Like Pepsodent Tooth Paste" . . . and follow the directions for winning printed at right! And you may win $2500, or $700, or one of the many other real cash prizes in this great Amos 'n' Andy contest! In all, $30,985 in cash awards.

Could anything be easier? It doesn't make a bit of difference whether you're ten years old . . . or seventy. Everybody has the same chance. The very answer you jot down in a moment's time may be the big winner! It's just as simple as that! And really fun!

Tips on winning

A little boy could write: "Pepsodent tastes so good and it keeps my teeth so bright." A mother could say: "I like Pepsodent because I've never found anything so safe for my children's teeth." Or a man could write: "Pepsodent certainly takes off tobacco stains like nothing else I've tried." See how simple it all is? You can do as well or better than these without half trying, can't you? The main thing is to keep your answer clear. Read the column on the left carefully. It tells about Pepsodent . . . and may give you a bright idea. And ask your dealer, too, what he thinks about Pepsodent.

And here's good news! You can't possibly lose in this contest! Because everyone who enters gets a prize . . . absolutely free. Yes sir . . . it's Amos 'n' Andy's own funny map. BUT DON'T WAIT! Just thinking about it won't win! Read the directions for winning at right. Write your letter and send it in AT ONCE. Your entry must be mailed before midnight, Sunday, February 3! Think what you can do with real cash . . . and get busy!

Watch your dealer's windows! Dealers are selling new 10% larger Pepsodent Tube—at a new low price.

DEALERS! and clerks who assist Duplicate prizes of all winners to you dealers . . and cash prizes for clerks, too. Just assist entries in their answers. Attach your sticker label on carton purchased. When your customer wins a prize, you as dealer, will win duplicate prize. If clerk's name is on sticker he will win a cash prize, too.

"Directions for Winning"

1 Read all about the contest on this page. Look particularly for clues to why Pepsodent is a good tooth paste . . . and ask your dealer about it.

2 Write not more than 50 words on the subject, "Why I Like Pepsodent Tooth Paste," on any sheet of paper—and include your name and address, printed on it.

3 Mail your statement, together with the complete cardboard box from a tube of Pepsodent Tooth Paste, to the Pepsodent Co., Dept. 37-1-20, 919 N. Mich. Ave., Chicago, Ill.

4 Each person may send as many different statements as he likes, but each statement must be on a separate sheet, with name and address, and accompanied by complete Pepsodent cardboard box. No entries will be considered without the Pepsodent cardboard box.

5 In the event of a tie, identical awards will be made. Judges are Hildegarde Fillmore, Beauty Editor of McCall's Magazine; Professor James W. Young, University of Chicago; and Katharine Clayberger of Woman's Home Companion. The judges' decision is final.

6 Winners hereby permit use of winning statements and their own names and addresses in radio and printed advertising. Prize winners will be notified by mail as soon as possible after contest closes. No entries returned.

7 All entries must be postmarked before midnight, February 3, 1935.

8 Anyone can enter this contest except employes of The Pepsodent Co., their families, and advertising agents.

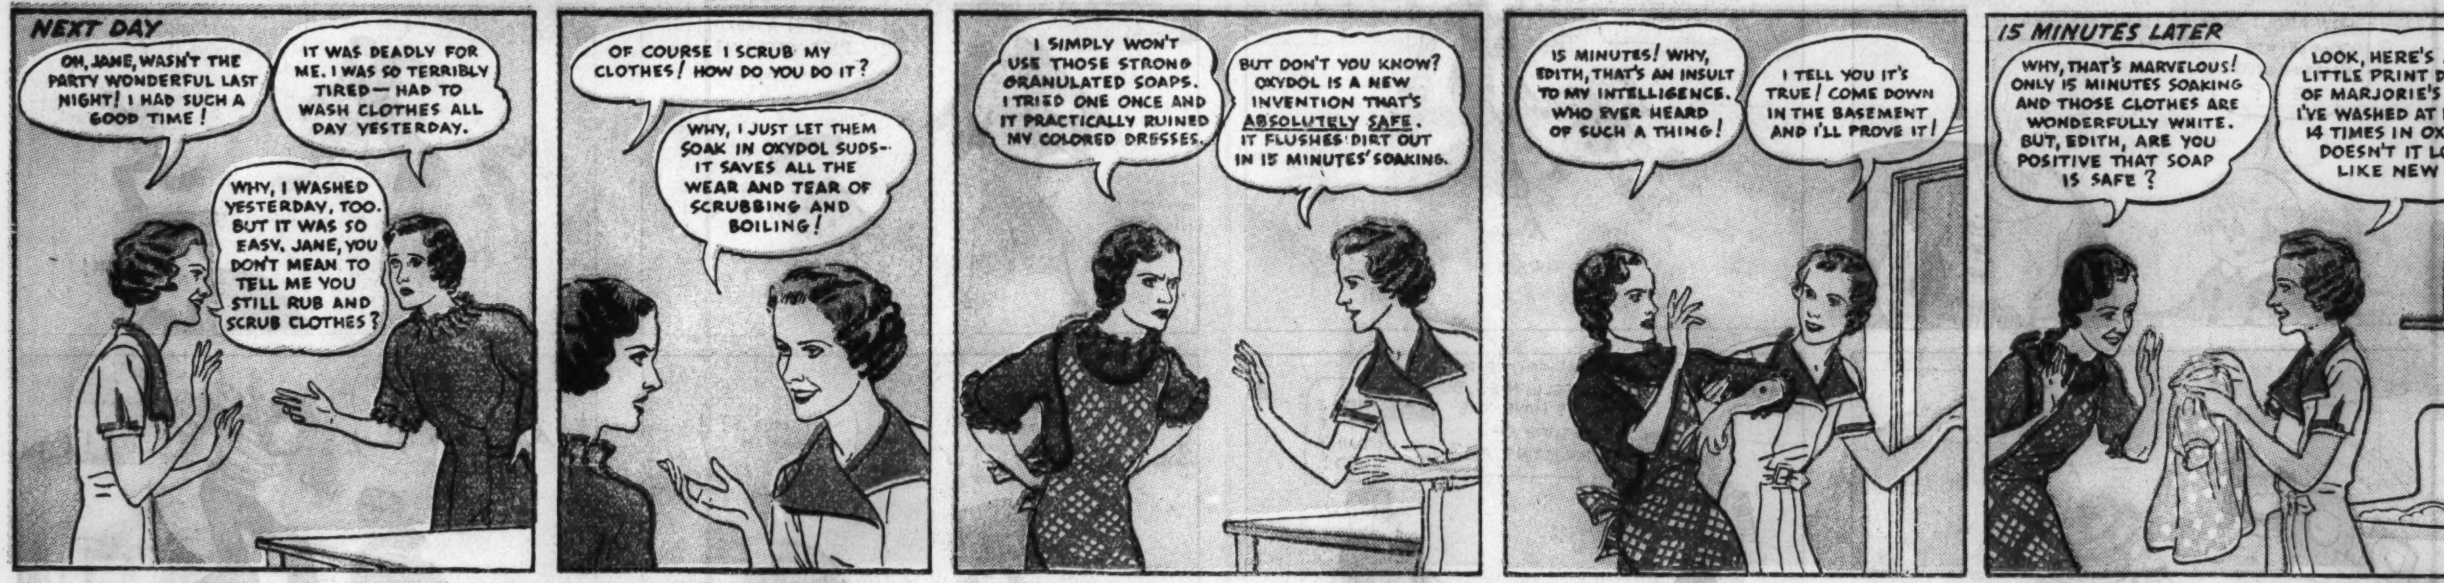
IT OFTEN CAUSES "HARSH WORDS"
THAT'S AN INSULT!
I'M TRYING TO HELP YOU!

"ONCE WAS ENOUGH" THOUGHT JANE- AND QUARRELED WITH HER CLOSEST FRIEND. BUT 15 MINUTES LATER SHE WAS GLAD TO ADMIT THAT EDITH WAS RIGHT!

LOOK AT EDITH! MY, WHAT PEP THAT GIRL HAS. ISN'T SHE LOVELY?
I'LL BET SHE DIDN'T HAVE TO WASH CLOTHES ALL DAY TODAY LIKE I DID.



NEXT DAY
OH, JANE, WASN'T THE PARTY WONDERFUL LAST NIGHT! I HAD SUCH A GOOD TIME!
IT WAS DEADLY FOR ME. I WAS SO TERRIBLY TIRED—HAD TO WASH CLOTHES ALL DAY YESTERDAY.
WHY, I WASHED YESTERDAY, TOO. BUT IT WAS SO EASY. JANE, YOU DON'T MEAN TO TELL ME YOU STILL RUB AND SCRUB CLOTHES?
OF COURSE I SCRUB MY CLOTHES! HOW DO YOU DO IT?
WHY, I JUST LET THEM SOAK IN OXYDOL SUDS- IT SAVES ALL THE WEAR AND TEAR OF SCRUBBING AND BOILING!
I SIMPLY WON'T USE THOSE STRONG GRANULATED SOAPS. I TRIED ONE ONCE AND IT PRACTICALLY RUINED MY COLORED DRESSES.
BUT DON'T YOU KNOW? OXYDOL IS A NEW INVENTION THAT'S ABSOLUTELY SAFE. IT FLUSHES DIRT OUT IN 15 MINUTES' SOAKING.
15 MINUTES! WHY, EDITH, THAT'S AN INSULT TO MY INTELLIGENCE. WHO EVER HEARD OF SUCH A THING!
I TELL YOU IT'S TRUE! COME DOWN IN THE BASEMENT AND I'LL PROVE IT!
15 MINUTES LATER
WHY, THAT'S MARVELOUS! ONLY 15 MINUTES SOAKING AND THOSE CLOTHES ARE WONDERFULLY WHITE. BUT, EDITH, ARE YOU POSITIVE THAT SOAP IS SAFE?
LOOK, HERE'S A LITTLE PRINT DRESS OF MARJORIE'S THAT I'VE WASHED AT LEAST 14 TIMES IN OXYDOL. DOESN'T IT LOOK LIKE NEW?
OXYDOL

ONE WEEK LATER
JANE, YOU'RE JUST MARVELOUS TONIGHT! WHAT'S HAPPENED? DIDN'T YOU WASH TODAY?
OH, JOHN! I DISCOVERED THE MOST WONDERFUL NEW WAY TO WASH. NO RUBBING OR SCRUBBING ... JUST 15 MINUTES SOAKING IN OXYDOL SUDS ... AND YOU SHOULD SEE HOW NICE THE CLOTHES ARE.

IT'S TRUE!
THERE IS A NEW WAY IN WASHING
READ THESE FACTS-MAKE THIS TEST

New Million Dollar Granulated Soap Combines Safety With Utmost Speed. At Last A Safe Fast-Washing Soap That Actually Loosens Dirt Out of Clothes In 15 Minutes' Soaking—Gets Them 4 to 5 Shades Whiter Than Other Soaps Without Scrubbing or Boiling.

● New and Improved OXYDOL is different from any bar, flake, chip or ordinary granulated soap you ever used. Different in the way it's made and in the results it gets.

Due to its patented process of making, OXYDOL dissolves instantly in hard or soft water, and does these things:

FIRST—gives thick, 3-inch suds, rich as whipped dairy cream. Suds that go to work on grease, dirt and stains—in any water—2 to 3 times faster than less modern soaps.

SECOND—sets up a unique, new "soak and flush" washing action. 15 MINUTES' SOAKING loosens dirt out so it flushes away—without scrubbing or boiling.

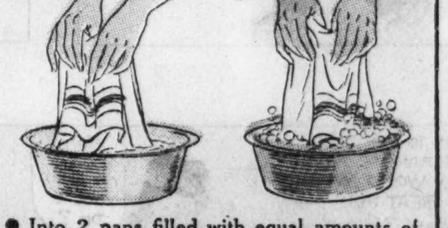
You cut washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine. You save long hours of soaking, scrubbing and boiling—you get clothes clean and white without washboard wear and tear.

And yet, due to its special formula—its special protective combination of mild soap ingredients—OXYDOL is safe. Absolutely safe to hands, colors, and fabrics!

Accept FREE Trial

Send your name and address to Procter & Gamble, Dept. D5-1, Box 1801, Cincinnati, Ohio, and we'll see you get a regular 10c package (enough for 2 full washings) absolutely free. Or to avoid delay—get OXYDOL tomorrow from your own grocer.

YOUR MONEY BACK
If This Test Fails in Your Home



● Into 2 pans filled with equal amounts of water, put equal amounts of (1) your favorite soap and (2) the New and Improved OXYDOL. Then soak a dirty towel in each for 15 minutes by the clock. Then rinse.

● IF IN YOUR OPINION the towel that soaked in OXYDOL doesn't wash out whiter, smell sweeter, take the unused portion of the package of OXYDOL back to your grocer with this ad and get your money back.

HOW TO CUT DOWN RUNS

Just 2 minutes a day with Lux cuts down expensive stocking runs!

As Peggy Lux says—Lux saves the elasticity of the silk so it can give without breaking. Avoid soaps with harmful alkali and cake-soap rubbing—these weaken elasticity. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux! Lux saves men's socks, too!

FOUR MEN

WHO CAN OPERATE CARS.
WILL BE ADDED TO OUR ORGANIZATION MONDAY.

WE NEED A FEW MEN IN CHICAGO WHO CAN OPERATE AN AUTOMOBILE. WE ARE NOT INTERESTED IN MEN DESIRING A RELIEF INCOME, BECAUSE THIS AD IS DIRECTED ONLY TO AMBITIOUS MEN WITH BUSINESS ABILITY WHO DO NOT ANSWER ADS AND INSIST ON AN INCOME IN EXCESS OF $45 A WEEK. TO MEN OF THIS TYPE WE WILL OFFER A BUSINESS OF THEIR OWN COMPLETELY FINANCED BY THIS INTERNATIONAL COMPANY.

We are merchandising an electrical unit that has to do with sanitation, air conditioning, heating, and health, and is being used by the United States government in the White House, congress, senate, government hospital, bureau of standards and many national institutions.

Without any investment on our part you should immediately earn $35 to $70 the first week.

A newly appointed representative who started last week earned his first five days $127. That man's name is Terry. Another man, Johnson, earned Wednesday, $77.20 for one day. Many men are averaging from $10 to $40 a day.

Our merchandise is priced to sell today as low as 15c a day and many men established in this business have a definite bonus guaranteed six months in advance of from $50 to $300 a month, which protects them against sickness or some other unforeseen condition. This is in addition to their weekly commissions earned.

We want to meet men of character and ability. We care not how skeptical you are, we are prepared to prove that this is a big money maker now.

Investigate Monday, Rm. 1022, Mather Tower, 75 E. Wacker-dr., at 11 a. m. or 2:30 p. m. only.

DUE TO OUR 1935 EXPANSION PROGRAM WE WILL EMPLOY 10 ADDITIONAL MEN WHO LIVE ON WEST SIDE AND WESTERN SUBURBS.

If you are a man of good business judgment, willing to work for success and want a permanent connection with a financially sound company, well organized, and making money, you may be the man we are looking for.

A few examples listed below will give you some idea of the possibilities here, and if you come in for a frank discussion of this business your past experiences and qualifications for success with this company, you will find just the depression-proof business you have been looking for and one that is not seasonal. This month so far is ahead of June, July, August, September, October, November, or December of 1934.

A recent week we paid E. Wilfong, a former tailor, $161.80 for one week's work, while J. P. Swift, a former farmer, drew $101.60. The same week we paid many Chicago men well over $50 for the week's work. Ten typical examples of these men and the commission pay checks they received are as follows: V. Cerny, $65.93; H. Herschend, $125.90; D. Flint, $67.10; K. Brown, $60.57; J. Dahlin, $69.34; R. Bowman, $80.91. Last December Wilfong earned well over $1,000; however, Mr. Wilfong has been with this company more than five years. Another example, Mr. H., new in this business, made approximately $125 his first 4 days.

This is a large national organization operating from coast to coast. We are introducing this extraordinary electrical appliance in additional territory and it has already won unique success and the men putting the job over are earning larger incomes than were ever possible in other lines of endeavor.

Our organization is composed of well-mannered men from almost every trade and profession who realize that success inspires success and will render every assistance possible to new men coming into the business. MEN.

If you live on the South Side or South Side suburbs, let me start you in a profitable business of your own, backed up by our prosperous company.

I have been on this territory exactly nine months and have already set one hundred and ninety-seven men up in business for themselves between Cadillac, Mich., and Mattoon, Ill., and still have twenty-four opportunities left.

I am in control of this territory of a business unique in character, merchandising an electrical unit that has no competition, for which there is an ever increasing demand.

If in a personal interview you can satisfy me that you are honest, reliable and trustworthy and really have a desire to succeed, willing to study and are teachable, you may be the very man I am looking for.

Our business is very profitable. Many of our associates are earning as much as $50 on a percentage basis in a single day, and after they become experienced handling our business receive a sizable monthly income, not regulated by the seasons, as ours is a year round business.

Selling experience not necessary, or if you are selected you are thoroughly trained at no expense to you. Some of our most successful associates never sold anything before joining us.

We stand all expense of your business, such as rent, light, heat, telephone, help, etc., and in addition to giving you merchandise on open account, carry all of your time payment paper.

You do not invest one cent with us. We finance everything.

Our business is depression-proof, as same has increased every month of the last four years with 1934 our busiest year. We have thousands of satisfied customers in the territory and are considered one of the country's outstanding organizations. There are no strings connected with this offer and if you can meet the above requirements you will be granted a personal, confidential interview which will quickly determine our mutual interests.

Apply Monday between 1 and 3, Suite 404 Maryland-bldg., 841 E. 63d-st. [1 block east of Cottage Grove]. Ask for G. A. Buckley.

It's very nice when you close your desk at the end of the day to know that after a short brisk walk, just 5 blocks north of the river, you will come to a quaint little lamp lighted court that makes you feel far away from Chicago, and where up a winding stairway you come to a studio that—well, it has a fireplace, it's cozy, or perhaps a lofty ceiling or 35 ft. living room. Anyway, you like it and you're glad you live there. You are home long before most of your friends with a full evening before you. 2, 3, or 4 rooms, one a bungalow, and we're planning a marvelous 5 room studio. Also shop space.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Alabama.

FARMERS IN BALDWIN COUNTY, ALAbama, are fortunately located; desirable climate, productive soils, good home conditions, abundant rainfall. Several thousand carloads of early produce are shipped to northern markets annually, growers receiving cash at shipping points. The early crops are followed by second crops on the same land. Baldwin County is a proved good prosperous, general farming, live stock, poultry and trucking region. About eighty per cent of the farmers in lower Baldwin are from the North. Good land still available at reasonable prices. For illustrated literature white E. J. Hoddy, General Development Agent, Dept. B-92, Louisville & Nashville R. R. Co., Louisville, Ky.

California.

IN CALIFORNIA SMALL FARM HOMES beat the depression. Such homes are the solution for many of our economic and social problems. Less working hours per week make it possible to derive a good part of the living for the average family from a small tract. California offers this opportunity, where many varieties of fruits and vegetables are grown the year round. The Small Farm Home is a proven success in many localities in California. The Santa Fe Railway has no land to sell, but offers free information service to help you get right location. Low fares to California. A "Best Dressed Woman" Doesn't Exist in the Flesh

Only Composite Creature Can Win Title; Recent List Omits Crucial Names.

By BETTINA BEDWELL.

NEW YORK.—(Special.)—In the dull days of dark December somebody in search of news sprang on the United States a list of twelve best dressed women in the world, compiled, so the stories ran, on the authority of the great Paris dressmakers. Some of the reports sang out boldly the name of Mrs. Harrison Williams as No. 1, the best dressed woman in the world. Others more discreet let the number stand at twelve, with no one lady shining on top as the undisputed queen of clothes. Also, the lists varied.

This pretty myth came at a timely moment, just before the arrival of Santa Claus. Now, in the icy light of January, it may be said that those lists smacked of the favoritism of certain compilers.

There is no woman in existence who deserves the title conferred on Mrs. Harrison Williams. The Paris dressmakers who made this list did not, certainly, represent all of the Below: Color rages in the biggest of spongy bath towels with distinctive borders that contrast with gay hues.

New Bath Linens Burst Into Riot of Exciting Hues

But Plain Beige Towels Walk Away with Prize from Masculine Point of View.

By RHEA SEEGER.

IT looks like the World's Fair Avenue of Flags in most of the stores where they are staging towel and household linen sales for the merry month of January! Recalling the thoroughly antiseptic displays of all white towels and the matching wash rags of former shows, you now need dark glasses unless you are used to blazing riots of color.

A 1935 bathroom rages with color. Think nothing of coming upon blood red oblongs with a white streak across the edge if you are a snooping week-end guest. Or deep blues with whopper initials and monograms in spanking white, or Kelly green numbers to make the Irish cheer, with a cooling bit of white border. But the towels that will make you wonder why they weren't in the using when you were a kid are the nice, dirty beige colored bath blotters that tell no tales about most of the dirt being wiped off dingy fingers instead of being washed.

Seriously, these beige towels are knockouts for a bachelor diggings.

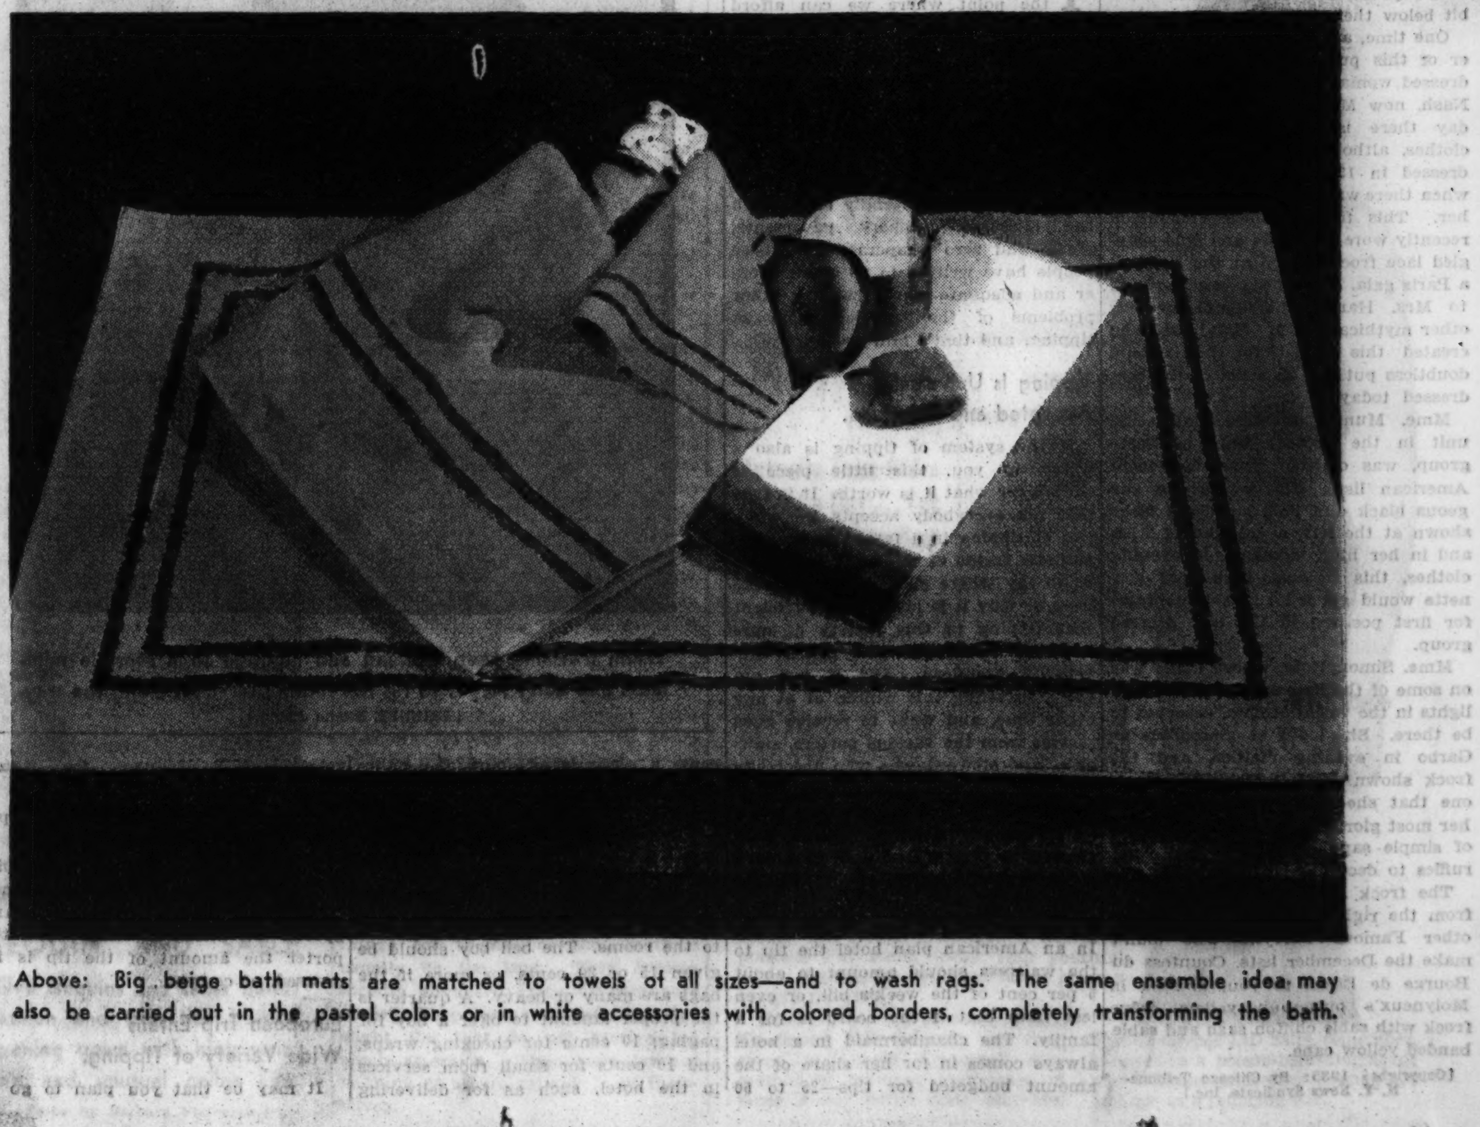
Above: Solid colors in bright, somber, and neutral hues are the newest of decorative bath towels. They bring a vigorous and lively note to the antiseptically white room. Clear white or the pastel shades are accented with tri-toned borders.



Above: Big beige bath mats are matched to towels of all sizes—and to wash rags. The same ensemble idea may also be carried out in the pastel colors or in white accessories with colored borders, completely transforming the bath.

A Best Dressed Woman Doesn't Exist in the Flesh

Only Composite Creature Can Win Title; Recent Lists Omits Big Names.

greatest Paris houses, or the names of Mme. Martinez de Hoz, Mme. Gaston Bergery, Countess de Moustier, and others could not have been omitted, as they were. Those who did name names were cagey enough to avoid such foolishness as citing a No. 1.

These experts on clothes know well that the best dressed woman in the world must necessarily be a composite of at least forty ladies. No one woman, even if she spends fifty thousand dollars a year on her clothes [the figure named], can possibly look superlative every minute of every day for a year. But a group of women such as the Famous Forty in Paris can and do look superlative between them all of the time.

Then there is the eye of the beholder to consider, even if that eye is expert in the matter of dress. The rounded, classic beauty of Countess Georges de Castellane, with its calm, would prejudice even the expert with favor. The tall, slender, unearthly blonde, Mme. Bergery would make others just as expert rush for a pencil to mark her up in place No. 1. The dark vivacity of pretty Princess Jean Faucigny-Lucinge would rate her up on top in the judgment of still another mighty authority. And the cool, groomed sophistication of the Hon. Mrs. Reginald Fellows with her daring in the matter of dress would just as surely make some one else in the group of judges place her name first. And so on through the entire group of women who make up the lengthy list of possible best dressed women in the world, seen from Paris.

On the list, as it came through in the papers of the United States, there were names that would never have been there except through the misguided enthusiasm of some one more interested in getting a group of high sounding names together than in accuracy. Some of the women named have never been seriously considered by any authorities that I know of for membership even in that larger group of the Famous Forty.

Money Clause Is Absolute Hokum.

Baroness Eugéne de Rothschild, former Mrs. Dandridge Spottiswood of Virginia, is one of the Famous Forty to whom every Paris dressmaker would be glad to pay honor as a supremely smart woman. Not many women would get such a universal okay.

Mrs. Lucien Lelong, formerly Princess Paley and now known as Natalie Paley, movie actress, address Hollywood, was for a long time a bright star in the Famous Forty. She has a sense of clothes that is extraordinary and knows what to wear to enhance her delicate, aristocratic beauty. Her name was conspicuously absent from the December list. Perhaps the movies make a bar sinister when Paris picks the best dressed.

And there are others. Be sure of that.

The money clause, that is, the minimum of fifty thousand dollars named as a figure on which it is possible to be one of the twelve best dressed women in the world, is, of course, just so much baloney. There are women who are among the best dressed in the world on any count who spend not one-fifth of that amount, and there are others who at bill time in Paris, which is at the end of the year, get a neat little statement for double fifty thousand but who aren't even also rans.

Lists of "Best Dressed" Change Constantly.

The best dressed vary like any other group. In fact, this particular group has a constantly floating population, some coming, some going, and some staying on a while. No one member, even in good standing, rates "best dressed" as a title all the time. Some look supreme in evening clothes and a bit below their best in sports clothes.

One time, a few years ago, the holder of this purely paper title of best dressed woman in the world was Jean Nash, now Mme. Paul Dubonnet. Today there is no clamor over her clothes, although she is just as well dressed in 1935 as she was in 1925 when there was so much blather about her. This former clothes champion recently wore the beige and gold spangled lace frock shown at the right at a Paris gala. In it she gave no ground to Mrs. Harrison Williams or any other mythical No. 1. Molyneux, who created this model for her, would doubtless put her on a list of the best dressed today.

Mme. Munoz, another scintillating unit in the present Famous Forty group, was omitted from the recent American lists. She wears the gorgeous black and gold embossed cloak shown at the left, a creation of Alix, and in her high moments, in evening clothes, this tropical, high bred brunette would get a lot of serious votes for first position in the best dressed group.

Mme. Simon Rolo, whose name was on some of the lists as one of the high lights in the world of chic, deserves to be there. She looks as glamorous as Garbo in evening clothes, and the frock shown second from the left is one that she wore when she looked her most glorious. It is a Patou frock of simple sapphire chiffon with only ruffles to decorate it.

The frock and cape, shown second from the right, are worn by still another Famous Fortyite who didn't make the December lists. Countess du Bourge de Bozas to you, dressed in Molyneux's buttercup yellow crêpe frock with sable chiffon sash and sable banded yellow cape.

HEADLINERS IN THE FASHION WORLD

Etiquet Editor Gives Travelers Rules for Tipping

Specific Practices Govern the Gesture Wherever One Accepts Services.

Questions pertaining to etiquet and correct social behavior are invited. For a personal response enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request. Address mail to Helen Bartlett, Etiquet Editor, Chicago Tribune.

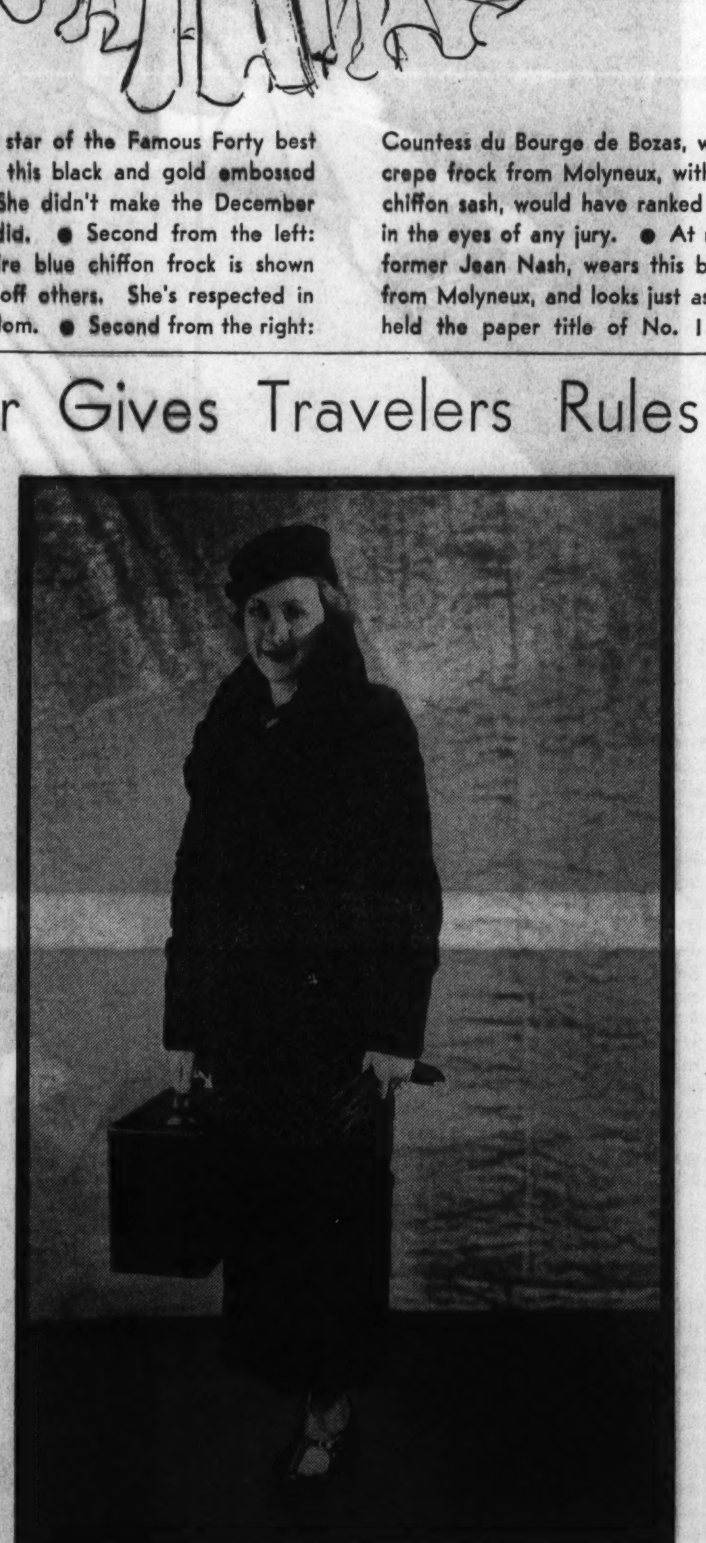
By Helen Bartlett.

THE efforts of this editor at earning a living have not yet reached the point where we can afford the time or the money to spend the winter in the south or enjoy a Mediterranean cruise. We know positively, however, that there are many who plan to take winter vacations and so dispose of the problem of how to keep happy and comfortable, and how to remain on friendly terms with the blizzards, slippery pavements, slush, and zero temperatures. These people have written to us about proper and adequate wardrobes and other problems of the traveler, such as tipping, and that's how we know.

Tipping Is Universally Accepted and Practiced.

If the system of tipping is also a worry to you, this little piece is offered for what it is worth. It is true that not everybody accepts the practice of tipping in a favorable or sympathetic frame of mind. It is not for us to say where such a custom came from or why it is here. It is sufficient that tipping in this society of ours is firmly established and rather universally practiced. And if you are going traveling this winter, or at any other time, and want to receive good service from the various porters, stewards, and stewardesses who are ready to assist you, you must tip in proportion to the service you demand.

The simplest rule to remember in this connection is that under ordinary circumstances the tip should amount to 10 per cent of the bill. This suggestion can be followed in restaurants. In an American plan hotel the tip to the waitress should amount to about 5 per cent of the week's bill, or even less than that if the board is for a family. The chambermaid in a hotel always comes in for her share of the amount budgeted for tips—25 to 50 cents a night is adequate, depending on the class of the hotel.



When traveling keep clothing and luggage to a sensible minimum and don't forget to tip the faithful servitors along the way.

Other Services Require Tipping by Travelers.

Other services in the hotel which demand a tip include carrying luggage to the rooms. The bell boy should be given 15 or 20 cents, or more if the bags are many or heavy. A quarter is the proper amount to offer a boy for paging; 10 cents for checking wraps; and 10 cents for small room services in the hotel, such as for delivering telegrams, newspapers, ice water, etcetera.

Taxi drivers get the usual 10 per cent of the bill.

Twenty-five cents a day, or 50 cents a berth a night, are the customary tips for the Pullman porter. For any special attention required from the porter the amount of the tip is increased, of course.

European Trip Entails Wide Variety of Tipping.

It may be that you plan to go to Europe. In that case the important servitors to remember are the room steward or stewardess, the dining room steward, the deck steward, and the lounge steward. Each of them should get from $2 to $2.50 for the entire trip. And if there are any others from whom you have asked service you will remember them in proportion. There is the bath steward, who should be given $1 or $1.50. If you have taken your meals on deck there is another tip. If you have been a bad sailor and have had to have your meals in your room, or have required the services of the ship's doctor, there are those to remember. We hope, however, that it won't be necessary for you to include the last two named in your budget.

Household Queries

Dear Mrs. Bargelt—Can I calcimine over old wallpaper? Have you directions for applying calcimine? I tried to do it once and was not successful. —James F.

Answer—If your paper is on tightly you can calcimine directly over it. If the figure of the paper is faint, it probably will be hidden, but if the pattern is rather bold, it may be faintly visible. Send a stamped, addressed envelope for directions on applying calcimine.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: 1. How can I prevent sweating in the pipes in my basement? 2. What makes my kitchen faucet squeal and howl when the water is turned on? 3. What will remove spots on glasses and water pitchers caused by lime in hard water?—K. F.

Ans.: 1. Have your plumber cover the pipes with a good grade of anti-sweat pipe covering. 2. There are worn parts in your faucet which need attention. Do it before the faucet gets past the repair stage. 3. Rub a little vinegar on glasses and tumblers.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Is it true that color weakens the mortar in brickwork and that it is apt to fade? We want a colorful wall in our new house this spring, but we don't want to take a chance on anything going wrong. —R. E.

Ans.: It sometimes happens when cheap colors are used and the mortar is not of the proper mixture. If best grade mortar colors are used, and proper mortar, there should be no appreciable weakening of mortar and the colors should be permanent.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will be glad to answer questions about stamps, except questions concerning value. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

RECENTLY a cover bearing the cachet of the Pony Express was illustrated in this section and the correspondence on that occasion indicates that this service is popularly believed to have been handled by Wells, Fargo & Co., a great express company operating at that and at later periods.

However, such was not the case, for the Pony Express of 1860 was operated by a company known as the Central Overland, California & Pike's Peak Express company, organized by John S. Jones and William H. Russell, the latter of the firm of Russell, Majors & Waddell, government freighters. Their service had been instituted to take care of express and letter business from the east to Denver City, then in Kansas territory, where gold had been discovered in the Pike's Peak region in 1859.

One Letter Omitted.

In addition to the cachets showing the riderless horse, there is the one illustrated in an adjoining column. This cover originated in Denver in 1860, and bears the inscription, "The Central Overland Californi & Pike's Peak Express Company—Jul 25—Denver City, K. T."

The United States postage stamp which shows on the cover prepaid the letter beyond the terminal point of the express company. Either by design or accident the final letter of the name California is omitted in the cachet used at Denver. The postage stamp on this cover is not commonly found on express covers, for it was not issued until 1860 and was discontinued with the breaking out of the civil war.

C. P. S. Exhibition.

The annual exhibition of the Chicago Philatelic society brought out a large number of fine displays from collectors in many parts of the United States, and has been the gathering place for local collectors during the week-end now closing. The exhibition will open at 1 p. m. today for the final session and it is hoped that every beginner, as well as all confirmed followers of this indoor sport, will attend.

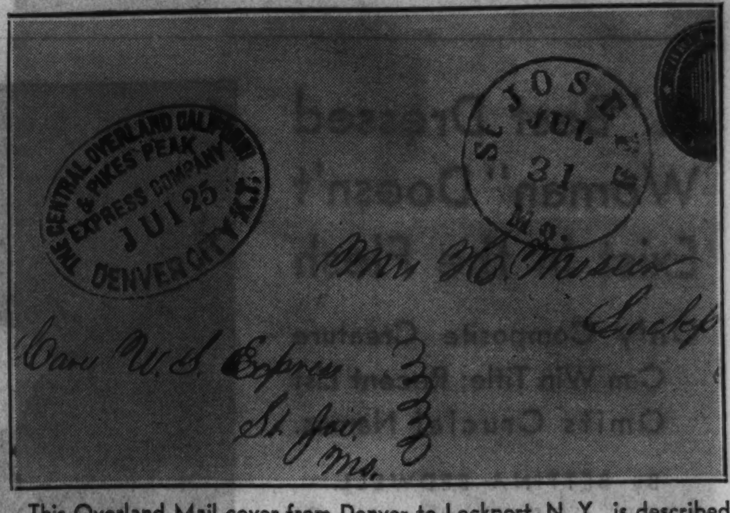
Among the exhibits are many stamps and covers which cannot be duplicated, as well as frames which are designed to demonstrate neatness and the artistic arrangement of stamps. In the former group will be found the great collection of Brazilian "bulls' eyes" formed by S. Newbury of Chicago. He has also exhibited some pages of early United States stamps, including a pair of the 5c New York postmaster's provisional, the only known pair with signature "R. H. M."

Among the Displays.

H. L. Lindquist of New York exhibits the first four issues of Norway, specialized both in varieties, and in cancelations and covers. Eugene Klein of Philadelphia shows the stamps of steamship companies, many of which antedate the government issues of the countries between which the steamship lines operated. He also shows Heligoland stamps used on the original covers, which will assure many collectors who think that all stamps from this state are reprints.

Dr. C. W. Hennan of Chicago shows the complete range of cancelations used by the Chicago postoffice from the earliest date. Paul MacGuffin of Libertyville has pages from his collection of Newfoundland, and Charles Brisley of Detroit shows the early issues of Canada.

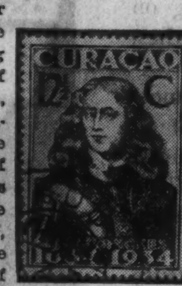
This exhibit is free to all and is on the 18th floor of the La Salle hotel.



This Overland Mail cover from Denver to Lockport, N. Y., is described in an adjoining column.

Tercentenary of Curacao.

The government of Curacao consists of the islands of Curacao, Aruba, and several lesser members of the West Indies lying off the coast of South America, opposite Venezuela. Curacao, the principal island of the group, was discovered by the Spaniards in 1537, but fell into the possession of Netherland in 1634. Except for two brief periods, 1798, and 1806 to 1814, when it was in the possession of Great Britain, Curacao has been a colonial outpost of Netherland. In 1934 a series of stamps was issued in connection with the celebration of the tercentenary of its government. The stamp shown presents a portrait of Jacob Binckes of the Netherland navy. He may be recalled by students of American colonial history, for in company with Cornelis Evertsen and a strong fleet he surprised the city of New York on July 30, 1673, and restored it to Dutch rule under the original name of New Amsterdam. This had a short life, however, as under the treaty of peace the city reverted to the English in 1674.



Cachets.

Sometime during the month of February Col. Michael B. Gilligan, 1418 St. Anthony place, Louisville, Ky., acting for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, department of Kentucky, will apply a cachet to be known as the Autographed Kentucky Colonel cachet to all first class, stamped and self-addressed covers on hand, if this notice or the name of this paper accompanies the request.

* * *

Occasionally the sponsor of a cachet, announced in this paper, remembers this column when mailing out the covers. Robert Kaplan of Rochester, N. Y., heads the list with his courteous note of appreciation for assisting him with his cachets.

* * *

On Feb. 28 the 25th anniversary of the institution of the Boy Scouts organization in America, the American Cover club, Box 475, Asbury Park, N. J., will apply a cachet to all 6¾ size covers, stamped and self-addressed, but unsealed and unstuffed, which are received by Feb. 1. Commemoratives will be appreciated on the outside wrapper. If big hearted, send an extra one cent a cover in loose stamps to help pay forwarding charges.

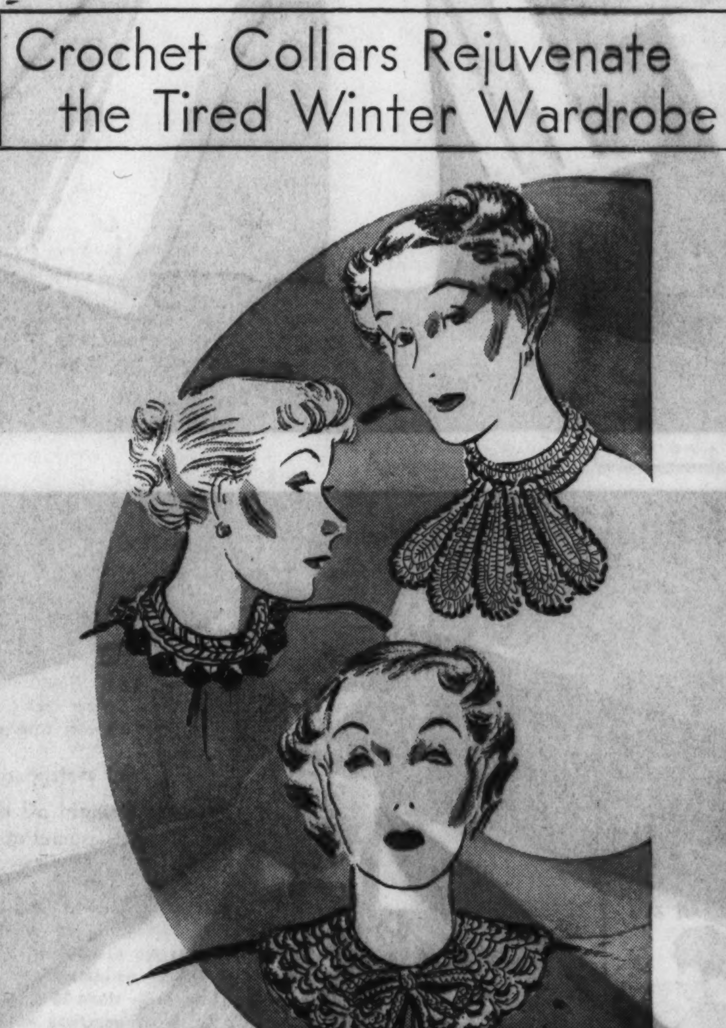
Crochet Collars Rejuvenate the Tired Winter Wardrobe



By Ellen Bruce.

A CHANGE of neckwear does wonders for one's morale at this season of the year. It is a time when a desire for new clothes can scarcely be denied. The three crocheted collars illustrated today are examples of changes which may be wrought in one single costume. The topmost collar is a simple, high necked fashion with five tabs depending from the edge of the turnover collar. It is made of yellow cotton and edged in brown. The stitches are the usual single and double crochet. The second crocheted collar is another "button in the back" model using the double crochet and chain stitches. This also is made of cotton, but all the collars illustrated may be made of fine angora or any of the two or three ply icy wools, saxonies, or zephyrs. The collar at the bottom is a softly flattering style which is round and flat and composed of the loveliest of the crochet stitches, a combination of the chain and shell stitches. The clever little bow and rings afford the only ornamentation on the collar.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the three collars illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune; or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn, and Tribune Tower lobby.

Charm Depends on Enchanting Voice, Manner

It's an Attribute to Envy, or to Earn Through Careful Study.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

THIS is our sixth and concluding chapter on Charm. So perhaps we had better make it a sort of review of the important elements of the gift described in the dictionary as "that which fascinates; alluring quality." Also, Charm is offered by Mr. Webster as something worn to secure good fortune.

The Modern One chooses as her amulet the wearing of an enchanting manner, an enchanting voice, expression, grace. And good fortune does attend her. It's the charming women who are reaping rich rewards all around us. The charmless ones are wondering why fate has such a grudge against them.

Let's begin the review by reminding you again that the great miracle worker, Charm, IS possible to you. It's hidden there in you, waiting to be brought forth. You can cultivate its lures and graces just as well as you can cultivate a better figure, better hair, better complexion. And it's the world left to conquer. It's the art, in truth, that makes the homely woman beautiful and the beauty still more beautiful. Without charm you may be absolutely perfect as to form, feature, and coloring, and be not one bit appealing.

Grace Is Essential to the Lovely Woman.

Grace is an all-powerful element. The body, as some one has said, is our tool of expression. When we are seen we are generally standing, walking, or sitting. So we must stand well, with head stretched tall, shoulders easy, with weight resting lightly on the broad part of the foot. When you walk you must move smoothly and easily, your face, your body, and your feet reflecting perfect physical ease. No loose and hippy waddling; no scurrying along with chin projecting and eyes set fiercely ahead. No slouch, trot, or gallump.

Do the "one-line" walk, not as if one foot were on one track, the other on another track. That calls for a wabble from side to side. Simply keep the chest up, head stretched tall, body stretched tall, and walk on one track.

When you sit don't collapse into a chair! Curtsy yourself into your chair. Stand before it with one leg barely touching the front of it, the other foot slightly advanced, then sink into the chair lightly, with head and back erect as if you were making a curtsy.

When you get up don't rise like a camel, rear end first. Push yourself up and rise all in one piece.

Practice this sitting and rising until it can be done with perfect ease. If you must cross your knees cross your legs well above the knee, so the leg drops down straight, not out at an ungainly angle. The skirt will drape prettily this way and you will have a harmonious line from shoulder to toe.

Strive to Make the Hands Beautiful.

Your hands are terrifically important to Charm. Pick things up lightly with the fingers, not with the tightened fist. Don't clutch. Don't grip. The tense hand and arm make awkward gestures. Rest your hands easily in your lap. Don't cross your arms on the chest in a bunny hug. Loosen the hands at the wrist and exercise them in curves—just move them around in curves, circles, to get the trick of easy grace.

Then for the voice. Speak clearly, distinctly, enunciating every word plainly. Slower enunciation helps improve the vocal tone, too. Watch your voice. Ask about it. Take the bad news gracefully if it's bad news you get—and see what you can do to beautify your voice.

There's infinite charm in the voice, as you know. Practice a little every day on your speaking voice. Make it as conscious a matter of improvement as you do your daily complexion beautifying practice. Good results are equally guaranteed.

Brush up on grammar. You can get wonderful little books, not expensive, from which may be learned proper pronunciations and pitfalls in English to avoid, such as "He went with she and I to the show." Quite charm destroying are grammatical errors. I gave you a list of common errors that shock, coming from pretty lips.

There's poise, another powerful Charm force. With the conquest of standing, walking, and sitting grace, and hand gesture restraint, you gain much poise. But there's mental poise, too, the poise that makes it possible for you to say the graceful thing and charming when you meet people, as opposed to the gaucheries sometimes committed by the person unsure of herself or striving too hard to register.

There's kindness—a most endearing trait in a world of jutting hard edged rocks for most of us. Be kind enough to forego the temptation to criticize harshly. Avoid the temptation to wisecrack unmercifully, to high-hat, to act bored, to cut off another's remarks with a brusque, rude interruption, to listen disinterestedly.

Kindness has great beauty magic. Show me a kind person, a really genuinely kind person, about whom it is not said frequently: "How lovely she is!" And it has a facial beautifying property, this thing of kindness. Kind eyes make an otherwise homely face lovely.

Manners Brand One as Charming, or . . .

There's naturalness, another fine note of Charm. Be unaffected! Be your best self instead of a poor imitation of another. Be your individual self in matters of dress, hairdress, makeup, and so on. Such expression lends great charm.

Then there is the observance of etiquet rules, those things that stamp one as cultured or crude. As things to avoid we might state briefly such actions as calling attention to oneself in public places with loud voice and manner, or even loud clothes and makeup. Don't crowd ahead of your place in a box office line or at a shop counter. Avoid an ungracious tone to those whose duty it is to serve—sales clerk, the janitor, delivery boy, etc.

No woman naturally could express Charm whose table manners are unfortunate. This field of polite expression is wide open to seekers after the right thing to do. Etiquet books are available and many magazines and newspapers as well feature this service gratuitously.

In these lessons I've touched on the great opportunity for expressing Charm the woman in the home has as the always kindly, gracious, decorative hostess to her husband and family, as well as to guests. So we have pretty thoroughly covered the Charm ingredients. Now it's up to you to prove for yourself what a rarely lucky Charm the art of the same name may be.

Here's hoping it brings you what your heart desires! It will. It must. For it has been written times without number that beauty may fail to win—but Charm never does!

Working Wives Subject of a New Research

Teachers' College, Columbia, Back of Careful Survey of Conditions.

By Doris Blake.

THE crucial problem of the present social scene, as the employed married woman is called, is the subject of a study inspired by Teachers' college, Columbia university, presented in book form, authored by Cecile Tipton La Follette, Ph. D.

From the study of the two-time job of the married woman gainfully employed outside her home, one learns among other things that economic necessity is the prime urge for her job seeking—not the desire for a career, or economic independence. Of the 600 odd cases studied, 67 per cent rank first in importance the need to earn, or offer reasons economic in character such as to provide insurance, to educate children, to start a husband in business, and so on.

The social reason looms somewhat dishearteningly to the needy workers who meet officials who dismiss married women as a panacea for the depression. The social reason ranks second. "They like the contacts provided through working."

Some Feel Need of Intellectual Outlet.

A large number of women, Dr. La Follette explains, discover after marriage that the home affords too meager a stimulus and outlet to their intellectual abilities. However, she sees, through the emphasis that is being placed upon home management in some colleges, women who are being educated today are learning that managing a home takes training and that efficient management presents a challenge to the educated woman. Whether the 300 women queried, who enjoyed the outside contacts, would work outside their homes if economic necessity did not force them to do so, is not known.

It was found, however, that of the 652 cases studied, the number of unemployed husbands is 128. The salary for 41 husbands is less than $1,000 while 166 make less than $2,000. The median salary of the working husbands exceeds a few dollars over two thousand a year.

How the married worker handles her two jobs was a paramount feature of the investigation. Good health was given by the great majority of them as the first requisite for doing two jobs. An appreciative husband was offered as the second important factor. Sixty-seven per cent listed as a third factor a husband who was willing to help with the housework.

One of the greatest objections to married women's working outside the home is the tendency for them not to have children. Studies, on the whole, bear out this objection. Of the women considered in the Columbia study 433, or 66 per cent, have no children of their own and 113 have only one child each. Two hundred and nineteen families have a total of 391 children, or an average of 1.78 children per family.

Childless Couples More Open to Divorce.

As a factor of success in marriage children play a real part when judged by the studies on divorce. Alfred Cahen's study in 1932 shows that almost two-thirds of the divorces come from childless couples; that 71 per cent of childless marriages end in divorce, while only 8 per cent of married couples with children are divorced.

Some of the women studied by Dr La Follette said they were loath to bring children into the world when they could not adequately provide for them; that with husband and wife both working they could reach a point financially in three years that would take the husband fifteen years to reach. Twenty of the group volunteered that maternity leave with pay would solve their problem, but only thirteen of these would consider favorably maternity leave without pay. Barnard college, in this respect a pioneer among women's colleges, grants a maternity leave of a half year on full salary or a full year on half salary.

Many women stated, however, that it was impossible to secure a maternity leave from their jobs. To ask for one would be foolhardy in their present occupational status.

Youngsters Learn to Do Housework.

In families where there are children it was found that the boys as well as the girls learn how to work in the homes of these working mothers. These boys, thinks Dr. La Follette, will be able to appreciate their share in homemaking when they establish homes of their own, especially if their wives continue to work. In some of the homes, however, it was found there are children who do nothing, and in others, no doubt, the children may do more work than is good for them.

A great deal has been written and said of the bad effects of the working mother upon the children. Children out on the streets after hours with no one to look after them; building bad habits in regard to personal cleanliness; developing poor food habits; poor school work because of lack of home attention, etc., are a few of the charges. On the other hand, this study finds that there are good effects, too. Children learn to do little things for themselves that mothers usually do too long. They become socially advanced [meeting strangers easily]. They pass over and overcome slight ills that do not receive too much attention. They have learned to think of others as well as of themselves.

Bath Linens Burst Into Riot of Exciting Hues

Huge man-size towels for the yodelers that splash under tons of water and demand huge sheets for the drying sessions. Large and swanky monograms of dark brown can complete their desirability. They are also slick towels for the college men or youths in school who have to tote their own bath accessories with their trunks and other school going equipment.

Next in line are the rather sinister black towels, in all sizes, and are they the dark accents for all colored bathrooms! Again, the initials, border, or monograms are in clear, startling white. Other blazing riots are the Scotch towels—Scotch, not in size, but in grand and glorious plaid designs, finished with circumspect white borders. These, too, are matched with wash rags, as is the case with nearly every towel you buy. Bath mats, nice, soft, mossy looking things that soak up all the surplus water quicker than a flash, also come in designs, colors, plaids, and textures to match the towels. Toweling becomes an esthetic process these days, depending upon your mood. If the "willies" possess your soul any of these dreary midwinter dawns, why not try the orange or yellow towels that comfortably and efficiently dry your anatomy.

Red Bath Towels Quench Sorrows.

If you feel like singing the funeral march from the time you shiveringly turn on the cold shower till you step drippingly out into a cold, cruel world, you can be gorgeously consistent and dry yourself sadly with a black or a blue blotter with a fancy furrowed surface. Or you can drown all your sorrows in towels as red as a sunset or as rosy as dawn. Lastly, you can try out the salmon pink things with dark borders, or the pale green things that should be saved for a sultry summer morn.

Any way you take them, colored or uncolored, all these January specials are the biggest, most comforting body blotters you can buy. All sizes, from specials that might delight giants to the dainty guest size, from wash rags to big bath mats that luxuriously soak up all the excess moisture, are available from the well stocked departments, at grand low prices that feature the brightest and cheeriest displays in town.

Hair Tints Match Shades of Gowns Down Miami Way

SOUTHERN tourists in and around Miami find more than the climate offering a strange and unusual variety of surprises. Your best friend probably will greet you when you arrive in the morning as a natural blonde or brunette, but by noon or night she may have as many shades of hair as her waking hours, if she pleases. The difficult problem of hair dyeing which once caused many a furrow in serene young brows has completely disappeared. Young women may change the color of their hair as they change their gowns. One young woman appeared recently wearing a paisley gown. Her hair was a brilliant purple to match the predominant shade of her dress.

Mugs Assume a Wide Variety of Shapes and Colors

NEVER was there a finer assortment of drinking mugs available than now, nor a more appropriate time for their use. Cold weather calls for hot drinks of many concoctions and these kinds of beverages call for mugs with handles.

At a Chicago store there is an endless assortment of mugs from which to choose. Tall slender shaped ones; fat, pudgy barrel shaped mugs with bright barber pole stripes upon an ivory background. Some mugs are of the popular, gay, polka dot design. A handsome dark brown number with a fine glazed finish has a monk depicted upon its sides. And grouped in this selection are swanky black and chrome mugs of modern design for those who go in for black and white.

PARIS SNAPSHOTS

- Separate fur pieces are being primed by Paris designers for a spring of suits and furless coats. For capelets, fox stoles, and draped fox neckpieces predominate.
- The French milliners are reviving the sailor hat with a shallow crown and rolled or irregular brim for spring wear with the tailored suit.
- Straw that is so shiny you can use your hat to adjust your make-up is being featured by Paris milliners for all kinds of spring hats. Pale blue is the favorite color.
- Hats that make a point of a good profile are being shown in Paris. They have a brim that dips on one side and frames the profile. Schiaparelli, Rose Valois, and others feature them.
- Trimmings for the early spring hat are going to be gay if we can judge by present indications. Brilliant feather fancies in purple, parrot green, and American beauty red are placed on black or navy hats.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Three Products Help Women Smokers Keep Charm and Daintiness.

WOMEN who smoke and the men who abhor that modern custom should rise to rejoice at the advent of three new products that destroy the odor of tobacco on one's breath, one's clothing, and in the room. The first of these is a mouth wash, the second a sachet, and the third a magic liquid used with an atomizer that instantly clears the air of tobacco smoke.

All three are ultra modern solutions to a modern feminine problem. Even the most staunch feminist, defending the right of women to indulge in cigarets, must grant you that there is nothing charming about the acrid scent of tobacco as it clings to feminine hair, clothes, or breath. It's a horrid note, one of the soundest, least answerable masculine objections to cigarets for women.

Fragrant Mouth Wash May Be Carried in One's Purse.

The mouth wash is a honey. Every woman who smokes ought to carry a small flask of it about with her. Just three drops of the delightfully fragrant liquid in a half a glass of water will immediately destroy all cigaret odor or taste. It makes one feel all crisp and clean. And in this connection it's wise to remember that the odor of a tobacco breath is much more noticeable to others than to yourself, which brings us back to the old your-best-friends-won't tell you line. Trite but true.

The taste of tobacco in the mouth is distinctly unpleasant, or at least we never heard any one say it wasn't. And the odor, especially as it clings to a sweetly feminine mouth, is an anachronism of the worst sort. You'll feel better yourself and you'll be an infinitely nicer person to be near if, after a heavy session of smoking, you take the pains to have a quick mouth rinse with a wash such as this which is specially designed to defeat the scent of tobacco.

Little Sachets Are Boon to Heavy Smoker.

The little sachets will remove the smoker's stigma from your clothing if you'll remember to toss one over the neck of the hangers on which you hang your dress and your coat each night. You'll find in the morning that the heavy, stale odor of tobacco has disappeared.

The third of these smoke odor defeaters is less personal. It's a clean smelling liquid to be sprayed moderately about a room that is smoke filled. Four puffs of it do the trick. The smoke clears instantly and the room is pervaded with a scent as refreshing as a gust of clear air. This is a great boon to any one who lives in a small apartment where smokers gather and where one must choose between going to sleep from the fumes or catching cold from a draft: the use of this "smoke eater" adds to the life of any party.

(For information about the products mentioned in this column telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0100.)

Good news for all women smokers! Three modern solutions to a modern feminine problem are a mouth wash that destroys the scent or taste of tobacco; sachets that remove the smoker's stigma from clothing, and a magic liquid that clears tobacco fumes from a room. They are essential to feminine daintiness.

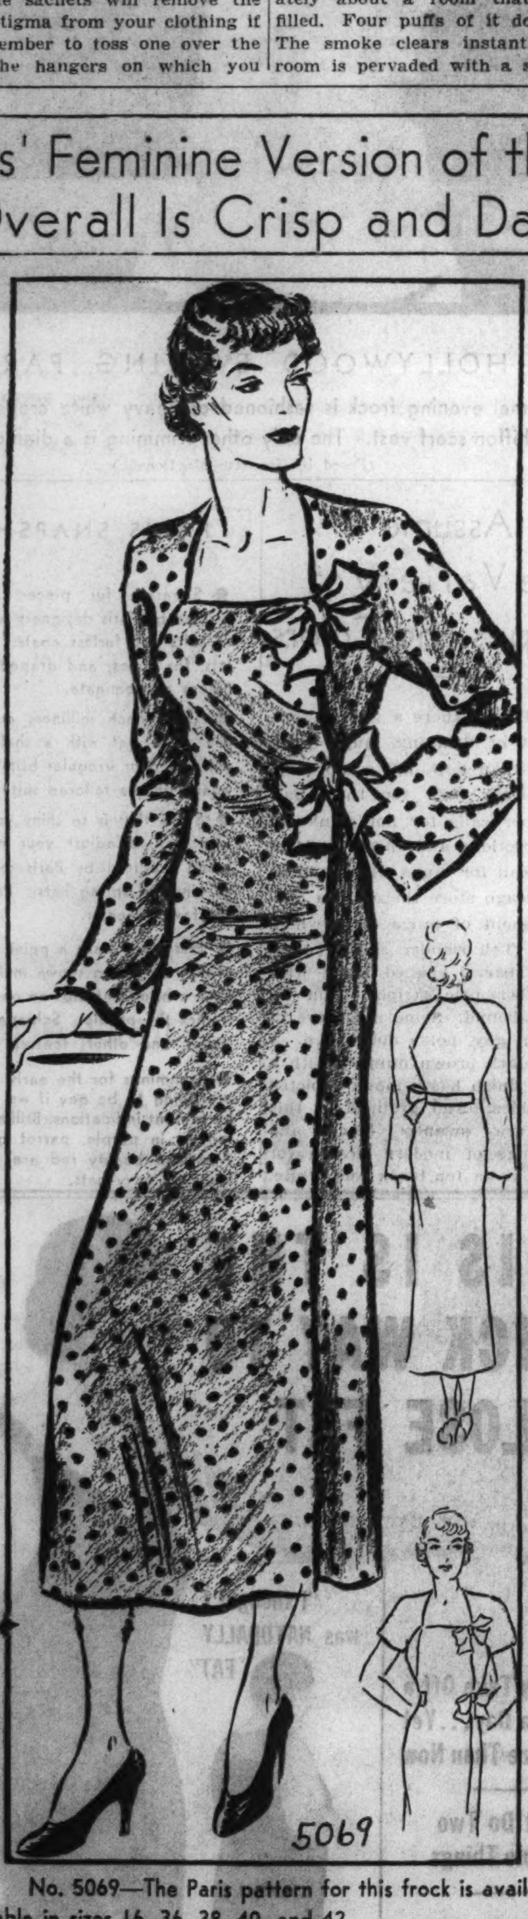
Paris' Feminine Version of the Overall Is Crisp and Dainty



No. 5069—The Paris pattern for this frock is available in sizes 16, 36, 38, 40, and 42.

By Bettina Bedwell.

THE Frenchwoman going about her household duties likes to wear what the English call an "overall." It is a house dress that may be used as a slipover apron to put on over street clothes, or as a dress. Our Paris pattern is designed like the French overall and makes a dainty and charming garment for the busy housewife.

It can be ironed flat and is therefore easy to keep fresh and attractive. It fastens simply on the two dainty bows at the left side of the front.

Make this dress of percale or cotton if you like, and choose some fresh and appealing pat[illegible] the dotted design in whi[illegible] shown. Fashion the bows [illegible] white or colored lawn without design, or of the goods. The Frenchwoman often makes her house dresses of washable silk, the kind used for men's shirts. She claims they wear longer and wash easier. You might try this if you are the kind to experiment. Blue and white dotted material with white lawn ties would make you a charming dress from this pattern—a frock you can wear with pride after your work is done.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, Jan. 21.

A good resolution to adopt is to "Plan a Garden," for at this season one may erect castles—on paper. Changes can be made until by the time construction begins a nearly perfect garden will have been realized. Those who can afford to engage an architect should do so, but no one should fail to include their own ideas, if sound, in the scheme.

Tuesday, Jan. 22.

It is a good time to start forcing branches of shrubs into flower. The following force easily and if given suitable containers are a decided asset to the interior decorations: goldenbell [Forsythia], pussy willow [Salix discolor], Cornelian cherry [Cornus Mas], alder [Alunus], birch [Betula], hazel [Corylus], double flowering plum [Prunus triloba], pawpaw [Asimina], sassafras, maple, and Carolina poplar. The more difficult types are the crabapple, lilac, and others.

Wednesday, Jan. 23.

Save coal ashes to spade under if the soil is heavy. Wood ashes should be protected by keeping under cover to prevent leaching. They contain potash, an essential element for plants. Spray lilacs or other desirable shrubs now for scale. Spray materials may be obtained from the florist supply houses. Watch out for green fly, mealy bugs, and red spiders on the house plants.

Thursday, Jan. 24.

Cuttings of shrubs may be made at this time. Make them eight to ten inches long, tie in bundles, and bury in sand in the cool cellar. They may also be buried below frost in a coldframe or in the garden, if the ground can be dug. By spring a callus will have formed and the cuttings can be lined out.

Friday, Jan. 25.

Build a bird house. Feed the birds during periods of heavy snow. Suet is excellent. Scatter mixed feed over the snow and the birds will remain in the vicinity. The hardy hydrangea and hibiscus may be pruned at anytime because the flowers appear on the new wood.

Saturday, Jan. 26.

Continue to bring in pots of bulbous plants that are rooting in the cool cellar or in frames. Clean the pots, place them in a cool place for a few days, and gradually bring into full light. The roots should be well developed if good flowers are to be enjoyed.

Collar Feature of Attractive New Pattern

Chart Included in the Directions Helps to Simplify the Dressmaking.

By Clotilde.

A BLACK woolen, flecked with white, was used to make the delightfully pretty and wearable dress, pattern No. 3189. The attractive collar that ends in a jabot was made of white rough silk crêpe.

The chart included in every pattern simplifies the making wonderfully. Follow it from start to finish and you shouldn't have any trouble. There is a great satisfaction in making clothes that turn out well, and it means you can have more, because buying the material costs much less than buying something ready made.

The skirt, as you can see, is cut in two pieces, fitting snugly about the waist and hips, and flaring at the bottom enough to make walking easy and graceful. Transfer the seam line marks accurately to your material, and in basting the skirt seams, for instance, baste exactly on the markings.

Then, if any alteration is needed, let out or take in evenly on both sides. Around the bottom the finish can be a narrow hem, but if the skirt is straight enough there, a three inch hem is nice. If many plaits have to be laid to make the hem fit smoothly, a narrow hem is better.

The finish at the neck is chic, and the long sleeves, with buttons that match those on the collar, give just the right finish. One of the rough printed silk crêpes will be smart to wear under your coat.

Here is a charming one piece dress in a printed rough silk crêpe—an advanced idea for spring wear, and the pattern, No. 3199, is easy to use. Dart tucks on both front and back make the dress fit well at the waist, and the long sleeves, flaring at the wrists, are smart.

The deep, open V shaped neck is beautifully filled in with a collar and vestee of a contrasting material and the narrow belt is made of the dress material and fastens with a fancy buckle. One of the sheer woolens will make up well in this design and, of course, there are wonderful colors and designs to choose from.

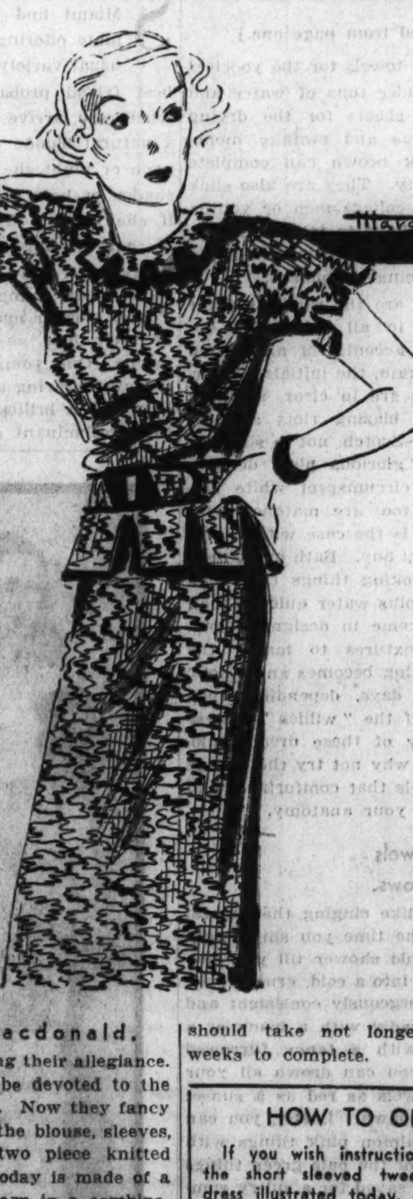
Sturdy Tweed Blouse Introduces a New Version of the Smart Slit



By Jean Macdonald.

SLITS are shifting their allegiance. They used to be devoted to the hems of skirts. Now they fancy the bottom of the blouse, sleeves, and collars. The two piece knitted dressed illustrated today is made of a lightweight tweed yarn in a combination of soft blue and light brown, with an unusual square scallop motif in the blouse.

These smart tweed yarns are a constant source of beauty and wonderment. No two balls of yarn knit up alike, but each one is equally lovely. The skirt and blouse are made in the simplest stitch—the stockinette, or stocking web, as it is sometimes called. The tiny slits are extremely easy to work. The edges are finished with a row of single crochet to match one of the colors in the tweed.

The peplum effect at the bottom of the blouse is one of the smartest spring fashion notes and one not to be overlooked. The set-in sleeves are pert little coverings which take no time at all to do. All in all, the dress should take not longer than three weeks to complete.

New Margarine Registers Gains in Its Pliancy and Its Rich Flavor

By Mary Meade.

WHAT in the world has been happening to margarine lately—it's grand!

Has this sort of housewifely explosion bombarded your ears as often as it has ours this last year? Or have you been one of those pleased ones who have been doing the crowing? However it is, we're delighted to announce that we've taken a run around bases these recent months and have decided that margarine (often called oleomargarine) has done itself proud with a whole string of new improvements and changes in 1934.

Likely the biggest noise about this table and cookery fat is the fact that many of the large manufacturers of all-vegetable margarine can now boast that they're buying exclusively American products—the oils and milk arriving from our native farmlands. Formerly millions of pounds of foreign oils were imported for the making of margarines. What's more, and perhaps what's of even greater appeal to those of us who cook, the scientists have been busy with this shortening that many of us first discovered in war time and instead of a variously flavored, moderately workable, and otherwise not-too-desirable product these commercial margarines—both the vegetable fat and the part or all animal fat varieties—come to us now as sweet and delicate in taste as other fats twice the cost. They're pliable and plastic for creaming even at cold temperatures and they're prepared with such care from excellent ingredients that we can't help finding them pure, wholesome, and perfectly grand for eating.

Either Meat Fat or Vegetable Oil May Be in Margarine.

To make it brief and snappy, just how is margarine made—and what is it good for?

This ambitious young shortening may have hidden away within it the best qualities of any (or a combination of any) of the following: pork or beef fat, cottonseed, coconut, peanut, or corn oils. Always the choice fats or oils used are churned with pasteurized whole milk and combined with salt.

And margarine is good for anything at all for which we need a flavorful fat like butter. It makes perfect cakes and excellent pastries, turns up gayly in countless types of cookery, equals the advantages of butter in certain sorts of frying, and finally it may be colored if desired and used as a highly desirable table spread.

Chewy Fruit Cookies Popular with Whole Family.

Cookies are cheery little tricks in which to show up the educated, creamy qualities of margarine. Here's a chewey fruit one which will make the cooky jar the most popular spot in the house:

FRUIT COOKIES.

1⅓ cups margarine
1⅓ cups brown sugar
¾ cup granulated sugar
3 eggs, well beaten
2 tablespoons water
½ teaspoon almond extract
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
5 cups sifted flour
1⅓ teaspoons soda
⅓ teaspoon cinnamon
¾ teaspoon salt
¾ cup raisins, chopped
12 candied cherries, chopped
1 cup cut-up nut meats

Thoroughly cream together the margarine and sugar, then beat in the eggs. Combine the extracts with the water. Sift together the flour, soda, cinnamon, and salt. Add the dry and the liquid ingredients alternately to the creamed mixture, stirring after additions. Add the fruits and nuts, blending well. Roll out the dough on a lightly floured board to one-quarter inch thickness. Cut in rounds or fancy shapes and place on a greased cooky sheet. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) until done—about eight minutes. This will make eighty small cookies.

Vegetable Fat Works Smoothly Into Orange Cakes.

Small, gay cakes—orange in color and in flavor—are but one variety of the many in the cake clan achieved with margarine.

INDIVIDUAL ORANGE CAKES.

2-3 cup margarine
1½ cups sugar
3 cups cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons evaporated milk
6 tablespoons water
¼ teaspoon orange flavoring
Orange vegetable coloring
4 egg whites

Cream the margarine, add the sugar and cream until light and fluffy. Combine the flour, salt, and baking powder and sift three times. Add to the creamed mixture alternately with the liquid ingredients, a little at a time. Fold in the stiff beaten egg whites. Add orange flavoring and vegetable coloring to tint cakes to the desired shade of orange. Pour into greased muffin tins and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) twelve to eighteen minutes, depending upon the size of the tins. Cool and frost with a seven minute icing.

A pastry tube, steady hands, and a trusty recipe for ornamental frosting are the only requisites for cake decorating. The addition of margarine keeps the frosting creamy while you're adding the frills and trimmings to the cakelets.

THE FINGER CHURCH

By Eleanor Jewett.

My mother has the strangest hands—
They make a church; they make a steeple—
And when the front doors open wide
They make about a dozen people!

My mother's fingers twinkle fast,
I lean against her skirts and stare;
I wonder how that cunning church
She makes with just her fingers bare.

The steeple rises tall as tall,
Her thumbs make stately, massive doors—
And then she laughs and turns her hands
And out the stream of people pours!

A FRIEND IN NEED

Floor Coverings and Baby Carriages Head List of Requests from People in Need; Deserving Families Ask Your Aid.

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

By Sally Joy Brown.

SPLINTERS are always annoying and unless properly cared for are likely to be dangerous. Children seem to acquire them easily and often, even in homes which are properly furnished. Imagine, then, if you can, the problems of a mother with nine small children living in a flat with bare, softwood flooring.

This is the situation in the K. family. The father has been unemployed for some time and a relief organization has been supplying all necessities. Their six room flat is sparsely furnished, but their greatest need at the present time is linoleum or rugs for the floors, which are of soft wood and rough. The children play on the floors and as a result always are getting splinters in both hands and feet. The sizes of floor covering needed are 9 by 12 and 12 by 15, but smaller pieces will, of course, be acceptable.

Have you discarded floor coverings you'd like to pass along to make these youngsters more comfortable? The address is on the north side of the city.

R. R. is in need of a suit of clothing, size 38. He is working for his relief budget, doing canvassing at present, but hopes to secure permanent work in the future. A man of 40, married, and father of two children, he is anxious to improve his present extremely shabby appearance and become independent once more.

Even if he were able to secure laboring work, Mr. C. no longer is able to do it because of a tubercular gland condition. He is under a physician's care at present, but is an excellent musician and has passed all examinations for work as an entertainer. He plays a guitar, but the instrument he had formerly is no longer usable. He feels that a guitar would make him self-supporting and able to provide for his wife and three children. Can you help him secure an instrument?

A group of men in a suburban tuberculosis sanitarium recently appealed to this department. Their only recreation is pocket billiards and, although they have a table, they lack a cover for it. If some reader is able to supply one it will bring these invalids great pleasure for the remainder of the winter months. J. H. signed the request.

Have you a pair of discarded ice skates for a lonely boy in his early teens? G. is a slender, awkward boy who has just returned to his home after spending thirteen years in an orphanage, where he was sent upon the death of his mother. He has no friends in the neighborhood as yet, and little or no recreation. He skates well and enjoys the sport immensely, so if you've a pair of discarded skates you'll make this lad happy by letting me know about them. He wears a size 7 shoe and lives on the south side.

Mrs. J. L. writes from a town in Wisconsin requesting a hand loom for her husband. Although still a young man, he has lost the use of his lower limbs, and consequently, it is necessary that a relief organization support them. Since he is able to use his hands, however, his wife feels that weaving work would be beneficial and perhaps become a means of a small income. Mrs. L. is much interested in needlework of all kinds and will greatfully receive unfinished pieces.

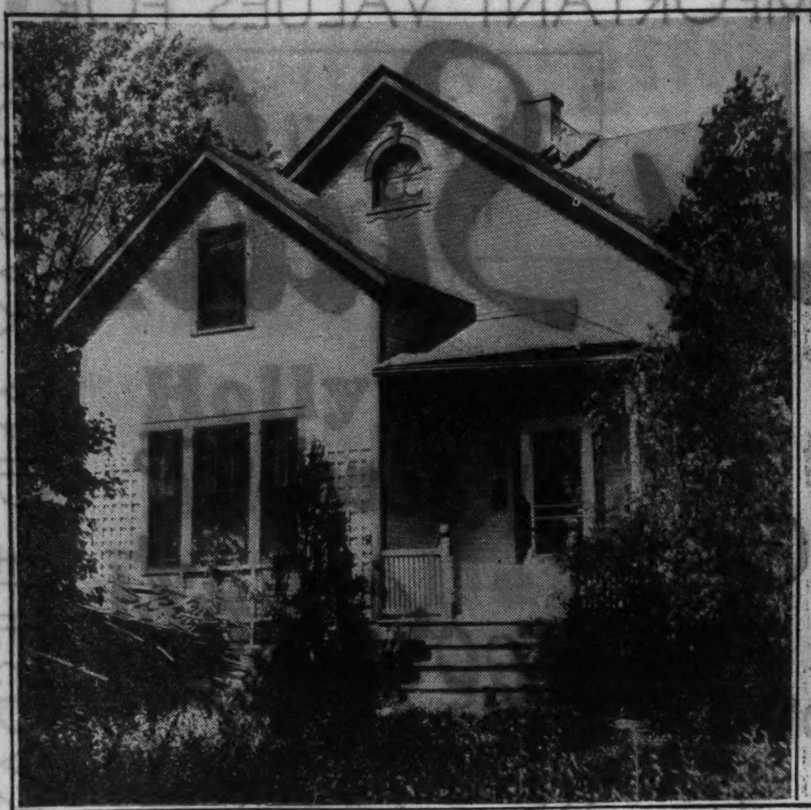
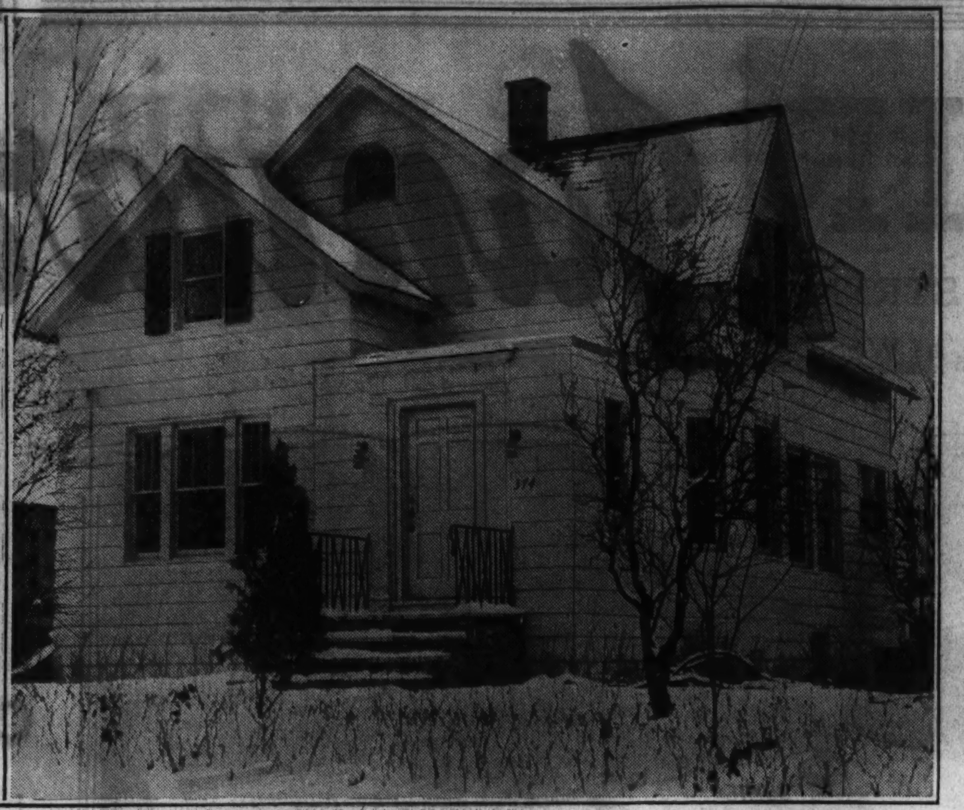
A CHANGE IN ARCHITECTURE



It was last summer that its owners, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Baker Jr., 374 Hawthorne avenue, Glen Ellyn, Ill., decided to remodel this house, No breath taking transformation was attempted, but a practical modernization of an old home into a modern one was achieved. The architect for the remodeling was Harold A. Zook, 140 South Dearborn street, Chicago.



In clever hands, this type of remodeling does pay! It involves far less money than a new home would cost. This house has been rebuilt in the spirit of Cape Cod, with new siding, new roof, new entrance. It has been transformed within by larger, airier rooms, new bath and kitchen, modern heating, plumbing, lighting, and decorations. The warm air furnace is fueled with gas. The floors throughout have been handsomely refinished.

Rebuilding, Even on Small Scale, Is Profitable

Simple Structural Changes Can Work Wonders in Slightly Ageing House.

Planning to do some modernizing this year? Write for booklets by Louise Bargelt, "A New Deal for the Old Basement" and "Modernizing the Kitchen." They are 3 cents each at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby; 5 cents each by mail.

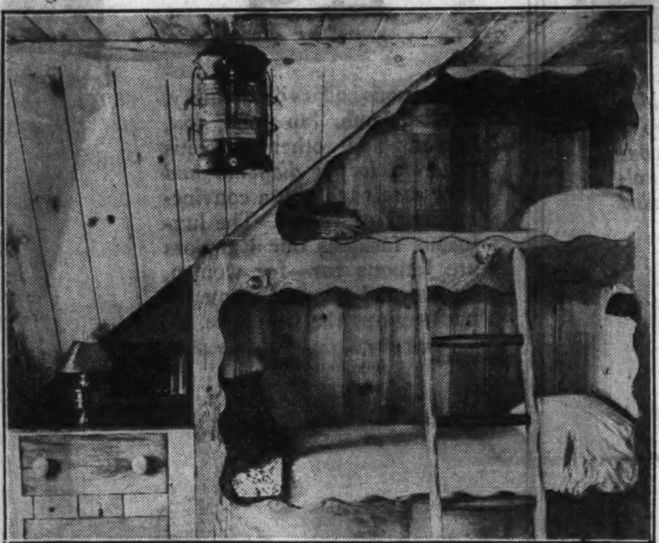
By Louise Bargelt.

THE modernization shown today is no spectacular piece of work. It is not the sort of thing which will make any one gasp in amazement, as before some fifty year old barn transformed into an English cottage, or a seventy-five year old water mill magically converted into a two story studio living room! But it is of much practical value in that it can show to many owners of ageing homes different possible methods of renewing these homes.

This type of remodeling is, moreover, something of which thousands of communities are much in need; that is, the substantial doing-over of basically sound homes which are by no means romantically "tumble down," but which are definitly shabby and drab, old fashioned and outmoded.

Old Porch Replaced by New Front Entrance.

It would be hard to find a better example of the above type of modernization than this home in Glen Ellyn. It is in every way a successful remodeled home.



A delightful little playroom for children, this bedroom with walls of knotty pine and built-in bunks. The pine has been treated with a special type of marine varnish which preserves the finish and brings out the grain and knots in the wood.

To Harold A. Zook, the architect, belongs the credit for the reconstruction. He not only drew the plans which put a new countenance on this home, but he put numerous ideas to work which made of the house a thoroughly modern dwelling. Such remodeling as this definitly pays.

There's a distinct satisfaction, too, in solving any problem, getting on top of a situation. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barker Jr., the owners of the home, have every reason to be proud of the results which they had the courage to achieve. They came into possession of the house last year, and in the summer work was started on its renewal.

No big structural change was made in the exterior. The old porch was removed and a new front entrance doorway and steps were instaled, with marine anchor lights and wrought iron rails. The house was re-sided and its appearance of height was lessened by bringing the siding to the ground. A new roof of dark shingles was laid, and additional insulation was provided.

Interior Changes Are Drastic.

Inside, however, the changes were drastic. No room but received its share of refinishing and redecorating. Besides this, walls were torn down, partitions removed, and quite a different layout achieved.

First, in place of the one time square, enclosed entrance porch, appears an entrance hall, with a window at the right and a large closet at the left. And instead of the small front "parlor" with its narrow door leading into the "reception room" there is a large living room, 18 by 25 feet, with a sun bay at the extreme right.

In the original layout there was a kitchen directly back of the reception hall, and to the rear of the kitchen, a big, old fashioned bathroom. The old kitchen was converted into a breakfast room, and a butler's pantry was built in one end of it. The new kitchen occupies the place of the former bath. The position of the new and the old dining room is identical, except that the new room is smaller than the old one, some of the latter's space having been absorbed by the living room.

Arches have taken the place of the old doorways, the floors have all been refinished. The walls of breakfast room, dining room, living room, and hall are papered. The kitchen walls are painted. The woodwork throughout the house has been enameled a soft ivory.

Closet Remodeled Into a Bath.

On the second floor the changes are quite as transforming.

Originally there was no bath above the first floor. The master bedroom had a long, low, dark closet, and an exposed chimney ran up one wall of the room. A small door cut off this room from the stairway.

This small opening was replaced by large French doors, which give the impression of much greater space. The closet was remodeled into a delightful, all tile bathroom, with a sizable closet, just outside. The old chimney was camouflaged by niches for books. After the changes, this bedroom became a second floor living room. Like the rooms below, its walls and woodwork were entirely refinished.

The second bedroom at the rear was much cut up by dormers. So under one projection was built a gay little dressing room.

Child's Bedroom Given a Nautical Atmosphere.

Perhaps the most novel change of all is in the third bedroom. It has become a child's playroom, with walls of knotty pine. A nautical atmosphere is created by built-in bunks and a ship's ladder leading to the second bed. The room is illuminated by a handsome marine lighting fixture. The walls of lustrous pine glisten and gleam with the special type of marine varnish which has been used to preserve the finish and to bring out the grain of the wood and its knots.

Besides the above mentioned changes, the house has new brass plumbing pipes, new plumbing fixtures, and a new warm air furnace, gas fueled. The lighting fixtures are in harmony with the Cape Cod spirit of the house. In the second floor living room there is indirect lighting. New wall registers have replaced the floor registers. Later, Venetian blinds are to be hung at the windows.

I saw the house last summer when work was just starting on it. Viewing it again, a few weeks ago, so attractively altered into a comfortable modern home, I thought. . . . Yes, it's true, architects have plenty of tricks up their sleeves and can do aplenty for a house! Remodeling is worth while, but it must be well done if it is to be done at all. From a house which no one wants, can emerge a house to delight every one.

Remodeling House Can Be Thrilling Experience.

As one woman wrote recently:

"We've just finished doing over a house. We're thrilled with it. No one thought it was worth the effort but we went ahead. Now every one says it was just wonderful how it all turned out. I wish you'd come out and see it sometime. Don't you suppose you can?"

Well, I am going to see it soon and if the pictures we take of it turn out well I'll run them shortly. I'm always glad to hear of modernizing work going on . . . large endeavors or small ones . . . a single room or a whole house. So long as it's a change for the better—that's what we're all interested in . . . that's what we all want for our homes.

Mrs. Bargelt will speak over W-G-N next Saturday at 2:35 p. m.

New Metalware May Bear Owner's Sign in Zodiac

AN unusually attractive collection of articles which enhance the art of informal entertaining is now on display at a downtown store. Wrought from a new metal, an alloy, the base of which is aluminum, they are formed into a variety of useful and pleasing objects. The hostess will appreciate both its soft lustre, which harmonizes perfectly with silver, and the practical virtues this metal possesses, namely: It is tarnish and stain proof, free from the annoyance of fingerprinting. It is durable enough to withstand hard wear and scuffing.

The craftsmanship shows minute attention to authenticity and perfection of design. The dull silver sheen accented by a brass trim in laurel, heather or thistle pattern lends artistic dignity to any table.

One lovely piece is a lustrous punchbowl, the base of which is banded by a brass floral motif. It is a versatile article in that it can double for a salad bowl. Another attractive piece is a sandwich plate in the zodiac design. If the giver selects the sign that corresponds to the birthday of the recipient these articles become cleverly personalized gifts. The articles range from candy jars to tea services, and are surprisingly inexpensive.

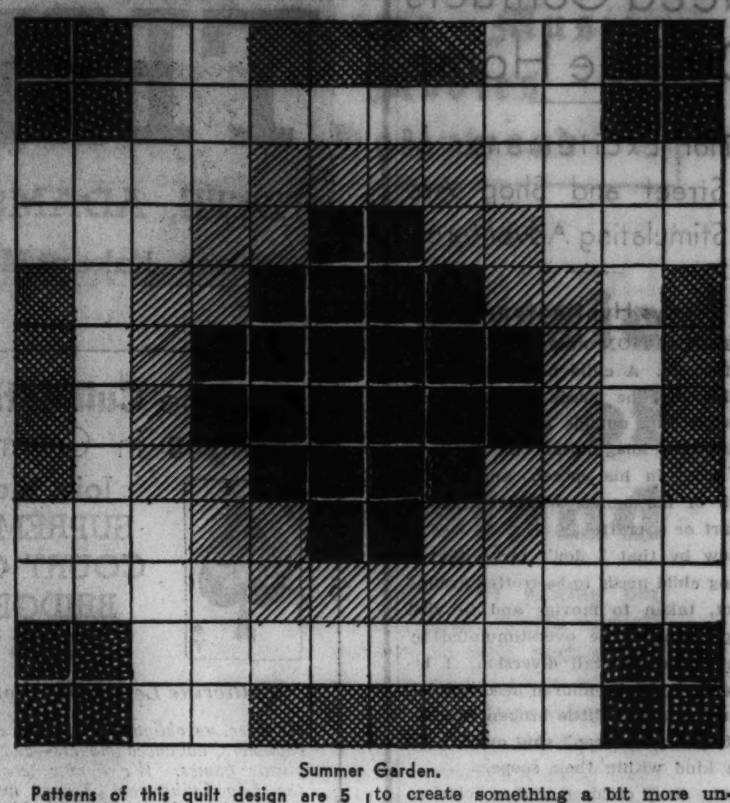
Lovely Quilt Block Based on Forms of Square and Triangle



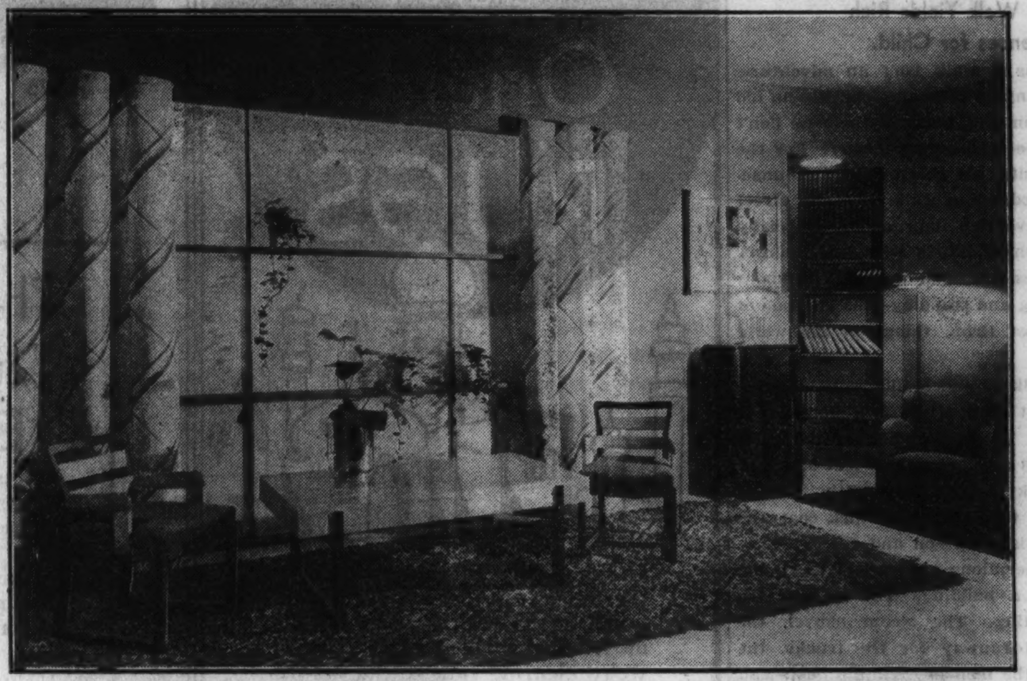
Summer Garden.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

By Nancy Cabot.

"SUMMER GARDEN" was one of the first quilt patterns designed after the period of the crazy quilt died out. Squares and triangles were experimented with to create something a bit more unusual than anything previously made, and it remained for a young southern woman to create a pieced block of outstanding simplicity and exquisite beauty. Of the original pieced blocks no two were alike, and they were pieced in both figured and plain materials and set together with bands of red. Only ten pieced and ten plain blocks are required for the entire coverlet. The completed pieced block measures 18 inches square.

A MODEL OF MODERNISM



Here is a most interesting modern room for the modern radio. Extremely simple, comfortable, and smart, it aroused much praise from visitors to the exhibition, who felt its decore was particularly appropriate for the instrument about which it was built. Note the column-like draperies.

Radio May Be Main Theme of Interior Decore

Designers Use It as Focus of Interest in Drawing Room, Salon, or Lounge.

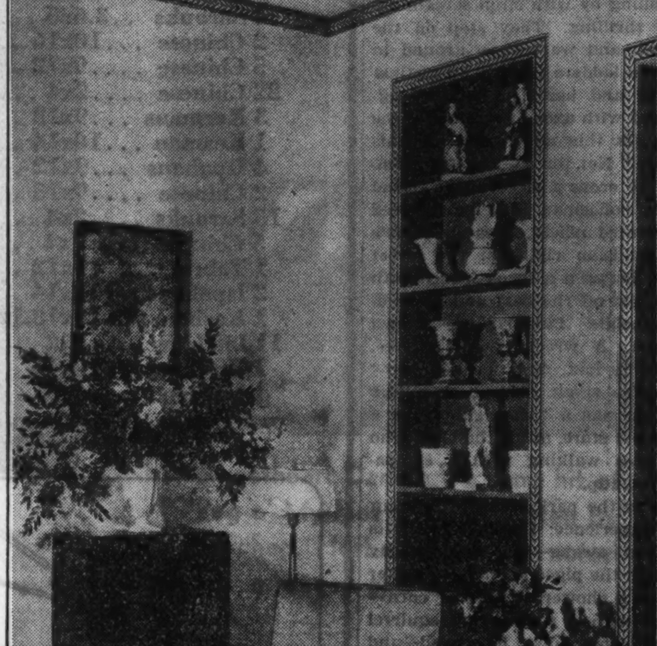
Miss Winslow's new leaflet on kitchen color schemes is now available and is free if your request is accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope. If you are redecorating your kitchen, or plan to do so in the spring, you'll be interested in these attractive color combinations for both light and dark rooms.

By Claire Winslow.

THE radio is such an important adjunct to the average American home, nowadays, that a room has been built around it. Both in New York and Chicago some of the ablest decorators have planned extremely good looking interiors with it as a focus of interest.

In Chicago the Association of Arts and Industries sponsored a most interesting show of these radio rooms recently at the Drake hotel. There were six in all, each showing in its own distinct style and period what could be done for the 1935 music salon.

There was the elegant and sophisticated octagonal silver room intended for a country house, modernized Biedermeier in furnishing; the Regency parlor in Empire green and white, created by the only woman among the designers; the gallery salon for the gathering place of the entire family; the neo-classic drawing room in modern colors; the modern reception lounge, and, finally, an 18th century drawing room.



In a recent exhibition of rooms designed especially for the radio this Regency interior was among the most charming. The color scheme was Empire green and white. A vase of laurel and snapdragons is seen on the handsome radio.

Columnlike Draperies Used for Wide Window.

One of the pictures today shows the reception lounge, contemporary in its decorative scheme. Walls and ceiling were painted a dull sienna [or terra cotta], the floors a walnut brown. The fireplace was set in an alcove which was given an entirely different treatment, the flat surfaces being a sunlight yellow and the facing of the fireplace itself being in brass. The dropped ceiling here concealed lights which shone through porthole shaped, translucent glass openings flush with the surface.

The general color scheme of yellow and brown, found in the rugs and upholstery, was given a vivid dash of life by unexpected touches of forest green and deep purple.

At one end of the room a pie-shaped jog in the wall held open bookshelves beautifully illuminated by a light in the ceiling. A glimpse of this book nook is seen in the picture.

Note the unusual treatment of the wide window. The columnlike draperies are stiffly starched, hand blocked linen, giving an architectural effect. The two interesting chairs are in birch and walnut and the table is quite low, intended for folios and magazines.

The radio is seen under a modern abstractionist painting. On it is placed a lamp, also contemporary in feeling, and nearby a comfortable lounge chair.

What-to-Put-on-Radio Problem at Last Solved.

The other photograph shows the charmingly feminine room, intended for an upstairs sitting and radio room. The large chair is a concession to one's husband. Everything else is dainty, exquisitely feminine. Old bits of needlework are framed and hung on the pure white walls. The open shelves for objets d'art are lined in vivid Empire green and outlined with a narrow wall paper border which also frames the door and is used above the baseboard and where side walls and ceiling meet.

We hope some of the women who write in, asking "What shall I put on my radio?" will study the picture of this delightful Regency room, for nothing could be more charming than the simple white, fluted vase holding green laurel branches and white snapdragons the decorator has used here. The arrangement of the foliage makes a pleasing composition, and the leaves a fragile and lovely shadow pattern on the wall.

The designers of the modern room shown are Harold O. Warner and Robert Switzer Jr. Cornelia Conger planned the green and white sitting room.

Boston Museum Adds New Room in Chippendale

English Drawing Room of 18th Century Brought Here in Every Detail.

By Edith Weigle.

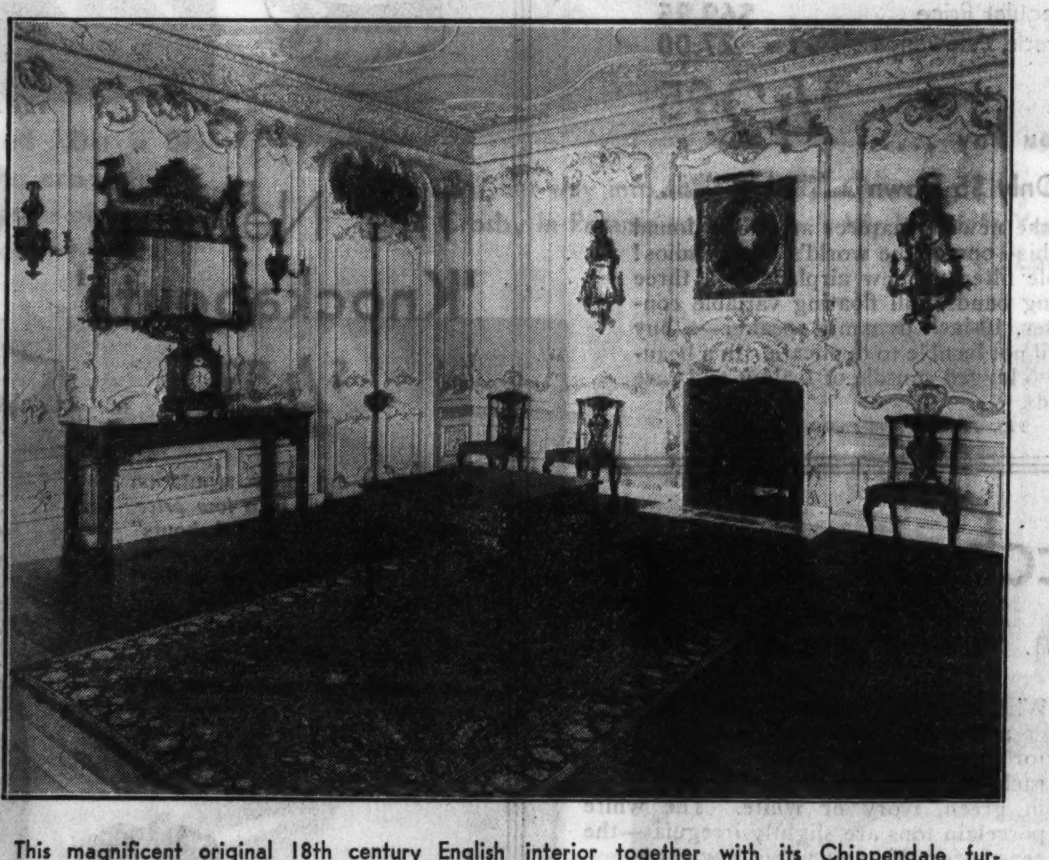
THERE is no better way to appreciate the beauties of Chippendale furniture than to widen your acquaintance with it; to seize every opportunity to learn more about this famous designer's styles; to look at all the examples you can find of his work, and to read about him and his times.

In many museums throughout the country excellent originals or reproductions of Chippendale pieces are to be seen. In California is the marvelous collection of varied types of chairs in the Huntington Collection; in New York at the Metropolitan are examples of American furniture made after Chippendale's directions in his book, "The Gentleman and Cabinet Maker's Director," published in 1754; and now in Boston is a magnificent new addition to the period rooms of the Museum of Fine Arts, a Chippendale interior perfect in every detail.

Manor House Has Since Burned.

The donor of the room and its furnishings is Eben Howard Gay. The story of the gift goes back some years. In 1927 an 18th century English drawing room from Woodcote Park in Epsom, Surrey, was on the English market. In this Mr. Gay saw an appropriate setting for objects "Exemplifying the efflorescence of 18th century decorative art," which he was to present to the museum. He purchased the room. And now it is preserved for posterity as it would not be otherwise, for since that time the manor house of which it was a part has been destroyed by fire. Nothing but the charred walls remain of this former seat of the sixth Lord Baltimore. He occupied the place in the 18th century and added the Chippendale room.

IN MANORIAL ELEGANCE



This magnificent original 18th century English interior together with its Chippendale furnishings is the recent gift of Eben Howard Gay to the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. Here the lover of fine furniture can see just how the style immortalized by the famous craftsman appeared against its own background in the days of "the golden age" of cabinet-making.

Side Table Is in Chippendale's Chinese Style.

The furniture selected by Mr. Gay to complete this interior at the Boston museum includes the most nearly perfect examples produced by cabinet makers of the period that he could find, several pieces being faithful renderings after the drawings in the "Director." There is no reason to exclude the possibility that Chippendale himself may have made several of them.

A photograph of this room is shown today. Notice the elaborate rococo walls and ceiling, the beautiful double door in the left background, and the pair of small gilt framed mirrors flanking the fireplace. The huge side table is in Chippendale's Chinese style, with its fretwork legs and apron. The center table and chairs are marvelous examples of the carving and the graceful cabriole legs for which his furniture is famous.

A small pie crust top tea table, not shown, has a tripod base displaying wonderfully carved sea serpents. Its feet are capped with foliage carving. It dates back to about 1760 and is a rare and fascinating item.

Only the complete installation, now in progress, of a Georgian room is needed to round the Boston museum's series of original English rooms which includes one of the Tudor period, dated about 1490, another from Hamilton Palace of about 1690, and this Chippendale room of 1760.

If you are puzzled about the best method of arranging the furniture in your home, Miss Weigle's booklet "What's Wrong with Your Rooms?" will be of help to you. It is 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

DECORATION QUERIES

Query: "Will you suggest a material for a plain, tailored bedspread in a room done in the modern style? I want a solid color, not a patterned fabric. The window draperies are synthetic silk voile—T. G."

Answer: Are you going to have the bedspread made? If so, choose one of the beautiful new velvet corduroys in either a pale beige, snowy white, or a color that exactly matches the draperies.

◆

Query: "In my living room the walls are creamy white, woodwork the same and the rug is raisin. I have a green davenport, a green lounge chair and now I am going to get new drapery material and a new chair. Will you tell me what color to choose for the chair?—V. R."

Answer: It would be a good idea to cover your new chair in the drapery fabric. Or, you can have a slip cover for it of the fabric. This serves to unify your decorative scheme and is a trick employed by some of the best interior decorators. One of the new printed linens, glazed chintzes, or the more elaborate satin damask would be charming, choosing a beige with a pattern in soft colors to contrast with your rug and davenport.

Query: "Will you please suggest colors for use in a north living room with cream woodwork? The doors are mahogany and a plain Italian red carpet is on the floor. There is a black marble fireplace in this room. The ceiling is ten feet high. S. D."

Answer: I should decide on the drapery fabric first. And try 2½ yard samples, experimenting with several if possible, to see how you like them at your windows. Since your room is spacious I should choose a fabric with a fairly large, splashy design, and one in which light colors predominate. A golden yellow ground and natural toned floral pattern in which there are touches of red to match the carpet would be lovely. Select one of the deeper tones in the drapery—perhaps a blue or green—for the color for your couch upholstery. One of the chairs can match the carpet, and another be in a neutral beige. But let the window hangings be lively.

Young Children Need Contacts Outside Home

Minor Excitements of Street and Shop Are Stimulating Adventures.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

IMAGINATION needs something to feed on. A child needs variety in his life, he needs to experience something outside his home circle so that his imagination can work—in his play, in his speech, and in the work of his hands, whether that be an art or a craft.

Now by that I don't mean that a young child needs to be trotted around a lot, taken to movies and to visit people, and to be overstimulated by what grownups call diversion. I believe that young children need a quiet, regular life with little broken routine. That, however, doesn't shut out variety of a kind within their scope.

Some small children lead so colorless a life that their imagination has no stimulation, their mental life has not the chance to expand. Yet the world outside their home is full of adventure and experience—not adventure and experience as we think of it, but adventure and experience in a child's terms, scaled to his needs. A walk—a trip to a park—a special visit to a railroad terminal if one doesn't have occasion to travel, yield riches of interest and delight and widen a child's horizon.

Just a Walk Yields Rich Experiences for Child.

To us a walk isn't an adventure. The things we see and hear are an old story—in fact, many of them we don't even see or hear any longer. For the child with his sharp eyes and unaccustomedness, a walk on a city street will leave rich impressions, especially if we share things with him, answer his questions, and are patient about stopping and standing—the last one of the most tiring things in the world to do.

A walk may yield different things on different days. Here is a horse on a grocery wagon standing at the curb, who will eat our apple or loaf of sugar. We look at his funny teeth, his soft muzzle, talk about his thick coat and why it is thick—on and on.

Farther along excavations are going on for a building. This is just too fascinating. The steam shovel, the planked runway for the trucks, the mixer, the men in their hip boots and rough clothes—all are noted in detail by the observing eye of the young child.

Park Will Provide a Vivid Nature Lesson.

Perhaps at this moment fire engines come rushing by with siren screaming, red and thrilling. They stop on the next block and we traipse around in time to see ladders thrown up against the house and heroic, helmetted figures armed with axes or hose enter the building. Is this adventure? Is this experience? Not for us—but for them.

Later we cross a street. Our friend the trafic policeman is being assisted by a mounted officer, because there's been a collision right on the street car track between a truck loaded with bananas just off the boat and a speeding automobile. Bananas are strewn all around. A wrecking car arrives. Questions fly fast. This is "somepin" when you're small. These, or milder experiences like a "shoe shine" or a visit to a pet store, await the child who simply goes walking with a sympathetic grownup.

A trip to the park yields a different sort of experience: the lake with its ducks and swans—the bare woody places with the pigeons ready to flutter around at a shower of nuts or corn—the trees with a scampering squirrel who will come down if coaxed—and best of all, the zoo. What food for the imagination all this supplies to a young child—yet many parents do not realize it or make use of the interest—and education—that are at hand for the taking.

And the railroad terminal or the railroad journey, especially if a steam locomotive instead of an electric one is to be seen—what endless play it starts, and how it shows later the keenness of a child's observation. Blocks are assembled and become trains. Or chairs make passenger coaches, and a cap a conductor. Pictures are drawn or painted.

Drama Music Movies Hollywood

Hollywood Adopts Tin Pan Alley

By Rosalind Shaffer

Hollywood, Cal.

LIKE most of the Broadway of five years ago, Tin Pan Alley has moved to Hollywood. Few of the popular tunes of the day emanate from Broadway. It's Hollywood that's writing the songs of the world. Even if a tune is a hit in some musical success on the legitimate stage, it is a cinch that it will be in the movies before long. The public that the movies reach is so much greater than that to which a Broadway show plays that it is no wonder that the song writers have traded the white lights of Broadway for the sunlight of Hollywood. The rewards are much greater.

Stage Their First Field

Movies, on the other hand, have done little about developing new song writers, nearly all the successful ones being carried over from the stage successes. Sometimes song writers get lost in Hollywood and become directors, or other things, as De Sylva, Brown, and Henderson.

How do these boys get started in this most lucrative business? We say boys because this is a field as yet not invaded by the feminine contingent. Getting back to what the background of a song writer is, we can say that they come from very fine musical backgrounds, or from just picking out tunes with one finger. There are all stages in between as well, with a few coming into the field from writing music and lyrics for college dramatics.

The Music Masters of Movieland

A brief aside into the history. It's not so long a time since the early days of films, and many a picturegoer can remember when "Hearts and Flowers," strummed tenderly on the slightly out-of-tune piano and "Red Wing" and the "Chariot Race" from "Ben Hur," thumped heartily, expressed the extremes of sentiment and action in the neighborhood picture house. The present fad of colored slides on the screen, with the words, while the organist plays the tune and invites the audience to join in the singing, is simply a revival of another picturesque movie custom of those early days.

A Big Idea Is Recalled

That relatively crude, artistically speaking, state of affairs gave pain to the soul of Victor Schertzinger, then an orchestra leader in a downtown Los Angeles legitimate theater. He had a big idea, and took it to Tom Ince. It was to supply a distinctive musical score in sympathy with the mood of the picture and written especially for it. Ince seized on the idea, and Schertzinger wrote such a score for "Civilization." David Wark Griffith, with his

Meet the doctor! This is Dr. William Axt, famous conductor of orchestras and a scorer of pictures for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

She sings her way into their hearts. Charming Kitty Carlisle, singing actress of the films, who now is being heard with Bing Crosby in Paramount's "Here Is My Heart." You all remember "Love in Bloom," that captivating tune from "She Loves Me Not."

"Sweetheart Darling," a song hit of "Peg o' My Heart," was written by this chap, Herbert Stothart, noted arranger and composer.

What's a song in the movies without an appealing singer? This is Ginger Rogers, who hypnotizes them with her cabaret type of vocalizing. Remember her in "42d Street," "Flying Down to Rio," and "The Gay Divorcee"? Ginger dances superbly, too.

Yes, the pop-eyed man in the sweat shirt is none other than Eddie Cantor, comedy songster of the films. He is shown rehersing a new song while a couple of his friends of the musical world listen in with attentive ears.

Sweet-voiced Irene Dunne of the cinema, whose dulcet tones are as pleasing as her beautiful features. She has gone far and famously in the pictures since she sang on the stage in that tuneful delight, "Show Boat." She's in the cast of "Sweet Adeline."

Playgoers Are Here; Where Are Enterprising Managers?

Stage Revival and Chicago's Idle Theaters

Five "Ghost" Playhouses Are Available for Use in Next Drama Boom.

By Charles Collins.

THERE has been a turn in the tide of theatrical affairs—a strong current toward recovery. Playgoers are approaching box offices with money in their hands. Legitimate theatrical productions are beginning to move out of New York, where the stage is having a spirited revival, and are seeking new audiences on tour. Therefore the time is ripe for a survey of Chicago's playhouses as they exist in the aftermath of the depression and a study of the opportunities that they may offer to energetic managements.

Five years ago the field of the legitimate stage in this city was represented by nineteen well equipped structures in the downtown region. I will recite their names, alphabetically: The Auditorium, Adelphi, Apollo, Blackstone, Cort, Civic, Erlanger, Garrick, Great Northern, Harris, Illinois, Majestic, Princess, Playhouse, Selwyn, Studebaker, and Woods. All were major or minor houses in the first class category.

This list, when analyzed today, falls into four divisions: Active, semi-active, movie victims, and "ghosts."

Active and Semi-Active Class.

Only three theaters deserve to be called active, with the qualification that during the last three years none of them have been able to record a normal operating "season" within the year of the traditional forty weeks. They are the Grand Opera House, the Harris, and the Erlanger.

Five theaters may be placed in the semi-active class, qualification for which is intent to operate, maintenance of a part time staf, and occasional bookings. They are the Auditorium, the Blackstone, the Civic Opera house, the Selwyn, and the Studebaker.

Six theaters are complete movie victims, now in operation for the exhibition of films. They are the Adelphi, the Apollo, the Garrick, the Princess, the Playhouse [now called the World Playhouse], and the Woods. They can be regarded as lost to the cause of the legitimate stage, although it is quite possible that the congestion of cinema houses on the Rialto will eventually throw some of them back on the market. Re-conversion would be a relatively simple matter in these cases.

Ghost Houses on Auction Block.

Now we come to the "ghost" theaters—interesting patients for the doctors of recovery to study. They are five in number, by name, the Cort, the Civic, the Great Northern, the Illinois, and the Majestic. Let us imagine that these forlorn places are up on the auction block, hoping to be bought by a new and able master. Let us chant a peddler's cry, "Ghost theaters for sale!" and see what happens.

The Cort: A fine tradition for prosperous operation until three years ago, and an excellent location in the heart of the Rialto. Much money has been made there, chiefly by light comedies and farces. Its stage is small and not adapted to plays with a heavy burden of scenery. Any one who wants to put the Cort back into the drama will have to recondition the place, because five months ago its owner, Urban J. ["Sport"] Herrmann became desperate, yanked out the seats and all other equipment, and put it up for sale or lease as a cabaret, an office building, a garage, or a parking place. He had some promising deals on the fire for a while, but they have cooled off. The future of the Cort is an enigma. Mr. Herrmann still keeps his office on the mezzanine floor. Telephone, Central 0019. He lives at the Medinah Athletic club.

Little Civic a Forgotten Place.

The Civic: This theater is not to be confused with the Civic Opera house, of which it is a little sister, under the same roof. It is a beautiful house of the smaller type; any manager with his heart in his business could be proud of its physical aspect. It was the home, during the two winters after its construction in 1929, of the Chicago Civic Shakespeare company, headed by Fritz Leiber. It also had a short active life as a music recital hall. But since the depression its name is seldom mentioned. It is merely a fair fantom of Mr. Insull's grandiose adventure in theater construction. Its location, on Wacker drive at Washington street, is regarded as off the beaten track of the theatrical business, but the value of central location, in this age of swift communications, is a myth to be disregarded. For further information about the Civic see the manager of the Wacker drive opera house structure, D. E. Sawyer. The Continental bank is receiver.

The Great Northern: Only three years ago it was advertised as "the house of hits"—and look at it now. Merely a vacant place within the Great Northern hotel building, tenanted by the ghosts of many great actors. It is one of Chicago's oldest theaters, and is well designed for visibility and audibility, either in the drama or operetta. "The Student Prince" ran for more than a year there, within easy memory. It has the advantage of two box offices and entrances, on Jackson boulevard and Quincy street. For more details see the manager of the Great Northern building, Gordon Smith.

Facts About Illinois, Majestic.

The Illinois: Leading theater of Chicago for many years; the most impressive façade; admirable boulevard location. Now a total derelict, and under sentence of demolition. If restored to use, it must be reconditioned, for its interior had begun to look shabby before the final desertion. I hear that the water tank on its roof, used to raise and lower the curtain by hydraulic pressure, has disappeared mysteriously. There is a bondholders' committee, with headquarters in one of the bank organizations. Harry J. Powers, former owner, or Edwin Wappler, former employé [Wabash 8638] can tell more.

The Majestic: Former first class vaudeville house, occasionally used by operettas. Fine location off State street on Monroe; large seating capacity. It was recently on the market for conversion into a theater restaurant, but that talk has died out. Control of the property is vested in the Lehman estate.

My list of Chicago theaters might have been expanded to twenty by the inclusion of the Goodman, but I omitted it as unclassifiable. It began as a repertory art theater and four years ago subsided to the level of a school for acting and little theater focus. It is a beautiful place, admirably equipped. Any plans that may be made in the future for the establishment in Chicago of an endowed art theater on a high professional basis should start with the Goodman in mind.

SINGING STAR FROM PARIS

Lucienne Boyer, eminent artist of the Paris music halls and cabarets, now on her first visit to the United States, will come to the Studebaker theater Feb. 4 as star of a troupe of European singers and dancers called "Continental Varieties." Mlle. Boyer's professional symbol is a blue velvet gown.

New "Vanities"

EARL CARROLL'S latest edition of his "Vanities" revue will come to the Grand Opera house for one week only, beginning Sunday, Jan. 27.

The company of 100 players includes Ken Murray, the three Rio brothers, Chas Chase, the three Samuels brothers, Helen Charleston, Rosie Moran, Buddy Doyle, Peggy Hoover, Milton Charleston, Donald Burr, Claire Curry, John Kelly, Joyce Johnson, Addie Martin, Edith Fleming, and Rita Dugan. The entire production was staged under the direction of Earl Carroll.

APPEARING IN "JEALOUSY"

Who's jealous here? No sign of the green-eyed monster that we can see in this scene from "Jealousy." Alas — maybe he's lurking just around the corner all set to wipe the smiles from the faces of Nancy Carroll and George Murphy! State-Lake.

New Regime at 885 Club; Cabaret Acts

COMPLETELY rebuilt and redecorated by the architectural firm of Andrew N. Rebori and Edgar Miller, the 885 club resumed activities last Thursday night. Its atmosphere of the speakeasy period has disappeared in a sparkle of modernism in color and the scheme includes many murals by Edgar Miller, including a group of the great generals of history for the so-called West Point bar or "spa." Mario Silva is the featured entertainer. He is a baritone with a range from grand opera arias to jazz songs. Allan Kane's orchestra plays for dancing.

- Countess Emily von Loesen, a ballerina well known in Chicago, began an engagement in the Continental room of the Stevens hotel last night. She has appeared at the Chicago theater and several local cabarets. Lucille Long, contralto, is another new entertainer. Niles Garron and Edythe Bennett continue as ballroom dancers, and the contract with Keith Beecher's orchestra has been extended indefinitly.

- Gus Arnheim's band will begin an engagement as feature of the cabaret program at Chez Paree tonight. He is a pioneer in jazz music, and his first stage appearance dates back twenty years, when he was Sophie Tucker's pianist for a vaudeville tour.

- A new dance team, Jack and Nita Carlton, replaced Woodruff and Struthers in the Olsen-Shutta cabaret show at the College inn last Wednesday night. The ballet group called the Stevenson Girls is giving a "can-can" number with alleged tin cans as costumes. The "celebrity party" next Wednesday night will be in honor of Jack Benny and Mary Livingston from the vaudeville program at the Chicago theater.

- Among the participants in the new floor show in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel are Marc and La Belle, a dance team; Beth and Betty Dodge, and Florence Schubert, singer. Art Kassell's band continues, with Norm Ruvell as balladist.

- Ferde Grofe's orchestra will remain in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel until Feb. 12. The Karre Le Barron adagio trio will continue their dances until Jan. 24. The Four McNallie Sisters, singers and dancers, are popular contributors to these programs. Piano solos by Grofe of his own jazz compositions, such as "Mississippi Suite," "Free Air," and "Metropolis," are extra musical features.

- Colosimo's café offers Adelaide Kirkhoff, prima donna; Don Enrico, operatic tenor; Gano and Rita, a dance team; May Downing in popular songs; Inz Inez Scott, acrobatic dancer, and Bob Tinsley's dance band. Walter Guild is master of ceremonies.

- George Trabert is now the leader of the "Student Prince" octet in the Old Heidelberg inn. He is a veteran of the operetta stage, both in this country and Europe. He was featured in the Broadway production of "Champagne Sec" [a version of "Die Fledermaus"] last year.

- Jules Alberti's tango and rhumba band is a feature of the new régime at the Opera club, 18 West Walton place. Phillipo Cervantes, formerly of the Mexican national band, supplies a side line of Spanish chatter to the numbers. Jack Hall and Lee Knight are instrumental soloists.

IN DRAMA AT THE SELWYN

Drina Hill appears in the early scenes of "Stevedore," the race problem drama now at the Selwyn theater, as a girl whose unhappy love affair gets the Negro dock laborers of a southern city into a great deal of trouble. She is an effective and comely young actress, new on the Chicago stage.

Relief Job Basis of Comeback for Movie Director

J. STUART BLACKTON, whose directorial talent once held sway in Hollywood movie circles, is staging a comeback by working for $52 a month on a motion picture project of the California state emergency relief administration.

"Maybe this will give me a chance to get a real job in films, a foothold on the way back," he said.

Blackton's ability as director and producer led to fame such stars of the past as Mae Murray, Clara Kimball Young, Milton Sills, Theda Bara, Mae Marsh, Ben Turpin, and Barbara La Marr.

Robert Sherwood Scores in Melodrama

Leslie Howard Wins Kudos as Vagrant-Hero

N. Y. Cheers "Petrified Forest" as Perfect Union of Stagecrafts.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Robert Sherwood (it was Robert Emmett Sherwood when he wrote "The Road to Rome" and "Reunion in Vienna") and Leslie Howard are the new heroes of Broadway. Sherwood has written "The Petrified Forest," a melodrama about some interesting natives who run a gas station in the Arizona desert, and dropped Howard plump into the center of it as a poetic philosopher hitch hiking his way across country.

Quite exciting the way they have played into each other's hands. "The Petrified Forest" is that perfect theater combination of primitive emotions that create stirring melodrama and provocative writing that titillates the sluggish minds of playgoers just enough to convince them that they are not wasting time in the theater.

Howard wanders in, lays aside his pack, lights his pipe, orders a today's special hamburger, and listens to the waitress who brings it to him tell of her ambitions to get to France and find the mother who gave her birth as a war baby.

Hitch Hiker Thinks Nature's Having Revenge on Man.

An interesting person, the waitress. Half French, eager to study, to learn, to know, to paint, and to be somebody, she reads François Villon and dreams. Her father, who was an A. E. F. boy and is now a Legionnaire, and her grandfather, who own the gas station, have no sympathy with her thought or her ambitions.

An interesting person, too, is the hitch hiker. A writing man who sees his world crumbling about him, a civilization symbolized by the petrified forest just beyond. Nature, reasons the writer, is thrusting back at impudent man who has tried to outdo her with his granite towers and flying ships, his mechanical marvels and his cellophane wrappings. Nature is getting even by turning man back into a worship of the greeds and lusts of his apelike ancestors. During the process the writer prefers, being a failure in other ways, to drop himself beside a petrified tree and provide material for more of the forest's fossils or continue on to the blue Pacific and go by-by beneath its waves.

Noble Gesture Opens Door to Life for Heroine.

They find a common interest, the hitch hiker and the girl. Something like love on her part, an aroused interest on his part in the determinations and dreams of youth she represents. It is a pity, thinks he, that she cannot go on, even though he is through.

So when a Dillinger and his gang hold up the station and prepare to defend it against pursuers who are trying to keep them from crossing the Mexican border, the hitch hiker makes a compact with the leader of the band. First he will make over a life insurance policy to the girl and then he will ask the gunman kindly to shoot him in the fight that is pretty sure to come. Which is the way it happens.

A genuinely interesting and intelligently written philosophical melodrama is about as rare in the theater as are actors of sufficient charm to sell a play on their own. And here we have both. There is no discounting the personal appeal of Mr. Howard. A casual actor, he wanders quietly into the action, bestirs himself but little, listens while the others talk, occasionally adds a pat phrase or an eloquent period, and comes through with such honor that the audience rises and stands to applaud him at the end through a dozen calls. His is the perfect technique that conceals technique.

The setting is attractive and the support is led by Peggy Conklin, who was the heroine of last season's bundling comedy, "The Pursuit of Happiness," and who is now playing the waitress with equal success. Charles Dow Clark is the grandfather, a loquacious old fellow who is mighty proud of having once been shot at by no less a famous bad man than Billy the Kid. Humphrey Bogart is the Dillinger fellow and good at it, and Blanche Sweet, heroine of the old silent movies, has a short part.

A sly dig is taken by Sherwood, himself a war veteran, at the peacock parading type of Legionnaire. His Legion boys are hot on the trail of the Dillinger gang, but the gunmen make monkeys of them. . . .

Zoe Akins Dramatizes Wharton's "Old Maid."

A second play of better than average quality is "The Old Maid," which Zoe Akins has made from the Edith Wharton novel of the same title, written some ten years ago. There were, I believe, four stories in all with which Mrs. Wharton took up a study of old New York and its older Americans.

As drama "The Old Maid" is a bit on the old fashioned side, but its emotional sweeps are fairly basic and it has a special tug for women auditors. The story is of cousins, Delia and Charlotte Lovell, Delia married and childless, Charlotte supposedly a spinster but in reality the mother of a child by Delia's former lover.

Thus the stage is set for the introduction of a good deal of maternal yearning before the evening is over. The fact that the two heroines are played by Judith Anderson and Helen Menken, as complete mistresses of the emotional heroine as any our stage boasts, intensifies the more dramatic scenes.

Charlotte's Confession of Motherhood Stops Marriage.

First we get Delia (Miss Anderson) about to be married to one of the Ralston lads, handsome and rich, after having waited two years for her real love to return from Europe. He is back now, but it is too late, and Delia asks Cousin Charlotte (Miss Menken) to look out for him at the wedding. . . .

A few years later we have Charlotte about to marry another of the Ralston boys, but determined to go on with a nursery school she has established. A sly one, Charlotte. A little girl, Clementina, one of the nursery children, is her own daughter by the boy Delia asked her to look out for.

Charlotte confesses as much in the hope of gaining Delia's support in her determination to go on with her nursery. In place of which Delia, pretty mad about the whole business, breaks off the match.

Years after, when Charlotte's child, Tina, is grown and Delia's husband is dead, Delia is helping to bring up Tina and the girl comes to love her much more than she does her real mother, whom she believes to be a distant relative. Jealousy of the girl's affections grows between the two mothers, the one adopted, the other real. It creates the sort of scene you might suspect and culminates finally in Charlotte's determination to tell all rather than be longer denied her child's real affection.

She makes the greater sacrifice in the end, and to help her over the crisis Delia induces Tina to show a real love for Cousin Charlotte, even though she may feel that she has to pretend a little. . . .

Anderson and Menken Show Each Other High Respect.

Rather set scenes as you may imagine, yet played so well that they take on a moving quality of reality. Stage people these unquestionably are, but there is little that is stagey about their finer emotions. Matinée crowds of women have been weeping prettily and consistently, and there has been a good deal of eye dabbing by the men present.

It has been reported that the two stars were none too friendly back stage, but I could see no evidences of anything but mutual respect, one for the other, in the playing. The scenes are superbly timed and each gives the other every chance to score.

Miss Anderson has a little the better of the sympathy, for, although the spinster-mother, the old maid, Charlotte, is the one who makes the greater sacrifices, she is also the one who does the most whining. Miss Menken indulges her weakness for a pallid makeup, too, and is a shade the more assertive. Miss Anderson, given little chance for scenes of that flaring emotionalism which she plays so well, settles with magnificent and impressive dignity to an effectively repressed style of acting that becomes her greatly.

The Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply, please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Points Out Some Movie Boners.

Dear Miss Tinée: First want to thank THE TRIBUNE for that cartoon! I have often wondered why we get movies later than any other city in the United States, including the smallest towns. And as for the shorts—well, we are often a year behind. I saw a gang comedy in proverbially "behind the times Philadelphia," returned to Chicago and mentioned several features in it to friends here, but as I had been away a few months they decided that Phillie was the city behind the times and it was evidently an old comedy that we had missed when showing. One year later it was blazoned in big letters at the Chicago theater and you discussed it in your column—all as a new picture.

And now for a few "boners" seen recently.

In "Housewives" a clerk of election calls on Ann Dvorak twice and inquires about her profession. The scene is laid in Chicago so we know that it is not done in this city. The brilliant [?] "muvm pitcher" people evidently confused a census taker with a clerk of election. Of course Ann Dvorak's reply, "I'm just a housewife," gave the opportunity for the title of the picture. Poetic [?] license, I suppose.

Bette Davis says, "I was raised here in Chicago on the south side." Perhaps she was "raised" with the cattle at the yards, or with some vegetables on a truck farm, for surely a copy writer who had arrived at a place paying $25,000 a year would know that we humans are reared and not raised.

In "Bulldog Drummond" Ronald Colman places the unconscious aunt on a davenport and leaves to get something to revive her. As he puts her down her head is partly off the couch, so she moves it to a more comfortable position—just a wee move but decidedly noticeable. E. B. F.

Editor's note: Well —— ?

New Deal Drama.

A play about the New Deal is Bernard Simon's "Independence Day," now in search of a producer. It has been Mr. Simon's fancy to characterize certain persons eminent in the "brain trust" and his portraits are said to be recognizable.

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING! This one, apparently, would inspire you to tie a can to the tail of the green-eyed monster and send him yelping on his way. "Jealousy" — NOT adapted from the Verneuil play of the same name, which, if you recollect, had but a two character cast—is the story of a jealous prize fighter who sees red every time his best girl looks either to the right or the left, and lands—or aspires to land—haymakers on the jaws of any male who ventures to cast an eye—no matter how casual the glance—in the direction of his fair one.

Wedding Bells Sound Knell of Tranquility.

It takes a brave woman to wed a man like that—especially when she knows beforehand what she's stepping into, but Jo says "I do" at the proper moment, and honeymoon, furnished flat, and oodles of trouble follow.

The ending will surprise you, I imagine. Maybe not, though. You're so sleuth minded when it comes to movies. One thing I would like to emphasize. You should see this picture from the FIRST, if you are to get the hang of its final scenes.

Whole Cast Does a Creditable Job.

George Murphy — a newcomer — who plays the part of the fighter, made quite an impression on me. He's an odd looking boy with a definite "something" about him. His characterization of the horn-mad Larry O'Roark is sure and intuitive. Nancy Carroll does nice work opposite and there's not a word to be said against any of the other players. The direction's as good as the scenario permits. Trouble is, you see—it wasn't much of a scenario.

ShoBOUTem.

WILL ROGERS isn't to get the rest he was so fondly anticipating. He was all set to lead the life of Riley for a while, when, out of the blue, came an assignment to star in the screen version of the George Kelly stage play, "Torch Bearers." . . . JAMES DUNN'S dad has made him a gift of a three acre island near Tahiti. Papa took isle in payment for some recently purchased stocks. . . . ELIZABETH [Catherine the Great] BERGNER has just completed the film version of the stage play "Escape Me Never" for British and Dominions pictures and is on her way to the United States. She is accompanied by HUGH SINCLAIR and GRIFFITH JONES, two of the supporting players in the picture. PAUL CZINNER—I wonder—do you pronounce it Zinner or Sinner?—her husband and director, expects to join her over here.

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON, nephew of the late author, has been signed by Samuel Goldwyn for a featured rôle in "Her Wedding Night," starring ANNA STEN and GARY COOPER. . . . NANCY CARROLL and that interesting newcomer GEORGE MURPHY, who played together in "Jealousy," will be again co-featured in "I'll Love You Always." . . . The RUSSIAN BLOC in "Roberta"—RKO's adaptation of the stage success, is now complete—a balalaika orchestra having been hired to twang ditties when desired.

"We gave the world 'TALKING PICTURES,'" said Warner Brothers. "Now we're prepared to give the world SHAKESPEARE." Asks the London Era—"Is this an apology or a threat?" . . . According to Variety's compilation the BIGGEST HOLLYWOOD MONEY stars outside the United States and in order are Eddie Cantor, Greta Garbo, Marlene Dietrich, Norma Shearer, Janet Gaynor, George Arliss, Paul Muni, Clark Gable, Claudette Colbert, Ronald Colman.

STAR OF COLLEGE INN

Ethel Shutta, singing star with George Olsen's orchestra (also Mrs. Olsen), is the most popular entertainer of the winter among Chicago's cabarets. She has a gay way with a popular song, and is resourceful in finding new character ditties. One of her most amusing numbers is a travesty on the old sentimental ballad, "No, No, a Thousand Times, No."

Chicago Host to Artists of Music World

Kubelik, Mary Garden, and Chaliapin Scheduled for Next Fortnight.

By Edward Moore.

THIS is the time when distinguished personalities are visiting Chicago. Jan Kubelik is playing at Orchestra hall this afternoon; Mary Garden will be at the Casino club Friday night; a week from tomorrow night Feodor Chaliapin will come to the Auditorium. And it may be added that Igor Stravinsky is still among those present, being ready to extend a baton over another program of his own compositions played by the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Orchestra hall Tuesday afternoon.

Kubelik has not paid a visit to Chicago since 1921. Those whose memories go twenty years further back than that will remember when he first came here. It was not only his highest point as a box office attraction but about the highest that Chicago ever saw. They say that he packed the Auditorium six times in a single season. Even Paderewski never did better than three houses of the kind. But that shows what people thought of Kubelik then.

Strange Tales Circulated About Kubelik's Hands.

It was also the time when publicity agents ran unchecked. There are stories telling how his hands were insured for a million dollars, how under the terms of his contract he was obliged to keep those same hands concealed in a muff while on the street, how he was prohibited from shaking hands with any one or to pick up a piece of hand luggage. This was all good copy, but at the same time there was no question that he was the leader in the army of violinists.

One of the interesting features of these early seasons was the fact that Kubelik's accompanist was no less a person than Rudolph Friml, who about ten years afterwards began writing the light operas that have brought him fame and fortune. This time the Kubelik accompanist will be his son, Rafael Kubelik.

Practically all the Bohemians in Chicago are joining in the welcome he will receive this afternoon. Among the societies are the Bohemian Woman's club, the American Sokol union, the American National Alliance of Czechoslovakia, the Bohemian National Cemetery association, the Bohemian Arts club, and the singing society Lyra. John A. Cervenka is in charge of the reception committee.

"Emperor" Stradivarius to Be Used Today.

He plans to play the Dvorak Concerto in A minor, the Bach Chaconne, two works from his own pen, "Tarantella" and "Canzonetta," and two of the Paganini Caprices. These he will play on the "Emperor" Stradivarius, which has a high rating even among Stradivarius instruments, and for which he is said to have been offered $250,000. This will be his first concert of his ninth American tour.

Kubelik has attained distinction in many countries. The London Philharmonic society made him an honorary member and bestowed the Beethoven medal upon him. The French republic conferred the "Legion d'Honneur," and during the imperial period of Russia the czar presented him with the cross of the Order of Ste. Anne.

By Eleanor Nangle

THERE seem always to have been hairdressers, an endless procession of hard-working craftsmen who by skill and creative genius played unsung rôles in beautifying women of all times. But all of them, with the possible exception of a few like the great Marcel, who discovered how to put curls in hair where there were no curls before, were considered in their day to be servants.

It took a slender, magnificently eccentric young French sculptor, who turned from clay to hair as his artistic working medium, to put an end to all that. Antoine of Paris single-handed was instrumental in bringing the profession as a whole to the level of highly respected and important artisans.

Antoine rode into continental consciousness a decade or so ago on a wave of publicity about his eccentricities. Newspapers gave him columns, and European women battled to get into his salon when tall tales were told of his glass casket, in which he slept every night; of the monumental tomb which he had erected on his estate at Longjumeau; of his white evening clothes and his Russian wolfhounds with coats dyed to suit his mood.

His clients tremble at his frown and all Paris still is thrown into conversational flutters when he orders a duchess from his salon for daring to tell him how she wants her hair arranged.

Publicity was his entrée, but Antoine retains his position as leading coiffure stylist of the continent and perhaps of the world by his sculptor's appreciation of line and deftness of execution. He was the first to put individuality into bobbed hair, and the lacquered coiffure was one of his triumphs.

His style forecasts for 1935 are shown here. True to his gospel of individuality, there is no set style. Hair is on the forehead or off the face, caught up in curl clusters or kept severely sleek, depending on the wearer's contour or type. But in all modes, even the most frivolous, there is apparent a fluid, sculptured line.

Test Tube Yields Synthetic Rainbow

Coal Tar Dyes Miracle of Science

By Thomas M. Beck

THESE days we accept dyes as a matter of course. We are none of us so poor that we cannot afford bright colors for our raiment, provided, of course, we still can find the price for the raiment itself. But dyes have not always been so commonplace. In fact, back in ancient times there was one dye, Tyrian purple, that ranked along with gold and jewels as being a symbol of earthly glory.

Tyrian purple was obtained from a glandular secretion of a certain variety of small mollusk that throve in the eastern Mediterranean. According to writers of that period, it was a dye of magnificent shade and surpassing fastness. In spite of its humble origin, it was so expensive that only the very wealthy could wear it, and even they could not afford too much of it. A rich Roman usually possessed a special dress toga the border of which was dyed with a broad stripe of purple; and such a toga, like the dress suit of the present-day bourgeois, was not renewed every year, but was expected to remain on duty throughout its wearer's life. In one respect this was a good thing, for the attractiveness of purple dyed fabrics increased on ageing because of a peculiar property of this particular dye.

On account of its marine origin, Tyrian purple possessed a fishy odor that almost rivaled its color in fastness. In fact, a ripe fish-market smell came to be considered symbolic of newly acquired riches back in those fascinating days.

The use of Tyrian purple died out with the passing of the Roman empire and was greatly lamented as a lost art by all subsequent generations. However, there were several other dyes of both vegetable and mineral origin that found wide use in the coloring of fabrics. There was indigo, extracted from a small tropical plant, which perhaps was the oldest dye known to man and still is the most widely used. There was Turkey red, made from the madder plant, and lesser vegetable dyes, such as fustic. With the discovery of America, European dyers became acquainted with such colors as logwood and cochineal. And finally there were a number of mineral dyes, such as Prussian blue, iron buff, and chrome yellow.

It might be asked why there were so few useful dyes when there are so many colored products in nature. A dye is a great deal more than merely a color. In addition to possessing a bright and attractive shade it must be able to combine tightly with the fiber to which it is applied. Furthermore, the colored fabric must not fade on exposure to light. Finally, the dye must be capable of forming either a solution or else an extremely fine suspension in water; otherwise it could not be applied to the fabric.

And now, with this introduction, let us take up what is perhaps the most romantic story modern industry has to tell. It is the story of how synthetic organic chemistry started a revolution in the dye business, which since has invaded many other fields, bringing dismay to those engaged in such varied activities as indigo planting, nitrate mining, wood distillation, and silk worm culture, but at the same time making it possible for the rest of us to enjoy what formerly were unattainable luxuries.

The story of synthetic coal tar dyes begins in the year 1856. A 17-year-old English boy of the name of William Henry Perkin, who was a bottle washer in a chemical laboratory, decided not to spend his Easter vacation after the manner of most boys of his age. Instead he remained in the laboratory, busily engaged in the laudable but hardly adolescent activity of trying to make cheap synthetic quinine (a problem which, incidentally, still is unsolved).

He hoped to accomplish this end by the ludicrous process of oxidizing aniline (a coal tar derivative) with chromic acid. For lack of money, he had to use the cheapest aniline obtainable, which contained as an impurity a considerable amount of a related substance, toluidine. When he added the chromic acid to this he obtained not quinine but a black tar. Because of his poverty he could not afford to throw the test tube away, so he started to wash it out with alcohol. To his surprise, the alcohol, on dissolving the tar, took on a beautiful purplish color. As a result of impure chemicals and boyish inexperience he accidentally had prepared mauve, the first of the synthetic dyes.

Young Perkin promptly abandoned the subject of quinine and devoted himself to his accidental discovery. He soon developed a method of preparing the dye in commercial quantities and organized a company to manufacture the stuff and put it on the market, thus laying the foundation of his own personal fortune and of the coal tar dye industry as well.

The immediate commercial success of mauve turned the attention of nearly every practical-minded chemist in Europe to the subject of coal tar. In 1857 Verguin discovered magenta and thereby launched the new industry in France. Germany entered the field about five years later with the discovery of Hofmann's violet. The British, however, possessing the double advantage of having a head-start and also of being the outstanding industrial nation at the time, dominated the new business for the first dozen years of its existence.

The first real triumph of the new industry came in 1868 when Perkin in England and Graebe and Liebermann in Germany simultaneously undertook separate investigations on the important vegetable dye, Turkey red, in the hope of preparing it synthetically. This race ended in almost a dead heat, with the Germans filing their patent application only one day ahead of Perkin. Within ten years alizarin, as this new synthetic dye was called, had completely replaced the natural product, and German dye production (and the chemical industry along with it) had swept far ahead of the British. There is a rather amusing sidelight in the fact that from then until 1914 the French army was completely dependent upon Germany for the alizarin to dye the soldiers' bright red breeches (which, incidentally, made the French troops magnificent on parade but a trifle conspicuous in the field).

The most important prize in this field, however, lay in the production of indigo, which was and still is the most important of dyes. Baeyer had succeeded in synthesizing it in 1880, but his process was far too expensive to have any commercial value. One of the big German dye companies, however, adopted the problem as a major research project and, after seventeen years of fruitless effort and the expenditure of nearly $5,000,000, at last succeeded in giving the world a cheap synthetic indigo. In a few years this company had made enough profit on this new product to pay back the cost of the research, and within a dozen years natural indigo, which long had been one of the big export crops of India, had almost disappeared from the world's markets.

As a result of this, in 1914 Germany and the German-controled Swiss chemical companies were in almost complete control of the dye industry, producing more than nine-tenths of the world's dyestuffs. There is an important lesson to be learned from this fact. The British, who had a glorious opportunity to make the dye business a British monopoly, sacrificed this chance solely because they chose to regard a valuable invention as an act of God, to be thankful for when received but not to be sought. On the other hand, the Germans considered huge research stafs essential parts of their industrial organizations. The British were content to sit by placidly and wait for their scientists to invent something; but the German industrialists, as is shown by the account of the indigo investigation, were not afraid to play with their blue chips when it came to technical research.

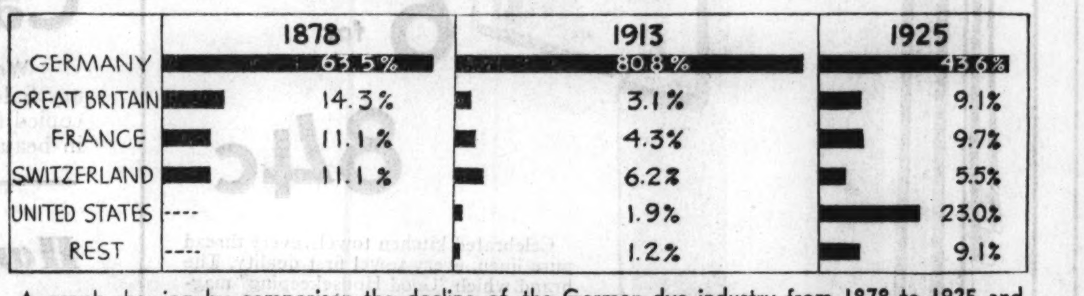
The German monopoly, however, long has been a thing of the past. During the World war the Allied governments confiscated the German chemical patents. In this country these patents, as spoils of war, were sold to the Chemical foundation, a corporation which leased the patent rights to American companies for the purpose of building up an American chemical industry. No matter how one may choose to view the moral aspects of this transfer, it must be admitted that this country required a well developed chemical industry for reasons of future military necessity alone, and some such measure as the above was necessary to break the German monopoly. And the monopoly has been broken. Germany now produces less than half the world's dyes, with the United States its closest competitor. The Germans are still unbeatable in the preparation of many of the rare, expensive dyes that are made for special purposes. But when it comes to the cheaper, more widely used colors, such as indigo, the American manufacturers are able to compete very well in the world market.

In conclusion let us return to the subject of Tyrian purple, that legendary superdye. About twenty-five years ago the German chemist Friedlander decided to investigate its chemical nature in the hope of finding a way of synthesizing it from coal tar. He hired a bunch of Levantines to catch about 12,000 of the small mollusks, pack them in ice, and ship them to Germany. He had his assistants carefully extract the dye-containing glands from all those tiny creatures (an operation that is said to have resulted in the laboratory's becoming ineradicably permeated with the fragrance of old fish). In the end Friedlander obtained about ten grains of the pure Tyrian purple, which he then proceeded to analyze. To his surprise, he found that this ancient symbol of pomp and glory was identical with a coal tar dye that had been prepared several years before, but which, because of its failure to come up to modern dye standards, never had been put on the market.



A graph showing by comparison the decline of the German dye industry from 1878 to 1925 and the corresponding increase in dye production in other countries, notably the United States.

The fashionable couturiers of today could not achieve their masterpieces of design without the rich and delicate colors of the dyes produced in the laboratories of organic chemists. (Posed by Josephine Hutchinson of the films.)

What are the highest and lowest temperatures that have been obtained?—J. N. D., Joliet, Ill.

The highest temperature obtained by the work of man probably is that of a pure carbon arc, which reaches the neighborhood of 9,932 degrees F. The lowest is that of solid helium, —458 degrees F. This last is very close to the theoretical limit of coldness and represents a condition in which nearly all possible heat has been removed.

Myrna Loy

By graphology and by face reading Myrna Loy is revealed to be the happy possessor of an unfailing sense of humor, imagination, courage, and sincerity. A tendency to be too sensitive and overly critical of herself is one of her handicaps. She has a strong appreciation of the beautiful and more than one artistic talent. She should cultivate thrift; she is prone to extravagance. A keen mind, plus much intuition, makes her shrewder than most women.

KNOW YOURSELF!

Who are you? What are you?

Robert Montgomery

The finely modeled features and the delicate handwriting of Robert Montgomery indicate that sensitivity is both a virtue and a vice with him. He is dreamy and idealistic almost to the point of impracticality, and these same qualities make him somewhat introverted. He overcame timidity after a struggle, but is still a bit too modest. He is extremely kind and unswerving in his affections. He has excellent powers of concentration and, when convinced he is right, a surprising tenacity.

Hollywood Lures Song Kings of Broadway

From top to bottom: Harry Warren, Al Dubin, Nacio H. Brown, Arthur Freed, and Leo Robin.

Tin Pan Alley Goes To Film Capital

score for "Birth of a Nation" played by a complete orchestra in the larger city houses, increased the popularity of the idea. The illusion and the emotion of the picture, which totally lacked the voices and presence of the stage play, were heightened considerably by the musical background.

With this as the substantial background for music in films, the talkies came along and changed everything.

The industry went wild on the possibilities of singing in talkies after the success of Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer." The "theme song" became a necessity and was repeated through the picture ad nauseam.

The revulsion of public taste threw music out for a time, but the successful and intelligent use of tunes in films has brought back the big musical pictures with a wow the last two years. From Bing Crosby to Grace Moore, the musical is successful in a big way. They're singing, and the boys who write what they sing gather in the golden harvest.

It's the ordinary arrangement that songs are written by a team, one doing the music and the other the lyrics. This is not always the case; sometimes the two collaborate on both the lyrics and the music. There's no set rule. Every team has its own method of working.

To introduce a few of these engaging fellows to you personally, and to tell you something of their background, habits, and accomplishments, is our present intention.

Beginning 'way up among the highbrow backgrounds, we present Ralph Rainger, who collaborates with Leo Robin, lyricist, their latest hit being "Love in Bloom," for Bing Crosby.

Rainger started writing songs when he was thirteen. He attended Brown university and later the New Jersey Law school. His musical education included piano study with Paolo Gallico and work at the Damrosch Institute of Musical Arts, where he studied with Clarence Adler. After a year of practicing law, where there is little enough scope for heavy harmony, Rainger tossed Blackstone into the wastebasket and reached for a piano. The result was "Moanin' Low," used in the "First Little Show" in 1928. Prior to this composition's publication he had been in a featured two-piano act in "Queen High," Ziegfeld "Follies of 1927," "Rosalie," and the "First Little Show."

* * *

Signed by Paramount in 1930, Rainger has worked steadily for that studio ever since. Mae West's first picture, "She Done Him Wrong," had both lyrics and music by Rainger. With Leo Robin, he has done "Please," "Here Lies Love," "Park in Paree," "I'll Take an Option on You," "Give Me Liberty or Give Me Love," and many others, including "Love in Bloom."

Leo Robin also has written lyrics for music by Sam Coslow. Coslow and Arthur Johnston are a successful team, having written "Just One More Chance," "The Day You Came Along," "Learn to Croon," and "My Old Flame"—the latter in one hour's effort, which as Mae West's song in "Belle of the Gay Nineties" is a big hit number.

Sam Coslow, music writer, has never had a music lesson in his life. After being graduated from Erasmus Hall High school in New York he covered Tin Pan Alley for Variety, and at the age of seventeen composed "Grieving for You." He wore Al Jolson down with it until finally Jolson sang it and it was a sensation overnight. "Animal Crackers," "Bebe," "Was It a Dream," and "True Blue Lou" are some of his hits. He works for Paramount now. Coslow and Johnston set an all-time record in Hollywood, or anywhere else, for that matter, when last spring they wrote twenty hit tunes in twenty days.

Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart, in the enviable "AAA" class of composers as listed by the national associations, got off to a running start writing songs for varsity shows while at Columbia university. They did well enough that Lew Fields took several of their numbers for "The Poor Little Rich Girl." Six years of trying out their ideas netted them little more than a living with sales made to vaudeville acts. Finally the break came when the Theater guild staged the "Garrick Gaieties," and, casting about for some inexpensive tune writers, hesitantly hired the pair. Overnight hits, the two had the satisfaction of remembering that several of their big hit numbers had been called uncomplimentary names by music publishers and agents only a short time before.

In New York and London they wrote music for many successful shows. In the last five years on Broadway they did music for twenty-five shows, all hits. "Ten Cents a Dance," "My Heart Stood Still," "With a Song in My Heart," "Blue Room," and "You Took Advantage of Me" are some of their hit numbers. The two have been responsible for the music in "Love Me To-night," Maurice Chevalier's starring vehicle for Paramount, and many othr numbers in films.

Harold Adamson, lyric writer at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, also got a college start. At Harvard he wrote musical shows for the Hasty Pudding club. Vincent Youmans, also a composer of popular music, met him there and signed him to a contract, which later brought him to the attention of Flo Ziegfeld, who used him for "Smiles," in which he wrote the lyrics for Marilynn Miller and Fred and Adele Astaire. The Earl Carroll "Vanities," the "Third Little Show," and "Singin' the Blues" followed, with his lyric successes. The movies brought him west and he did lyrics for "Dancing Lady," "Palooka," "Bottoms Up" (for Fox), "Coming Out Party," and "Kid Millions" (for Goldwyn, with Eddie Cantor). "Everything I Have Is Yours," "Your Head on My Shoulder," "Tony's Wife," "Look Who's Here," "Little Did I Dream, "Say the Word," and "Like Me a Little Bit Less" are his songs.

Gus Kahn and Walter Donaldson are ace high at the moment with the credit for the songs in Eddie Cantor's success, "Kid Millions," which include "Okay Toots," "An Earful of Music," and "When My Ship Comes In"—as well as the music for the color fantasy which completes the picture. Kahn's career started back in 1907 when he went over the top with his "Gee, I Wish I Had a Girl." Since his New York career, which was long and successful, Kahn has been in film work, with a long string of picture hits to his credit. Music in "Whoopee," "Flying Down to Rio," "Bottoms Up," "The Merry Widow," "Caravan," "The Great Ziegfeld," "Prizefighter and the Lady," and "Operator Thirteen"—and lyrics, which are his specialty—are to his credit. With Donaldson his successes have been "How Ya Gonna Keep 'Em Down on the Farm," "My Blue Heaven," "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby," "My Buddy," "Makin' Whoopee," "Pretty Baby," "I'll See You in My Dreams," "Carioca," "Nobody's Sweetheart Now," and many others.

- Annual cost of music for the films, more than $5,000,000.
- Salaries of musical directors, from $250 to $1,500 a week.
- Top-notch composers are paid $5,000 a song.
- Others get as high as $1,500 a week.
- Musicians are paid $10 an hour, with a $30 a day minimum.

Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, Paramount's ace team of song writers, testing a tantalizing tune for the benefit of an octet of dancing singers—or maybe they are singing dancers.

Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, music and lyric team, gave films the first successful musical picture, "The Broadway Melody," which starred Brown's present wife, Anita Page. Both famous before entering films, their years at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer have produced many hits, including "The Wedding of the Painted Doll," "Pagan Love Song," "Singin' in the Rain," "Chant of the Jungle," "Moon Is Low," "Woman in the Shoe," "Love Song of the Nile," "We'll Make Hay While the Sun Shines," "New Moon Over My Shoulder," "The Carlo," and others.

Kalmar and Ruby are another outstanding team. Graduates of Tin Pan Alley, they write not only songs and music but the stories for shows as well.

"The Cuckoos," for Wheeler and Woolsey, was the first Hollywood venture of Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby; then came "Animal Crackers," for the Marx brothers; "Broadminded," for Joe E. Brown; "Horsefeathers" and "Duck Soup," for the Marx brothers, and "The Kid from Spain," for Eddie Cantor. "Top Speed," "Hips Hips Hooray," "Check and Double Check," "Kentucky Kernels" are all plays which they wrote, with incidental song hits and music. "Three Little Words," "I Love You So Much," "Keep On Doin' What You're Doin'," "Tired of It All," and the window-washing song in "Happiness Ahead" are their hits.

Warren and Dubin are another ace team, responsible for many whistling and humming tunes carried home from the cinema. Al Dubin was born in Switzerland, but came to this country as a child. His song-writing career began at the age of sixteen. Harry Warren just grew up quietly in New York, singing as a church choir boy. The two have been teaming for three years or more, very successfully. They tell how their success "Shuffle Off to Buffalo" came to be written. They were working at Del Mar, a coast resort town near San Diego, and were out of inspiration, when a train passed. Still thinking in terms of New York, they got to thinking of honeymoon couples on the trains going out of New York, mostly bound for Niagara Falls. But there are few words to rime with Niagara Falls, so, casting about, they thought of Buffalo—perfect. They even put the train whistle into the song.

Warren admits the authorship of "Nagasaki," which received high recognition in musical circles; also to "By the River St. Marie," which attracted the attention of a lot of musical highbrows. Warren also did "I Found a Million Dollar Baby in the Five and Ten Cent Store," "A Cheerful Little Earful," "You're My Everything," and "Would You Like to Take a Walk."

Dubin's war song, "Hinky Dinky Parlez Vous," was an early hit. "Dancing with Tears in My Eyes," "Kiss Waltz," and "Many Happy Returns of the Day" are others Dubin has written.

Hits written by Warren and Dubin in partnership include "Shadow Waltz," "Pettin' in the Park," and "We're In the Money," all for "Gold Diggers of 1933"; "Coffee in the Morning, Kisses at Night," for "Moulin Rouge"; "Goin' to Heaven on a Mule" and "Why Do I Dream Those Dreams," for "Wonder Bar"; "Shanghai Lil" and "Honeymoon Hotel," for "Footlight Parade"; "Keep Young and Beautiful," "Build a Little Home," and "No More Love," for "Roman Scandals"; "Out for No Good," "I'll String Along with You," and "What Are Your Intentions," for "Twenty Million Sweethearts"; "I Only Have Eyes for You" and "The Girl at the Ironing Board," for "Dames."

Gordon and Revell, Paramount's ace team, owe their success together to a chance meeting in 1930 in a music publisher's office in New York. Revell, who does the music to a great extent, was looking for a lyric man. He had just returned from a European tour as a concert pianist. They wrote "Help Yourself to Happiness" as one of nineteen hits. Then came work for Ziegfeld in 1931. They wrote for George White's "Scandals" and some Shubert shows and also turned out a group of independent hits, including "Listen to the German Band," "And So to Bed," and "Time on My Hands." In 1933 Paramount brought them to Hollywood. "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking," "Love Thy Neighbor," "Good Morning, Glory," and "With My Eyes Wide Open I'm Dreaming" are a few of their successes.

Dixon and Wrubel divide up their writing this way: Wrubel does the music and Dixon the lyrics. Allie Wrubel was graduated in medicine from Wesleyan university in the class of 1926, but gave up that career for song writing. In 1931 was published his first hit, 'Now You're in My Arms." "As You Desire Me," "Gipsy Fiddle," and "Farewell to Arms" are his work, both music and lyrics.

Mort Dixon spent six years in the army before his musical fate began to catch up with him. "That Old Gang of Mine" in 1923 was his first success. "Bye, Bye, Blackbird" also is his. He collaborated with Warren on "I Found a Million Dollar Baby." Since coming to Hollywood, Dixon and Wrubel have done the music for "Flirtation Walk," including the theme hit song, and "Mr. and Mrs. Is the Name" and "No Horse, No Wife, No Mustache."

De Sylva, Brown, and Henderson were a combination that successfully functioned both on Broadway and in Hollywood for some period and turned out many smash hits. The personality behind the trio was Buddy De Sylva, formerly staf poet on his high school magazine at Azusa, Cal., a town near Covina, the home of the legendary Harold Teen and Lillums of the comic strip. With the original ambition of being a doctor, he entered the University of Southern California, being graduated with English as his major. He reëntered to take up his pre-medic work, but at that time the ukulele epidemic swept the country. Buddy gave up surgical gut for teasing catgut on a ukulele. He began writing his own ballads. Al Jolson discovered him at a night club, where he was playing as a member of an "all-Hawaiian" orchestra, took him to New York, and popularized many numbers of De Sylva's, such as "April Showers," "Alabamy Bound," and "California, Here I Come" (and was De Sylva embarrassed when Sinclair adopted that song for his campaign song in the recent California gubernatorial election!). De Sylva did librettos for Ziegfeld's "Follies," White's "Scandals," and other productions.

He picked up Lew Brown, ex-Rockaway beach life guard, and Ray Henderson, Buffalo organist, and the three did "Manhattan Mary," Ed Wynn's first musical show hit. Then two editions of the "Scandals," "Good News," "Three Cheers," "Hold Everything," and "Follow Thru" followed rapidly. De Sylva was the author and producer of the combination, Brown did comedy lyrics and gags, and Henderson did the heavy work on the music, though ideas were exchanged by all three.

They wrote "Sonny Boy," Al Jolson's hit song, in half an hour. It sold more than 5,000,000 copies.

The company came to Hollywood for Fox and wrote "Sunny Side Up" for Gaynor and Farrell, which still holds the record as the most profitable musical picture made, grossing more than $4,000,000. "Just Imagine" was another movie hit, with "Flying High," a Broadway hit, sandwiched in between film work. Brown and Henderson wanted to return to Broadway, so the trio dissolved, De Sylva staying in films. De Sylva knocked off "Take a Chance," which proved to be the only musical hit on Broadway that season. "You're an Old Smoothie" and "Eadie Was a Lady" were the hits from this production. Richard Whiting did the music and De Sylva the lyrics for these.

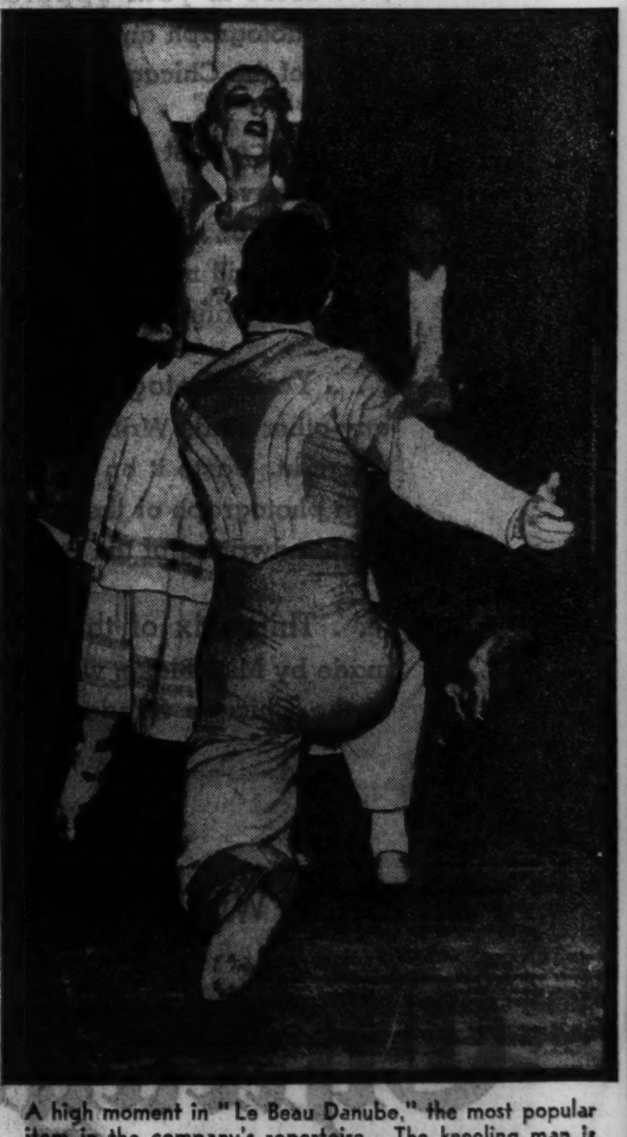
This Whiting, with whom De Sylva works, is no slouch himself at song writing. His first big hit was "Tulip Time in Holland"; other more recent successes were "Beyond the Blue Horizon" and "One Hour with You."

From top to bottom: Lorenz Hart, Bert Kalmar, Ralph Rainger, Harry Ruby, and Buddy De Sylva.

Back Stage with Ballet Russe

Ballet Russe in the camera's eye! Fire Bird in Stravinsky's ballet by the same name, impersonated by Mlle. Danilova, dances under the tree of silver apples.

A Chicago Tribune photographer views the ballet from back stage during its recent engagement at the Auditorium. Here are two groups of mannequins who dance in a most lively manner instead of posing languidly and slowly. The incident, as can be seen, is not quite full dress. The movements are from "Concurrence," a story of two rival ladies' tailors and their struggle to sell their wares.



A high moment in "Le Beau Danube," the most popular item in the company's repertoire. The kneeling man is Leonide Massine, leading artist and dance director.

Variable Propeller Is a Boon to Aviation

Blade Pitch Control Helpful to Flyer

Plane Made Efficient

By WAYNE THOMIS

BACK in the "haywire" days of aviation, in 1919 and 1920, during the era in which pilots were beginning to learn something of the aerodynamic laws governing flight, an airman cursed the propeller on his machine because it approached efficient performance under only one set of flight conditions.

Others had done the same, but this particular flyer — the hypothetical first airman to conceive a variable pitch propeller — went further. He reasoned that the ideal airplane propeller was one so engineered that the blade pitch angles could be changed while it was being driven aloft by the engine. If that could be done, this airman told himself, the blades could be set so that the propeller would give fairly efficient performance under two or even three different sets of conditions.

He was basing his reasoning on the fact that a fixed pitch propeller on an airplane can be efficient in only one circumstance. Usually the prop is set so that the blades are most efficient when the plane, in level flight, has its throttle wide open.

That flyer of 1919 knew that such a propeller was woefully inefficient during take off when speed was perhaps but one-third of the top speed at which the propeller was set to do its best work.

He also knew that a propeller with blades set at angles which were most efficient at level top speed and full throttle would not perform efficiently when the airplane was "cruised" in level flight at from 65 to 80 per cent of full engine revolutions.

Whether or not that first airman knows it today, his idea has been perfected to the point where propellers performing exactly as he foresaw have been in constant use on the major commercial air lines in the United States for the last twelve months. And every new high-performance commercial airplane manufactured today has one type or another of the variable pitch propeller fitted as standard equipment.

Advantages Gained Are Greater Than Anticipated

The astonishing feature of the variable pitch propellers, however, is the fact that increases in airplane performance gained through their use have been far greater than was anticipated by their creators.

Take-off, climb, ceiling—or ultimate altitude to which any given ship may climb — cruising speed, and high speed, all have been materially aided. The propeller also has allowed economies in fuel consumption and reduced certain particularly damaging types of wear on engines.

Investigation and experimentation have shown that the run necessary for an airplane to get off the ground is reduced from 20 to 35 per cent through the use of variable pitch screws.

To make this example concrete, an airplane which with a fixed airscrew required a run of 800 feet to gain flying speed, would—in the case of a 30 per cent gain—be able to get off the ground with a run of 660 feet when fitted with the variable pitch propeller.

The average improvement in service ceiling—or the altitude at which the airplane stops climbing at the rate of 100 or more feet per minute—ranges from 15 to 20 per cent, and the improvement in climb also ranges from 15 to 20 per cent in "reasonably clean" airplanes, but may go as high as from 25 to 30 per cent in the case of an exceptionally "clean" design.

Ceiling Improved by Use of Variable Pitch Propeller

It was found in experiments conducted with several different types of the modern twin engine airliners that when flown on only one engine under conditions similar to those which must be met in case of failure of one power plant, controlable pitch propellers improved the ceiling from 100 to 125 per cent.

With the installation of controlable pitch propellers cruising speed gains range from 5 to 15 per cent. The superiority of performance made possible by the variable pitch airscrew in take off, cruising speed, and ceiling in a Curtiss Condor 14 passenger transport biplane, is shown in graphs of Figures 1 and 2. These graphs are based on tests.

During the decade between 1920 and 1930, the majority of pilots considered the variable pitch propeller merely a dream. About 1927, however, engineers working at the Hamilton Standard Propeller company of East Hartford, Conn., where the first metal propellers were being manufactured in quantity, began to work seriously on the problem.

Encouraged by army experts, the engineers made considerable progress and by 1932 had developed a "two position" propeller which gave the pilot a choice of either a "low" pitch—a fine setting for application of full horsepower at take off conditions—or a "high" pitch—a coarse setting for maximum propeller and horsepower efficiency at level cruising speeds.

That first variable pitch propeller had but two blades. The cut out view of the hub and the shaft upon which the propeller was slung is shown in Figure 3. Subsequently a three blade propeller of the variable pitch type was developed and this now is the standard propeller for United Airlines, American Airlines, Transcontinental Western Air, General Airlines, and Eastern Airlines—all companies using fast modern transport airplanes. One of the three blade variables is shown in Figure 4.

Many methods of operation were considered during the work on the pitch varying mechanism, but in the form it is sold to the commercial airlines the Hamilton propeller is operated by oil pressure, using oil from the lubricating system within the engine to which it is fitted. The exact method is shown in Figures 5, 6, and 7.

The lower half of Figure 5 is cut away to show actual working parts. The hollow propeller shaft is shown with the connection to the oil pressure area and the drain. In the illustration the oil under pressure is in the hollow shaft and the pitch operating cylinder "A". The valve is the only control necessary and this is operated by a single lever in the pilot's cockpit.

When the connection to the oil pressure is opened the oil flows through the propeller shaft into the cylinder, causing the cylinder to move forward on the piston "T". As the cylinder moves forward the special bearing whose outer race is attached to the cylinder at "B" rolls in the cam slot "C" in the counterweight bracket "D".

Moving of Counterweight Changes Pitch of Blade

The bearing "F", the counterweight bracket "D" and the cam slot "C" all are visible in Figure 6. As the bearing rolls in this slot, it causes the counterweight to move inward, and as the weight moves inward, it forces the blade to which it is attached to go into the low pitch position. Figure 5 shows the position of the cylinder in the low pitch position. Positions of the propeller blades, of the cylinder, and of the counterweight in low pitch position are shown in the dotted lines of Figure 7.

When the oil control valve is turned into the drain position, the oil from inside the cylinder and shaft is free to flow back into the crankcase. The centrifugal force of the counterweight bracket which is turning with the hub as the blades whirl, acts against the bearing "F" in the cam slot.

The bearing moves outward in the slot, the counterweight follows this movement, the cylinder is moved inward, and the blades are forced into the high pitch position. Positions of the cylinder, the counterweight, and the propeller blades in high pitch position are shown in the solid lines of Figure 7.

The cockpit control, merely a knob or lever, simply opens or closes the valve which connects the propeller to the oil under pressure in the crankcase. The lever control fitted to United Airlines Boeing 247s is shown in the illustration at the top of the page, which gives a good view of the instrument board, and the switch and throttle placements.

Objections Raised to Blade with Only Two Positions

Although this type of variable pitch propeller has proved itself in thousands of hours of operations there are several objections made by operators. The first inevitably is to the fact that a pilot has a choice of only two positions of blade pitch. The second is that control of the pitch is dependent upon normal functioning of the engine.

Once operators were able to change the pitch to two positions, they realized that a propeller which had an infinite range of settings would be even more efficient than one in which there were only two. Thus instead of maintaining the same fine pitch throughout take off and climb to altitude, with an infinite pitch range the pilot would gradually coarsen the pitch of his propeller to keep it at maximum efficiency as his airspeed and engine revolutions increased. Instead of an abrupt change from low to high pitch the change would be gradual with infinite pitch propeller.

Dependence upon normal functioning of the engine for pitch changing mechanism, operators say, means that a pilot cannot control the pitch of a given propeller if the engine to which it is fitted fails.

They also say that with an infinite range—from zero to 90 degrees—and independent control of the propeller, a pilot could "feather" his blades to 90 degrees in case of engine failure and almost totally eliminate the drag otherwise present. And in addition, in landing the pilot would be able to set the blades at zero degrees, thus making the whirling propeller virtually a disk, to be used as a brake.

Propeller Perfected with Range from 0 to 90 Degrees

With these arguments in view the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor company engineers went to work. They built a propeller which was operated by a small electric motor inside the hub itself. The motor, attached to reduction gears, is powered off the airplane storage battery. This propeller has the ideal range—zero to 90 degrees, is independent of the motor functionings, and can be set at half degree pitch angles.

Figure 8 shows one of the Curtiss electrically controled propellers on a Cyclone engine of a Condor transport. Figure 9 shows a cut out view of the hub and the mechanism for changing the blade angle. Figure 10 is a drawing of the instrument board control. This instrument was intended for one of the early experimental propellers and consequently has positions for a pitch range from 10 to 30 degrees only.

Both army and commercial aviation engineers, while desiring the full range of pitch change, have objected strenuously to the necessity of the pilot making the changes manually through controls on his instrument board. The engineers, and commercial airline operators as well as army flying experts feel that at take off and in landing, the two most critical moments in the course of a normal flight, a pilot should have his attention free to concentrate upon the handling of the ship without the necessity of fumbling with propeller controls.

The engineers' solution of the problem has been to design an automatic controlable pitch propeller. This propeller was built to specifications of military designers and secretly developed by the Hamilton Standard company.

The automatic variable pitch propeller in its present form has a range of 11 degrees, but an infinite number of pitch angles within that limit. Its builders term it a "constant speed" propeller. The name arises from the fact that when fitted the automatic variable propeller becomes the governor of the revolutions of its engine.

The pilot has the engine governor control in his cockpit. He sets it for maximum permissible revolutions for the engine's rated horsepower at time of take off. For example, he may set it at 2,200 revolutions. The engines already being warmed and the plane pointing into the wind, the pilot gradually opens his throttle.

The blade pitch automatically shifts into "low" position, or the finest setting. Gradually the revolutions creep up to 2,200. As the plane starts down the runway the automatic shift mechanism constantly "coarsens" the pitch as more and more power is available. The optimum pitch is maintained as is the maximum horsepower.

The pilot eases back on the stick and the ship lifts off the ground. The airspeed swiftly rises. The automatic shift mechanism, however, continues to coarsen the propeller blade pitch, keeping the engine revolutions down to 2,200 with the full exertion of power.

This Propeller Governor of Motor's Revolutions

In the climb for altitude, the pilot having eased back the full throttle, the blades shift back to a slightly finer pitch so that engine revolutions still are maintained.

With altitude reached the pilot puts the ship level and then sets his revolution control to cruising speed—1,900 r. p. m. The blades automatically settle to their new "bite," shifting within a few seconds to the most efficient pitch.

Throughout the flight the engine revolutions and propeller speed remain constant, whether the airplane climbs, dives, does aerobatical maneuvers, or is stalled. In taking advantage of his altitude to increase his forward speed at the end of his flight, the pilot puts the ship into a gentle dive. With ordinary propellers "over revving" of the engine occurs unless the throttle is closed, but the automatic variable propeller coarsens the pitch until the engine cannot turn more than the 1,900 r. p. m.

Such an automatically variable propeller would be a boon to military ships. Fighters, during the course of aerial combat, constantly are "over revving" their engines. This will be eliminated with the constant speed propellers. During violent maneuvers, power dives of several thousand feet, even the automatic propeller cannot keep the r. p. m. down to the set figure, but it will prevent the tremendous "over revving" which normally burns out engines within a short time.

The automatic variable pitch propeller also will add greatly to the comfort of travelers. Many air travelers have complained about the "beat" noticeable when the two or more engines of the craft in which they rode were not synchronized. Absolute synchronization is possible with the revolution control of the constant speed variable.

Racing Plane Propellers Problem for Designers

The propellers of racing airplanes cause designers and engineers many headaches. In the Snyder cup racers built by the English—these planes were low wing monoplanes on floats—great difficulty was experienced in preventing the enormous propeller used from overturning the tiny racer while it taxied for the take-off.

Before flying speeds were reached the clipped wings of the tiny plane had no "grip" on the air. Flying speed for these planes was 90 miles an hour, and consequently there was nearly a mile of taxiing before the plane got off the water. With a 13-foot propeller turning up to 3,000 revolutions per minute the resulting torque was enough to upset several ships before proper adjustments were made.

In the "Red Bullet" of the Italian high speed flight, the machine in which Lieut. Francesco Agello has flown 440 miles an hour, the problem of propeller torque has been solved without the use of controlable pitch blades.

The Macchi 72 plane used for the record breaking dashes is fitted with a Fiat double motor generating 3,500 horse power. In reality this motor is two 12 cylinder vee type motors built tandem into a single crank case. Each motor turns its own propeller.

Both propellers are fitted on the nose of the low wing racer as shown in Figure 11. One turns clockwise, driven by the front motor, and the other counterclockwise, driven by the rear motor. All torque is eliminated and consequently the designers were able to clip the wings of the craft to the point where it lands and takes off at 130 miles an hour.

1 Results shown in the top graph were taken from actual tests made with a Curtiss Condor twin-engine biplane transport, using successively three different propellers—a fixed pitch, a two-position variable, and an infinite pitch. Distance necessary in each case for take-off run is shown. The same airplane, successively fitted with the same three types of propellers and Cyclone F11 mildly supercharged engines, gave the results shown in the bottom graph when tested for cruising speed at various altitudes.

Who Rides On a Tiger

Captain Castledyne Renews an Old Friendship, Wins a Wife and a Fortune, Then Resumes His Former Place in the Gay World of London Society

By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes

THE STORY TO DATE

Zella Blunt is warned by her older second cousin, John Pomfret, against Capt. Broke Castledyne, who has been escorting Zella about London. John and Zella are due to inherit jointly the palatial mansion known as Jerricks, just outside of London, after the death of their great-aunt, Lady Jane Blunt. Lady Jane's vast wealth, however, will be left to whom she likes, and she disapproves of Zella. So does John, though he secretly loves her. John has heard something shady about Castledyne's war record. Besides, he is married to a wealthy woman years older than himself. Broke Castledyne had met Miss Kinghurst, now his wife, during the war. Later, after the war, when he was nearly destitute, he met her again at a memorial service.

INSTALMENT II.

As the two sat side by side, Capt. Castledyne felt as if the years were slipping backward, all the more so that Miss Kinghurst had altered surprisingly little. She had looked older than thirty-eight when they had shaken hands for the last time in the late autumn of 1918, and she looked younger than forty-nine now. In fact, she was one of those Englishwomen—there are still many such—who, perhaps partly because they have never tried to improve nature, not even by a touch of powder, look very much the same between twenty-five and fifty. Miss Kinghurst's finely textured skin was unwrinkled, and as she was fonder of doing fancywork than of reading her brown eyes were clear, and gleamed under white eyelids. She could still blush, and though there may have been gray threads in her thick brown hair, they scarcely showed. She belonged essentially in appearance, as well as in thought, to the Victorian age.

Again he reminded himself that Miss Kinghurst had liked him "quite a bit" in that dull, staidly conducted country house. She had always stood his friend when he had wanted to go into London out of his turn. But though she had certainly liked him far better than she had any of the other officers he had known instinctively that with her he must mind his step.

Again he smiled at "the old girl," as he called her to himself. It was something quite worth while to be spared a hot, dusty journey in a tram, or worse still, in a third class carriage on a dirty suburban train.

"Is there anywhere in London," she asked, in the even voice he remembered, "where you would like to be put down, Capt. Castledyne?"

With the instinct such a man always has of saying the agreeable thing to any woman, however little he may mean it, he answered: "It's such a pleasure to have met you again that I should like to drive with you to wherever you are going. Then I can take myself off."

"My house is in St. John's Wood; but I can easily arrange for my coachman to drive you on anywhere you like."

* * *

HE FELT astounded. "My house?" "My coachman?" Had one of the women to whom she had acted as companion—he still clung to the notion that such had been her relationship to Lady Angus Scott—left Miss Kinghurst a fortune?

"Let me decide when we reach your house. I'm very much at a loose end, just now."

"If you're not busy I hope you will come in and have"—there came a smile over her firm mouth—"a whisky and soda. I still have some of the pre-war whisky that my father used to offer to his friends. In fact, I'm told I have what is called a good cellar, for, though I'm practically a teetotaler, my dear father was considered an excellent judge of wine."

Her dear father an excellent judge of wine? Castledyne became more and more surprised, and, yes, inwardly excited. He wondered if she lived alone—in fact, all sorts of odd ideas floated through his tortuous mind, as he observed, "Though I'm not a teetotaler, I don't think I'll have a whisky and soda."

"Perhaps I may persuade you to have a little early lunch."

"I shall be delghted!" he exclaimed. And that, indeed, was true. For a long time now he had never felt he could afford to pay enough for what he felt would be a decent meal, and he was almost always hungry.

He drew a bow at a venture: "I was thinking of you only two days ago, Miss Kinghurst."

"Were you really? I know people who claim that they always know when they are going to meet some one they haven't seen for a long time. Are you like that?"

He shook his head decidedly. Then: "The war has remained the one big thing in my life, and you are associated with the war in——" He waited a moment, then ended his sentence, "my heart."

"I remember that time very well, too," she said, in a voice which had in it a moved inflection.

* * *

LATER on in that day, when thinking intently over all that had happened, Broke Castledyne remembered the way she had uttered those few words.

Meanwhile he went on: "I'm a lonely chap, Miss Kinghurst; in fact, I've hardly any friends left. It seems—well, very jolly to have met you again like this!"

To that she said nothing, and he wondered if he had been too gushing. Sorely he told himself that well to do people are often suspicious as regards the impecunious.

"What are you doing now?" she asked.

"Nothing at all. I've worn out many pairs of boots looking for a job, but it's practically impossible to get into any kind of work if one joined up, as I did, in '14. However, I'm an optimist, and"—he smiled a dark, secret smile—"I think I've got something in view at last."

The two remained silent till they reached one of the leafy side roads in St. John's Wood. Here the carriage turned into a broad drive leading to what might have been a small country manor house.

"This is Rosemary lodge, Capt. Castledyne. It is very quiet and retired, as you see."

More than ever did Castledyne curse himself for a fool never to have tried to find Miss Kinghurst. But the thought would never have occurred to him. In the long gallery of women he had charmed and allured in varying degrees this woman had completely faded out.

An elderly butler had opened the door before the footman had had time to touch the bell, and his impassive face registered slight surprise when he saw that his lady was not alone.

They passed into a cool, lofty hall and an open door showed a spacious sitting room with French windows opening on a wide lawn. The turf was beautifully kept, a broad herbaceous border lay beyond the lawn, and a fringe of high trees completely shut out the sight of any other building.

After he had enjoyed an excellent lunch she led the way into the garden, and there the butler brought out coffee, some old brandy, and—delightful surprise—a box of good cigars.

At last he got up, obviously reluctantly, to leave his old-new friend, and as they shook hands his grasp tightened, and his dark gleaming eyes seemed to be mutely imploring her to be kind to him.

"Don't forget," she said at last, and a little nervously, "that I want you to dine with me quite soon."

And then he ventured on a bold stroke. "Quite soon? D'you really mean that?"

"Why, of course I do," and she looked surprised, for she never said anything she did not mean.

"Is there any special evening that would suit you better than another?" he asked.

"Any evening will suit me, except Tuesday the tenth."

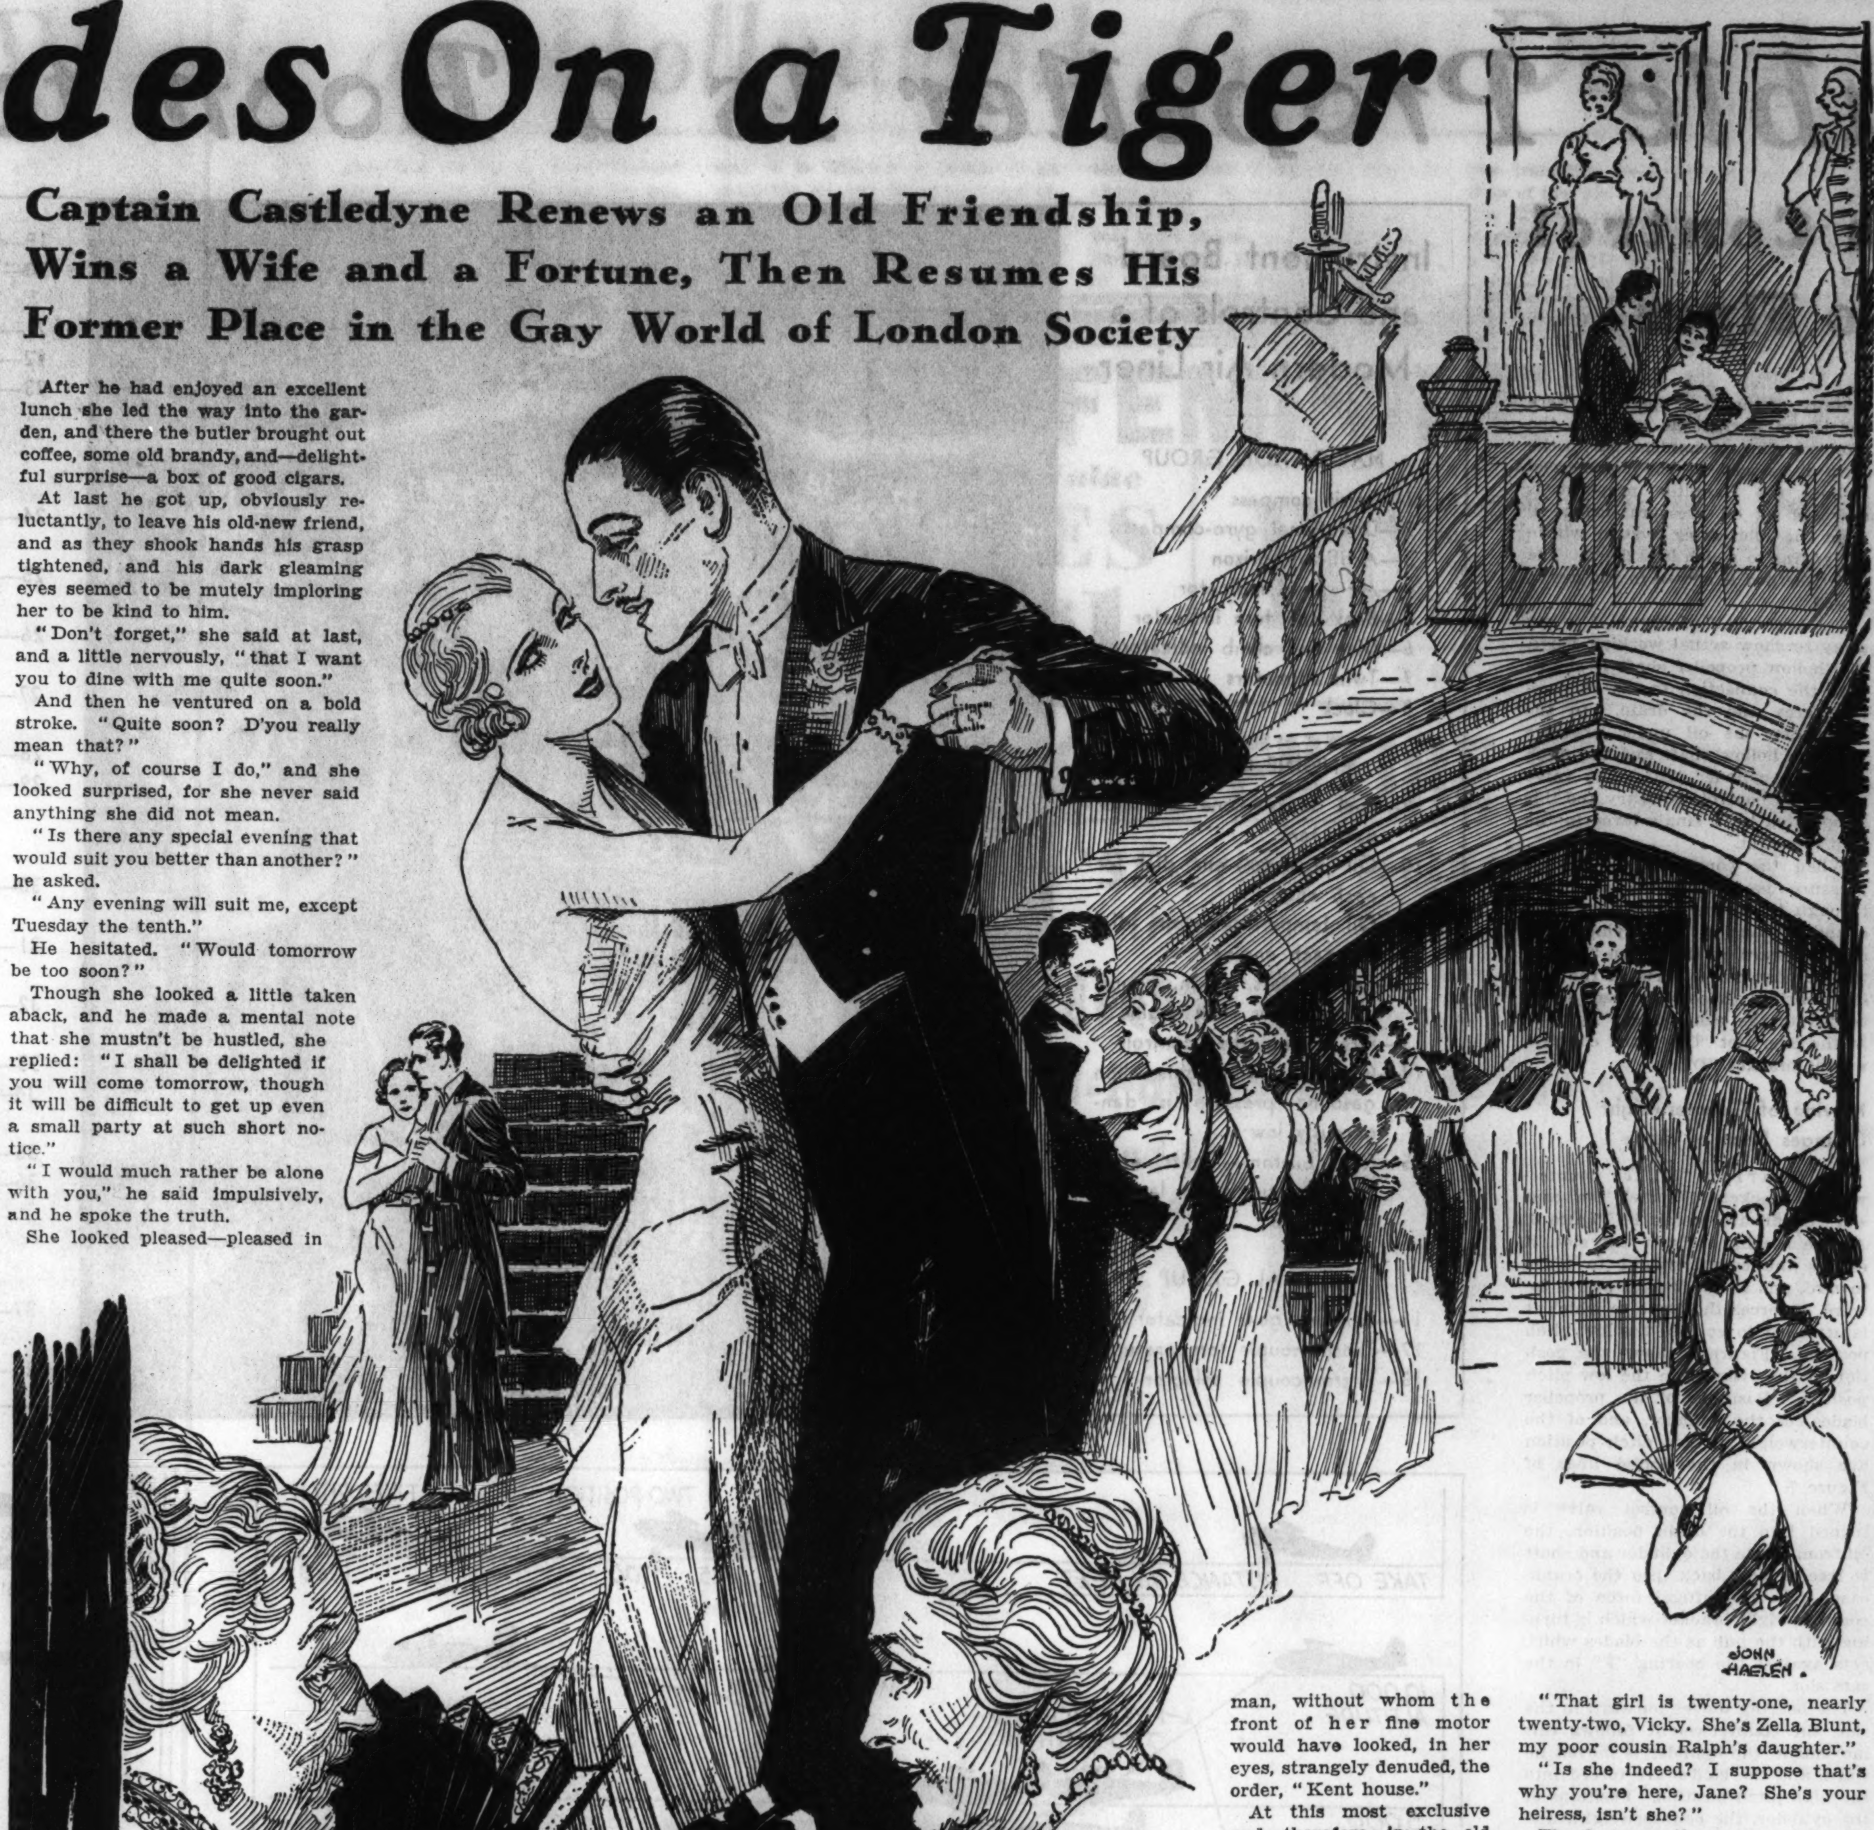
He hesitated. "Would tomorrow be too soon?"

Though she looked a little taken aback, and he made a mental note that she mustn't be hustled, she replied: "I shall be delighted if you will come tomorrow, though it will be difficult to get up even a small party at such short notice."

"I would much rather be alone with you," he said impulsively, and he spoke the truth.

She looked pleased—pleased in a quiet way which he was to learn was her way.

"Very well, Capt. Castledyne. I shall expect you tomorrow at eight, and, if you don't mind, we might dine out of doors—I mean if it's as hot as it is today. My doctor likes me to be as much as possible in the open air."



JOHN HAELEN.

"Look at that pretty little thing," said the duchess. "She might as well be naked in that clinging flesh colored dress."

After leaving Rosemary lodge. Broke Castledyne went and sat down on a bench in the Regent's park, hard by. There he stayed a long, long time, lost in a wonderful daydream he was determined should turn into a wonderful reality.

How extraordinary that in these days there should still be a woman living in the way Agnes Kinghurst lived! Even in the short time at his disposal he had found out a good deal about her by asking skilfully sympathetic questions, and at last he had obtained the clew he was seeking to her curious solitary life when she said simply. "I go out hardly at all, as I am not over strong. As a matter of fact, I never really got over my war work."

After a short pause she added: "I did work very hard," to receive the impulsive reply, "You did, indeed!"

* * *

SHE shook her head. "O, no, I am not thinking of the time at the house of poor Lady Angus. That was nothing! It was before then that I worked really hard. My father was dead, or he would not have allowed me to do so. I stood hours on end each day at a soldiers' canteen. Then, after the war was over, I had—I believe the fashionable word for it is a 'breakdown.' Not that I really broke down," she smiled, "but I suddenly felt as if I couldn't do any more, and I have had to live extremely quiet ever since. People often ask me why I don't change my carriages for a motor car, but I have never felt the slightest wish to do so. I couldn't stand going more quickly than, say, ten to twelve miles an hour."

"I suppose you leave London now and again?" he had asked.

"Very seldom, for I feel happier in my own house. Here," and again she blushed that rather touching, girlish kind of blush, "it sometimes gives me pleasure to entertain a friend."

She had an agreeable voice, but it was always the same voice. It was impossible to think of her as excitable or emotional. And yet the following evening had occurred an incident which had been the real beginning of what Castledyne had good cause to consider his extraordinary good fortune.

They had had dinner and had come indoors, when the door opened and the maid, Fulmer, came in: "I'm afraid Gouch is in trouble again, ma'am."

"O, dear!" Miss Kinghurst looked exceedingly disturbed as she turned to her guest. "It's my old coachman, Capt. Castledyne. Now and again he gets drunk and—and violent."

"Let me go and deal with him——"

She was telling herself how pleasant it was to have a man friend who would do "that kind of thing" for her.

When they parted that evening they had already made what Castledyne gayly called "a rendezvous" to meet at the zoo. And, his luck being in, he ran across next day an old gentleman who had been an admirer of his mother and who gave him outright fifty pounds. That smoothed his way, or rather his wooing, and at the end of five weeks after their first meeting he asked Agnes Kinghurst to marry him and she said "yes."

Unlike what is now believed of most modern couples, as time went on both husband and wife increasingly felt their marriage to have been a success. During his engagement the fact that there was no telephone at Rosemary lodge had often irritated Castledyne. But he came to bless the fact that, when apart, he and his Agnes could only communicate by letter. Soon after their wedding he had cleverly induced her to suggest he should sleep at his club whenever he had occasion to be out after the early hour which saw "lights out" each evening in Rosemary lodge. It never seemed necessary to inform her that he had taken a bedroom and a sitting room in the house where he had once occupied a garret.

IT WAS after eleven and a beautiful evening. Lady Jane Blunt had been to a pleasant dinner party, and for a few minutes she had asked herself whether she wouldn't be driven straight back to Jerricks instead of going on to the duchess of St. Erth's ball at Kent house.

But she had promised to come to this dance. Indeed, she was by way of chaperoning Zella there, though the girl had dined with a young party who were going all together to what was to be a specially brilliant function. So, with an inward sigh, Lady Jane had thrown to the footman, without whom the front of her fine motor would have looked, in her eyes, strangely denuded, the order, "Kent house."

At this most exclusive and, therefore, in the old sense smartest, of the season's great London balls, the chaperon standard was to be raised again. And so set had been the mistress of Kent house on this "come-back" that every invitation sent out to a debutante had included the name of a mother, aunt, or married sister. As for the men, they had been chosen from a reconstituted "list" which at any rate bore a colorable resemblance to the famous list of dancing men which played so important a rôle in Victorian and Edwardian society.

As she had motored into the courtyard of the mansion where over fifty years ago she had been driven to her first ball on the evening of the day which had followed her presentation to Queen Victoria, Lady Jane felt like the wraith of the high spirited girl she had been then. A girl, too, of noble lineage, and a great heiress to boot. Why, all the world had seemed to be, nay, as she looked back, she told herself had been, at her feet!

What would she have felt fifty-one years ago had some malicious sprite whispered in her ear that she would never marry, and so would become what at the time she would have called by the unkind expression of "old maid"? Even more surprised would she then have been to learn that probably her last appearance at a London ball would be here, at Kent house, and in her guise of chaperon to a great-niece of whose ways she did not approve.

As she walked into the first entrance hall a young man pushed by her rudely, and without a word of apology. If such were the manners of "the young," Lady Jane was glad indeed to be old. But she gave the youth a sharp look to make quite sure that he, at any rate, would never be asked to any of the parties for which Jerricks was increasingly noted, as so few of the great country houses near London were now open.

The ballroom was upstairs, and double cube in shape. It looked out onto a lovely garden, on the other side of which lay Hyde Park. Hung with splendid full length family portraits, the general coloring of the apartment was green and gold. The pointed chandelier, which in the days of Lady Jane's youth had held a myriad candles, now shone with hard electric lights.

The ball was at its height; but she made her way with ease and dignity to a long velvet covered bench.

Now, sitting by Lady Jane's side, was the dowager duchess of St. Erth, with whom she had been on terms of familiar unfriendliness the whole of their long lives.

"My dear Jane—I thought you never left Jerricks!"

"That I'm here proves you mistaken."

Her grace gave the other lady a sour look.

"I cannot get accustomed to the growing indecency of the modern girls' frocks. Look at that pretty little thing over there? Luckily she's very slight — I should think about seventeen—but she might as well be naked in that clinging flesh colored dress."

"That girl is twenty-one, nearly twenty-two, Vicky. She's Zella Blunt, my poor cousin Ralph's daughter."

"Is she indeed? I suppose that's why you're here, Jane? She's your heiress, isn't she?"

The last question was put in an eager, inquisitive tone.

"She's not my heiress. You've been quite misinformed, my dear Vicky."

"Surely Ralph Blunt's girl is to have Jerricks when you're dead?"

"Surely not. John Pomfret will, I hope, succeed me at Jerricks."

"At any rate her figure does her credit, and that's something. The third daughter of poor Marjoria Swayne looks positively hideous — like a bag of flour with a cord tied round the middle."

"Well, yes, she does," agreed Lady Jane.

* * *

SHE was wondering, with a touch of anxiety, who a dark, handsome man with whom Zella was dancing could be? She had caught a most unusual expression on the girl's face—and it had greatly surprised her. That expression was rapt, dreamy, enchanted.

"Several debutantes have sloppy looking figures," went on the duchess vindictively. "In our day girls were proud of their eighteen to twenty inch waists. But now ——"

"Now it's much healthier for a girl to be her natural shape than to be tight laced, trussed up, and whaleboned as we were!" exclaimed Lady Jane.

"I wonder if you're right?"

"Of course I'm right! Who ever hears now of a girl turning faint at a party, or, worse still, going into a decline?"

"You always looked almost too healthy, Jane."

"I thank God daily for my good health."

"And then look at the so-called young men. They might all be at Harrow or Eton, and in the lower forms, too. There isn't what I call a man here."

"And you used to be quite an expert," said Lady Jane, smiling brightly for the first time.

The duchess took no notice of that remark.

"In fact, as I told my daughter-in-law yesterday, I don't see the use of giving a ball nowadays. It's just throwing money away. In our day men went to balls to look for wives, and found them, too."

"Sometimes they didn't find them," said Lady Jane calmly. "My first proposal was made in this very room."

"Are you sorry you turned it down?"

"Indeed I'm not," cried Lady Jane, "I'm glad!"

"Well, my dear, you've been luckier than most women, for you've had a wonderful life. Doing exactly as you liked, going here, there, and everywhere. After all, love is a handicap, as my youngest grandson said to his nurse a few days ago."

"One needn't have to be married to know what love can be," said the other lady tartly.

"Naughty! Naughty!" said the duchess roguishly.

"I didn't mean that."

"My dear Jane, of course I was only joking. By the way, how is poor Alfred? You keep him so boxed up at Jerricks that no one ever sees him now. He might as well be dead."

Very nearly did Lady Jane exclaim: "He has always been dead as far as you were concerned, you horrid woman!" For Lord Alfred Lelant, who, so went the mild tale, had asked Lady Jane to marry him at least fifty times, was the duchess' brother-in-law. And each hated the other. Of late years he had spent a good deal of his life at Jerricks, being pampered by his early love, for he had always been delicate, in the comfortable way that an elderly couple who are not married are now allowed by public opinion to dwell together, even without benefit of clergy.

* * *

BUT all Lady Jane said was: "You know as well as I do that he's far too old—in fact, exactly your age, Vicky—to live in the only way he could afford to live in London." Her eyes added the reproach, "You prevented your husband, the late duke, providing for his brother as he ought to have done."

Hastily exclaimed the duchess: "There is only one good looking man now taking the floor, as one used to say. And in a year or two if he goes on going to dances he'll look old enough to be all those boys' father."

"I wonder which man you mean, Vicky?"

But Lady Jane knew quite well.

"I mean a tall, dark man—haven't you noticed him?—he's been dancing ever since I came into this room (and I dined here) with that little fair girl you say is Ralph Blunt's daughter."

"O, that man?"

"Yes, 'that man,'" and she mimicked Lady Jane's tone of indifference. "I like the look of him, and wish I knew his name. Who is he?"

Now Lady Jane Blunt had never before seen the man with whom, according to the dowager duchess of St. Erth, Zella had been dancing since the ball had opened. But for some time she had been watching the couple intently.

Zella's partner was exceedingly good looking, in a fierce, virile way now gone out of fashion. To herself the onlooker described it as a wild-hawk way.

Who could he be? And how was it that Zella had never brought him to Jerricks if, as seemed certain, she knew him well and, so Lady Jane told herself with a touch of discomfort, certainly liked him, while he—that was quite clear—was very much taken with Zella. In any case it was her business, as the girl's great-aunt, to find out something about the man.

Lady Jane's mind, like those of most of the chaperons in that great ballroom, ran on marriage.

As Above, So Below

Look for your birthday or the group in which it appears throughout the following notes—it may be mentioned more than once. Mark it with a pencil wherever you see it, and then heed the counsel given.

By WYNN

EXTERNALLY this week starts off better than it really is and winds up appearing to be worse. Moral: Don't believe externals. Pay particular attention to the new ideas, plans, and propositions that come your way from Wednesday to Friday inclusive, for they are apt to be better than usual and worthy of cultivation. The mind and emotions can be truly creative on those days, so follow your constructive urges and make definite progress. Worrying about money never got anyone credit at the bank, so don't yield to temptings to be fearful during the first half of this week. Today and tomorrow: Remember that the other fellow's case is as important to him as yours is to you; act accordingly. Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday: Make necessary financial adjustments, especially if engaged in anything as a partner—including family budget matters; settle disputes; improve the moral fiber. Friday and Saturday: Raise your gaze to matters distant, actually and figuratively; travel; advertise; improve your relations with those located afar, by mail and otherwise. Next Sunday: Plan ahead on occupational affairs.

Pay Day

There is always a pay day coming, whether we are paying or getting paid. Right now and for a while yet to come there is a period of getting what is deserved in the lives and affairs of those born Jan. 19-Feb. 24 and Oct. 26-Nov. 23, whether or not it happens to be what is wanted. If you were born April 20-May 22 or July 22-Aug. 26, make it your business to adjust all your accounts in love and emotion, as well as in matters of finance, with whomever you are indebted.

Other Worlds

That there are other states of mind and consciousness than the ordinary one about which we know so little probably is true. Genuine spiritualistic phenomena undoubtedly have been produced; but we were not put on this planet in this form of consciousness for the purpose of investigating something else. Our job is to learn the lessons we can and should master when awake and in full possession of all our faculties, not when under the hypnotic or mediumistic spell of other conditions. Take note of this, friends who were born Aug. 7-Sept. 6 and Dec. 7-Jan. 5. Keep both feet at sea level.

The Other Side

Maybe the other side of the fence is a better field; now would be a good time to investigate if you were born Jan. 13-Feb. 12, Feb. 20-March 15, May 23-June 24, July 25-Aug. 26, or Dec. 7-Jan. 5. Look into the advantages of travel, new study, advertising, publication, distribution, writing, and visiting, if your date is in these groups.

Expansion

Progress is good only when it is achieved in the right direction. More of some qualities is worse than not enough. Of some of the negative ones, enough is far too much. In other words, we should be just as careful of our destination as of our speed. And this is particularly true of certain phases of our development during which all our urges are along lines of expansion; we want to grow faster than usual, and seem able to do it. We reach out for everything we can see, trying to make it our own in some way; we cheerfully contract to pay at a later date in physical, mental, and emotional coin, feeling that we shall always be as strong and ambitious as we are at the moment of supreme envisioning of our objectives. We say "I can" even before we know how we can go about the accomplishment. In one or another form this is the attitude of persons born Jan. 12-Feb. 12, April 11-May 18, July 18-Aug. 16, Oct. 14-Nov. 19, and also to some extent of those born Feb. 13-March 15 and June 13-July 17.

650 Girls at Work as Hollywood Goes Dance Crazy

New Releases Will Lean on Terpsichore

"Gold Diggers of 1935" Uses 300; "Roberta," "Rumba" Hire Stars.

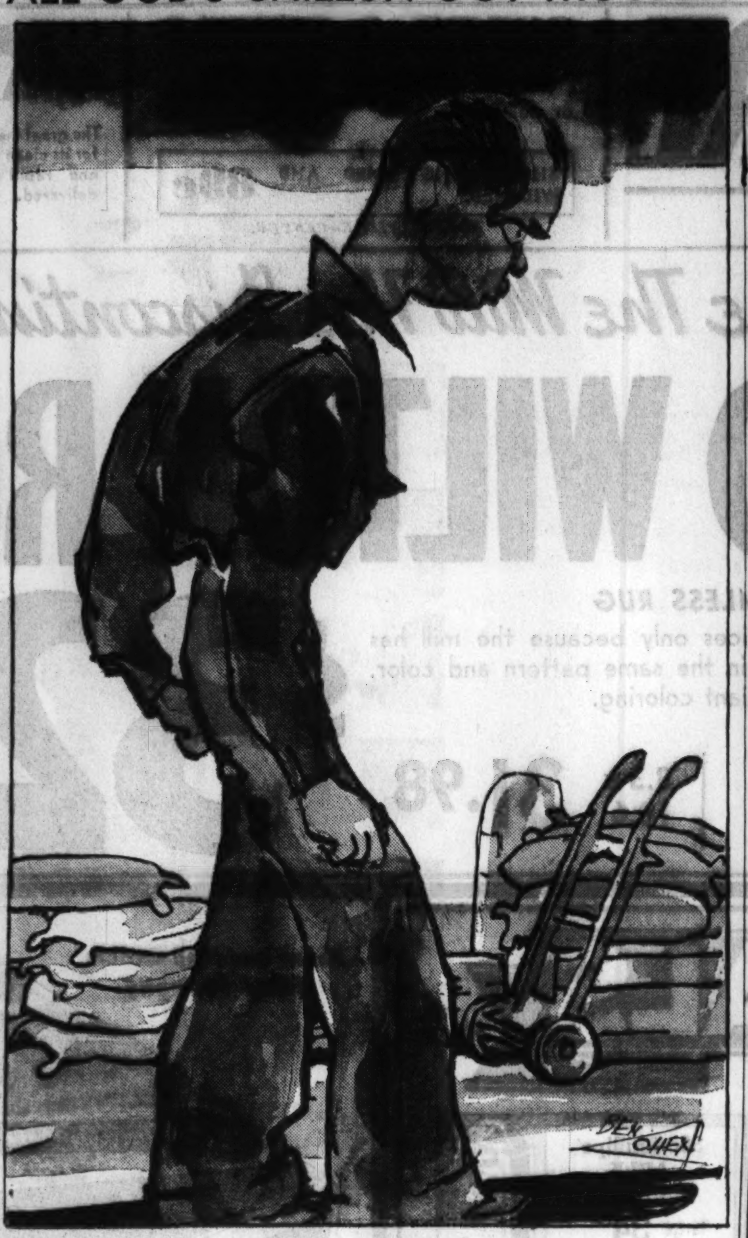
By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Hollywood has gone definitly dance crazy, with every week showing more and more plans for spectacular dance routines for teams and ensembles. Totty Lightfoot is head man around the camera playgrounds.

This week 650 girls are working in dance numbers at the various studios. Busby Berkeley is busy again, with 200 Berkeley beauties and 100 male dancers working on ensembles for "Gold Diggers of 1935." Hermes Pan, dance director at Radio, is doing dance scenes for "Roberta." At Paramount the finish upon "Rumba" shows George Raft with three dance partners, Carole Lombard, Margo, and Iris Adrain, and the ballroom team of Veloz and Yolanda thrown in for good measure.

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, of course, are the top dance star team ever since "The Gay Divorcée"—and such a rage are dance teams that Moore and Leon, dancing at the Coconut Grove, were snapped up at once for films. Shirley Temple even is going for it, doing a neat tap routine with Bill Robertson, ace colored tap dancer, in "The Little Colonel."

ALL GOD'S CHILLUN GOT TROUBLES



[Drawing by Ben Cohen.]

Here is a character study of Jack Carter, player of Lonnie, the Negro dock laborer who gets himself and his neighbors into a heap of trouble in "Stevedore," the race riot drama now at the Selwyn theater. Carter is a seasoned professional with years of dramatic stock in Harlem in his background and a fine piece of acting in the Theater Guild's staging of the successful "Porgy" as his top note.

Dances in "Folies Bergere" Send Girls to Hospital.

Literally stretching the dance business to its greatest lengths is the dance ensemble in Maurice Chevalier's "Folies Bergere," with Merle Oberon. This particular ensemble is done on a huge revolving stage made to simulate the straw brim of Maurice Chevalier's hat. The shoes of the girls are riveted to the stage, and the girls, with their feet in them, do marvelous feats of leaning that suggest that they are floating in air as the revolving stage turns. Dave Gould, who invented this hey-hay wire straw hat number, says that the muscles in the girls' legs must be able to stretch four inches in the course of the maneuvers, which can hardly be called dancing. Eight out of twenty of the girls went to the hospital with legs swollen and distended by the demands made on them.

Just what is it worth to be a dancing girl in Hollywood? In cold cash, when the girls work, its worth $50 a week. She is paid overtime when the directors cannot avoid it. Nobody wants overtime in the dance business, however, because's a day's work finds a girl completely worn out, if she has been lucky enough to stay with it through the exhausting routines.

After Three Years Chorine May Graduate to Waitress.

Requirements are stringent. The dancer must have the endurance of a horse. She must be able to learn a routine quickly, as overhead on dance sets is tremendous. She must be young, pretty in the fact, and shapely. If she is able to stand the pace for three years she is exceptional and can then qualify as a waitress in one of the cheaper restaurants along the boulevard, where they feature singing waitresses, if she has a stand-in with the proprietor. The casualties from varicose veins, fallen arches, puffy ankles, which, of course, cannot be used before the camera, are pretty tremendous. There is no line of work in pictures, even the stunt work, that takes such a tremendous toll. Dave Gould says that in looking up the girls he used last year for dance work he found few of them able to qualify for the above mentioned reasons, and also "they lose their looks quickly, as they do not take the care of themselves that is necessary to keep the youthful, fresh appearance so necessary to such work before the camera."

What's the answer? The new girls, those just fresh in the business, who have not been at it long enough to wear out.

Working in pictures is much more strenuous for dancers than stage dancing would be. In a show for the theater the girls learn their routines and then perform them nightly for the run of the show, with rehersals every day. In movies it is work all day, perhaps half the night, constantly learning new routines.

Length of Fingers Disqualifies One Dancer.

Men stand the dance racket better, for nature doesn't make them so prone to disabilities as their frailer sisters. Yet the hope that luck will make him another Fred Astaire and her another Marilyn Miller keeps the chorus man and the chorine up and at 'em.

One pretty little dancer, fragile as Dresden and peppy as a colt, tells a funny story about her tests for the miniature ballet scene in the beginning sequence of "The Gay Divorcée," where the girls put dolls on their fingers and make their fingers serve as legs for the tiny doll. After all her tests were completed and her dancing face, figure, and ability to pick up a routine quickly were all approved, she was told that she wouldn't do, as her second finger was longer than her first and she couldn't possibly do the doll routine. The gal is still wondering how the other girls managed, as every one is born with that same disability, if normal. This girl can laugh, for she lives at home with her parents. It mightn't be so funny to a girl on her own, a thousand miles from home and a square meal.

Hollywood Plans to Revise Shakespeare.

Hollywood is taking a terrible chance at being laughed at heartily, it seems, for already Hollywood itself is laughing. The Warner Brothers have written in a part for Mrs. Bottom in "Midsummer Night's Dream." The idea is to give a home scene with Bottom and a bulldozing wife. Since Shakespeare didn't think of it, or maybe because he wasn't writing for the screen and the actors we have nowadays, Bottom had no wife. This was a grave oversight, as the Warners want James Cagney, who plays Bottom, to be bossed by a wife, probably for variety this time, as Cagney has always smacked 'em down before. This story was told briefly a couple of weeks ago and then it was denied lustily; but it is fully substantiated now by the studio. There has never been anything quite like this since Mary Pickford and Doug Fairbanks did "The Taming of the Shrew," billed by Shakespeare, with additional dialog by Sam Taylor." To give the producers their fair due, it is something of a problem to translate any classic to the screen. The medium is different, with limitations and possibilities peculiarly its own, and it is difficult to make it go smoothly on one hand and not offend the classicists on the other.

Just in case you haven't heard it, the palm goes to Darryl Zanuck for his remark that "Les Miserables" is "just a fugitive from a chain gang" in costume.

There is another hunt on for a beef trust chorus to be used by William Anthony McGuire for a scene in "The Great Ziegfeld," showing the transition from the burlesque days of the '90s to the glorified beauties of later years. Those who can qualify for the beef trust chorus must weigh 150 pounds, be able to dance, and look good.

Our Gang, Hal Roach's gang of rascals, has two new recruits, Cecilia Murray, aged 4½, potential leading lady gangster, and William Thomas, colored, another and later edition of Farina.

NEXT WEEK: BEAUTIFUL CO-EDS OF LAKE FOREST COLLEGE

Intellectuals Now Pivot of Social Whirl

Celebrities of Artistic World Gather at Brilliant Party for Stravinsky.

By Cousin Eve.

A SUNDAY night party at the Arts club, beautifully done, in honor of a musical man, Igor Stravinsky.

Charming atmosphere—talented people, outpouring of musicians, somewhat social. In all a handsome audience, avid for life's scattered joys, with candlelight casting flattering gleams on notable faces. The long gallery was draped in white. Against it at intervals strangely carved and painted grotesqueries of war from South Sea Islands grimacing at the diners. Three hundred guests at the dinner tables snug as sardines.

Familiarity with the Arts club breeds forgetfulness of its handsomeness. Sitting beside me, a wayfarer of distinction, Austin Strong, a step-grandson of Robert Louis Stevenson, whose early years were lived in Samoa. To him the long vistas of the Arts club, its arrangements and exhibits, were a matter of great beauty. And Brancusi's "Flight of a Bird," a unique oblong of brass balancing on a block of wood, a supremely amusing whimsy. Mr. Strong, staying with Leeds Mitchell, is a dramatist, author of many plays. His "Seventh Heaven" has played round the world in many lands, in Japanese and Chinese, too.

Claire Dux Swift Can't Say Much About Stravinsky's Songs.

After dinner there were speeches. John Alden Carpenter saluted the noted composer in his most charming, flattering manner. Referred to his earlier visit.

Leaping to his feet, Stravinsky replied in French. One saw a tiny man, birdlike, spectacled, in well fitting dinner jacket. Claire Dux Swift followed. As a singer she was speaking and so had little to say of the great maestro, for his principal songs for soprano were "Songs of the Cat." And Mrs. Swift said that she had no desire to sing in miaows, however soft and alluring they might be. These speakers and thirty or forty more guests were invited to sit at the head table by Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, president of the club. Her costume of white crêpe with long angel wings was charming, extremely simple. Marquesa d'Ivanrey headed one wing of the table, Mrs. Frederic Upham at the Later a musical program, "Octuor," for wind instruments, first time in Chicago. On the little stage trombones, trumpets, bassoons, clarinets, flute, with Eric DeLamarter leading. John Carpenter prefaced the performance by saying that Stravinsky had utterly changed his style since his last visit. He had indeed completely destroyed musical forms and hurdled into the infinite in his art, crashing all architectural patterns.

Some Thought "Octuor" Like German Band on Frosty Night.

One must hand it to the musicians, each tootling on his own business. Some of my neighbors thought the "Octuor" sounded like German bands on a frosty New Year's day. To Robert Stevenson it was like a walk down the corridor of a music conservatory, with simultaneous sounds of many instruments and all kinds of fragmentary airs over the transoms.

It was music without music.

Then Stravinsky gave us a surprise. The "Octuor" was repeated, he leading. I must say I liked the piece better. But his songs, by Mary Ann Kaufman, I found abrupt and disconcerting. In fact, Stravinsky is an acquired taste.

Apropos of music, Rudolph Ganz, an accomplished phrase maker, says: "The seventeenth century gave us music of the heart. The eighteenth gave us music of the soul. For the head came productions of the nineteenth century, and in our epoch music has mostly been written for the feet—ballet and such.

"It is now time for a return to music of the heart. Everything goes in cycles."

Marion Kirby's Art a Moving Thing.

It was a week of teas, two a day and sometimes three. Hither and yon. Mrs. Frederic Upham's party for the Misses Sallie and Marion Kirby was rather large. On a Friday after the concert there were many musicians, figures of society, personalities.

Twice during the afternoon Marion Kirby gave one or two of her famous Negro spirituals. Her art is a moving, remarkable thing. A woman for years an actress has become a singer. Usually opera singers become actresses.

Born in the south, Marion Kirby has delved into the strange old chants of the Negroes. She has given programs in London, in Paris, but only privately in Chicago. Even her costume was interesting. A batlike gray crêpe with long wings over flesh pink satin, it was a spontaneous tribute of design for her recitals by a London man who designs for her majesty.

Miss Kirby sings to piano accompaniment, and her hearers were moved to tears by the plaintive rhythms. The setting, Mrs. Upham's drawing room, is one of the most original and lovely in town. Flooded with light from the east, its walls are a luminous brown tinged with violet. Over the chimney a dashing portrait of the hostess. An important old French picture reigns on the south wall. The furnishings, flowers, and lamps are all light, contrasting. Also the beautiful flowered rug. The proportions of this room are perfect. The nearby dining room is paneled in peacock blue enamel with gold figures, a rather oriental matter, but French maybe. I really almost forget who was in this distinguished ever changing gathering besides many of musical tastes. But Samuel Insull was one who seemed greatly moved by Marion Kirby's warm, magnetic voice and sense of humor.

Friends Crowd Kulikowski Apartment to Say Farewell.

That same hour Edward Kulikowski, departing Polish consul, and his charming sister, Mme. Joanna di Higersberger, were at home for the last time. Their apartment at the Belmont was fairly bursting with guests, calling to say good-by. The hostess, who is tall, dark, and graceful as a panther, was becomingly swathed in black velvet. Only her white arms were bare and these were covered with dozens of silver bracelets, studded with huge turquoises

Going to Washington to the Polish embassy is in the line of promotion for Edward Kulikowski, who is a hard working young diplomat. Being tall, distinguished, and over the average in looks, he will be gobbled up at sight by Washington hostesses, who sorely need bachelors at their dinners and routs. But Kulikowski says he shall be quiet and hard working as a monk on his new post.

Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, Katharine Linn, the Robert McC. Adams, Mrs. Edward Litsinger, Gertrude McCarthy, the Malcolm Hendersons, Peggy Hambleton, and Prince and Princess Rostislav were at the party. The last named, tall, lovely person, has had long letters from her mother, Princess Galitzin, with nice details of the royal wedding. The princess is visiting a beautiful daughter, Mrs. James Campbell, in Scotland. Mr. Campbell put on the kilt of his clan for the ceremonies, and Queen Mary spoke to Mrs. Campbell of the beauty of her dress. A high moment, when the royal bride, Princess Marina, an ethereal vision of loveliness, stopped at the church door and threw a kiss to the right and a kiss to the left at the waiting thousands. Happy bride, charming gesture.

British Consulate, Army and Navy Out in Full Force for Tea.

The Arts club had its largest tea of the season that day also. Mrs. James Ward Thorne had taken over her duties as chairman of the social committee from Mrs. Potter Palmer and was present, lovely in attractive costume, silver and black, tunic and skirt.

The tea table set in the small gallery with Alice Gerstenberg and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh doing the honors. About this the crowd swirled. The British consulate was out in force, the army and the navy, Col. and Mrs. Graham, Col. and Mrs. Thuis, Maj. and Mrs. John Winslow.

Admiral Wat Cluverius gave me the good news that his charming wife is well after a long siege. And the sad news that his shore duty may end in June. Sea duty is always good news to a naval officer, and nobody can expect the ultra popular rear admiral to repine at being aboard ship again. Nice as we are, with engaging ways, we Chicago people.

John Laurence Seymour a Gay and Witty Musician.

Miss Emily Larned's American Opera society luncheon was a rather sparkling party, at the Arts club in mid-week. Present was Rosetter Cole, whose opera, "The Maypole Lovers," has much lovely music. Several amorous scenes were sung before lunch, and after meat the scholarly musician was decorated by Mrs. Archibald Freer with the Bispham medal.

Present also was John Laurence Seymour of Sacramento, on his way to New York for the première, Jan. 21, at the Metropolitan, of his "Pasha's Garden." Mr. Seymour made an amusing speech. He is not at all the long haired musician, taking himself au serieux, but rather the gay, witty blade, the Young Lochinvar out of the west. He was to be married soon, it seemed.

Miss Larned was highly pleased because Walter Damrosch had asked the Metropolitan to give an English performance of "Die Meistersinger" in honor of his fiftieth anniversary.

I never go to one of the American opera luncheons that two or three women do not whisper in my ear how they absolutely detest opera in English. Funny world!

Mrs. Otho Ball Displays Portrait of Herself.

Another benefit, and this a good one. We board a showboat, the Dixiana, moored in the north branch of the noble Chicago river. An ancient melodrama, "In Missouri," is to be given, and the fashionable audience, which is being recruited by Miss Jane Morton and Mrs. George Voevodsky of Lake Forest, will purchase seats to benefit the Chicago Nursery and Half Orphan asylum, an institution of long standing.

Another of this recent flock of teas which I found interesting or amusing was a portrait tea chez Mrs. Otho Ball. This lady, amiable and blonde, is the mother of the beautiful Mrs. Gerald Wellesly of London. Her type is opulent and decorative. In short, a splendid subject for the habile brushwork of Count Arroldo Tambourini of Florence. As I write the magical name Tambourini, I feel like throwing down my pen and dancing a mad fandango all over the place. But the count is not like his name; he is settled, serious, rangé, a fast worker.

The portrait, on the living room wall, is handsome. Dressed in emerald velvet, honey colored hair piled high, and elaborately jeweled hands and wrists, the subject is done in a large, splendid way.

Also present was Mrs. George Dryden of Evanston; she too is being painted by Tambourini. Her portrait is a color study in ruby velvet, chinchilla, and silver, and pleases the subject mightily. The painter showed me two superlative photographs of portraits done in Italy. One of Pope Pius XI. in pontifical robes—magnificent. The other a Napoleonesque head and shoulders, done ten years ago, remarkably stunning. I recognized the handsome man at once. In Italy one calls him "Mr. Smith." In Chicago it is "Mussolini."

Tambourini has painted Marie of Rumania. In painting the Pope, he spent seven months as a guest in the Vatican.

Pouring tea at Mrs. Ball's beautifully appointed tea table, Mrs. Sydney Heap, one of the handsome younger matrons.

AT THE EMERSON HOUSE BALL

Miss Isabel Gordon, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Gordon, seems to grow more popular each season. She was a debutante three years ago. Her escort at the Emerson house ball Jan. 11 at the Congress hotel was Edmund Sullivan, with her here.

N. Y. Smirks at Fake Party for 'Babs' Mdivani

But Jules Glaenzer Furious at Jokester Who Wired Bogus Invitations.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK

Town is still divided in opinion as to whether to giggle or frown at the practical joke that had Jules Glaenzer giving a party for Princess Babs Mdivani last week. The gay or otherwise soul who conceived the idea was not parsimonious. It cost him a pretty penny to send each of us a wire signed with Jules' name, bidding all the rounders to a buffet at Jules' 65th street house.

Of course, your Nancy was most suspicious, since every one knows quite well that Babs has been good and sick at the Hutton apartment on the avenue. Jules fairly frothed at the mouth as he dashed off wires to denounce the joke and beg us all to expose the jokester. I have a keen remembrance that the slick haired Jules used to be somewhat of a practical joker himself. Anyhow, the only regretful thing about the incident is that Babs is still not well. It is all, I'm certain, the result of her "coffee diet" that enabled her to lose thirty pounds in one year and gave her that svelte figure she's been displaying. Babs certainly overdid her reducing and now she's paying for it. Taking off thirty pounds when one is barely past 21 is flying in the face of the gods. And they have a habit of retaliating!

Tony Biddle Wants Something Better than Irish Free State.

There's no doubt that Tony Biddle is hanging around the home soil in expectations of a diplomatic job. They've offered Handsome Tony the post of minister to the Free State, but Tony doesn't exactly want that. With his prestige abroad and Margaret's tin, he feels that he would go better in one of the continental countries. Me, I think so, too, but it saddens me to think of Tony grown up. And how grown up! When I saw him at a party with his daughter and son, both just ready to dash into the grown-up ranks, it gave me something of a shock. I just can't think of Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr. as a father closely removed from being a father-in-law. Still, I hope the Biddles get the post they want, for they'd certainly advance the diplomatic standing in the way of entertaining. E como.

We are more than a little interested in the arrival on Tuesday of the countess of Warwick. Her ladyship has not been here before, but none of us can forget her husband, the earl, who was here quite often before his marriage to the one-time Rose Bingham and aided the gayety of Palm Beach one or two winters in the company of his cousin, the duke of Sutherland.

Earl of Warwick Not Coming Here with Wife.

Warwick was supposed to be favoring a broken heart, having been engaged at one time to the former Margaret Whigham, a pal of Rose's, and niece of Jim Whigham, magazine editor. After a trip to Egypt, Peg broke the engagement and married Charlie Sweeny, the American who plays golf in all the British tournaments. It was that the descendant of the king maker arrived on these shores for a seven months' stay. When he returned to England he married Rose, one of Mayfair's beauties.

The earl is not accompanying his wife, and rumor has it that the marriage of less than two years is one of those things. Anyhow, we shall see Rose at the Colony, where every one gathers at lunch time, and probably later on at Palm Beach. She can hardly be expected not to give the Florida spa the once over. She'll have more invites than she'll be able to accept.

More Youthful Social Leaders Flock to the Stage.

I think I shall have to stop mentioning the newcomers from society to the field of entertainment. Eve Symington may have been the first, but, my goodness, how many are following in her footsteps? Lois Elliman, Virginia Uppercu, Geraldine Lee, Marjorie Logan, and scads of others began to chant in night clubs. Now we have further additions from society to Broadway. Julie Gillespie, daughter of the Thomas Gillespies of Sutton place, is singing in the Byzantine bar of the Delmonico.

Also Diana Dickinson, granddaughter of Sir John Lavery, the famous artist, is in new revue at the Reno Merry-Go-Round. Then, there is Gay Adams, daughter of W. Herbert Adams, who has just begun singing in the Club Normandie at the Hotel Navarro. And to make it even more social, the orchestra there is directed by Hayward Powers, another socialite.

Gosh! I don't wonder the Broadway professionals are weeping and tearing their hair, but what intrigues me is, will the moguls of the social register, famous for shunning anything that smacks of the bright lights, proceed to drop all the girls from the book? Heh, heh! If they do, they'll find their paper cost has dropped and the book become much, much thinner.

THE PARTIES ARE OVER

Now that the season is over and she is officially "out," Miss Priscilla Morse, the debutante daughter of the Milton M. Morses of Lake Forest, is resting from the fatigue caused by the many late hours and parties.

Several Events of Week to Aid Philanthropy

Three Women's Groups Give Parties to Increase Revenue for Charity.

By Ruth DeYoung.

CHARITY coffers will be swelled this week with the proceeds from affairs that rival the benefit parties of the pre-holiday season in size and importance.

For the sake of hundreds of helpless women and children, directors and friends of the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial, at 2412 Prairie avenue, will play bridge Tuesday afternoon in the gold ballroom of the Palmer house.

In the grand ballroom of the Palmer house on Saturday afternoon the auxiliary of the House of the Good Shepherd, one of the most deserving philanthropies in the city, will have its annual benefit card party.

Charity Party to Provide Funds for Tuberculosis Care.

Weeks of unceasing activity on the part of the members of the Willing Workers' Woman's club will culminate this evening in the charity fête which the club is to have at the Sherman hotel to carry forward its tubercular treatment at the Winfield hospital.

The Alliance of Business and Professional Women will have a bridge party for the sake of charity next Saturday afternoon at the Drake hotel, and on Friday several hundred of the city's feminine philanthropists will play bridge at the party which the Little Wanderer Day Nursery board is to have at the Congress hotel.

Sarah Hackett Stevenson Home Refuge for Women.

Since 1893 the Sarah Hackett Stevenson home has stood as a hope and promise to women and children in trouble. It must be remembered that it usually is a last resort. The circumstances that direct a woman or girl into its doors is an unhappy one and no other solution presents itself to the one who asks for aid.

MRS. GEORGE J. ASTE.

She is taken in, however, with sympathetic understanding. No questions are asked at the time, but food, shelter, and clothing are given. Its motto is "Help First; Investigate Afterward."

Seeing a dire need for protection of this sort at the close of the Columbian Exposition, Dr. Sarah Hackett Stevenson, president of the Chicago Woman's club and a devoted lover of humanity, organized the home. Since then it has expanded several times until it now has four large buildings adjoining the original. Miss Martha J. Moe, the president, reports that the Sarah Hackett Stevenson family consisted of 482 women and 460 children last year

House of Good Shepherd Long Haven for Wayward Girls.

In many respects the work of the House of the Good Shepherd, at 1126 Grace street, resembles that of the Stevenson home, for it has been working for the reclamation and preservation of unruly girls and wayward women ever since its organization in 1859.

During this span of years approximately 20,000 persons have been received and cared for by the sisters, regardless of nationality or creed. There are three divisions at the House of the Good Shepherd. The junior section, entirely distinct from the reformatory, cares for children not eligible for entrance in any orphanage. The reformatory is a corrective division for older girls and women who have either voluntarily sought or been committed to the sisters' care.

Magdalens Famous for Their Exquisite Skill with Needle.

Those who do not choose to return to everyday activity after a reasonable period of time stay on in the convent to follow a religious life. These are the Magdalens, who are known the world over for their beautiful handiwork, such as monogramming, hemming fine linens, and preparing layettes and trousseaux, for which work a reasonable charge is made.

Some of this lovely needlework is to be used as awards for the card party which the auxiliary is to have next Saturday at the Palmer house. Mrs. A. R. Eldridge is honorary president of the auxiliary, with Mrs. George W. Mahoney as president. Other officers include Miss Nellie Harper, Mrs. Edward F. Garrighan, Mrs. George J. Aste, Mrs. William J. Lawlor, Mrs. J. J. Crowley, and Miss Ella F. McCoy. The Rev. Mother Mary St. Augustine is supervisor of the House of the Good Shepherd.

Winfield Sanitarium Benefits from Willing Workers' Club.

The Willing Workers' Woman's club helps in the financing of tubercular children at the Winfield hospital and also assists in caring for the families of tubercular patients while the head of the family is undergoing tubercular treatment. Working with the Jewish Tuberculosis service, the club has carried on this work for years, undismayed even by the lean depression years.

MRS. O. J. ROSKOPH.

Some of the things for which Winfield sanitarium thanks the Willing Workers are its modern dental equipment, its up to date refrigerating system, its diet kitchen, its X-ray department, its $28,000 children's building, and the constant inflow of funds to maintain these departments. In Chicago itself the Willing Workers are day by day fighting off tuberculosis with rich milk, fresh eggs, and proper clothing for families in distress.

Mrs. William Sultan, as president of the Willing Workers, will be hostess at the fête tonight. Mrs. O. J. Roskoph is the general chairman. The proceeds from the affair will be added up at a club meeting at 1:30 Wednesday at the Real Estate Board building. Samuel A. Goldsmith, executive director of the Jewish Charities, will discuss "What Can We Do to Help?" at this meeting.

Proceeds of Party to Go to Funds for Education.

Miss Ruth L. Mannow is chairman of the card party which the Alliance of Business and Professional Women is to have Saturday at the Drake hotel. Proceeds will go to the alliance's welfare and education fund. Mrs. Nellie D. Small is chairman of the ticket committee and Miss Katherine E. Gerhardt chairman of prizes.

The Little Wanderer Day nursery depends for its support in large part upon the proceeds from its annual card party to be held Friday at the Congress. Founded in 1905, the nursery is one of the largest and oldest in the city. It is a nonsectarian institution giving daytime care to the children of working mothers. The approximate number of boys and girls cared for in a quarter of a century is 18,000.

Mrs. Edgar R. Olson is president of the nursery board and Mrs. Chester Ihle is chairman of the card party. The nursery superintendent is Miss Ann Brockett.

CHAIRMAN OF HOSPITAL BENEFIT

Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody is general chairman of a benefit that promises to be among the most interesting given this winter: the performances of the Abbey Theater Players of Dublin on Jan. 28 and 29 at the Harris theater. The Little Company of Mary hospital is the beneficiary. The players will present "The New Gossoon" and "The Far Off Hills."

Penmen's Work on White House Staf Is Described

Their Precise Handwriting, Resembling Engraving, Fills In Invitations.

THE quintet of official White House penmen is a group that has been neglected too long in American history. These are the men who literally "write like print." Without the services of their precise pens Uncle Sam's printing bill would leap hundreds of dollars. They boast an "engraver's" hand—script that is so faithful an imitation of engraving that invitations to White House functions can be standard "forms," turned out by the thousand with spaces left for these men to fill in the necessary personal data.

Tolley Chief of Penmen at White House for Twenty Years.

The other day Adrian Barclay Tolley, "senior" penman, took time out from his laborious letter writing to explain the joys and sorrows of the job. He has served his country as high priest of penmanship for almost a score of years now. Tolley was summoned to the White House in 1915 to address the wedding announcements when President Wilson married Edith Bolling Galt, his second wife. During his long term of service he has inscribed the correspondence in both the personal and social crises of several President's lives. When Harding died Mrs. Harding had Tolley write replies to the notes of condolence from the ambassadors. Coolidge's invitations to dinner for Lindbergh and Queen Marie of Rumania were supplemented by his "engraver's" hand, as were also the summonses the Hoover sent out for their ultra-formal function to the king and queen of Siam.

Year Used on Invitations for Souvenir Purposes.

As senior member of the penmanship corps, Tolley executes the dinner invitations and place cards and writes the names in the dinner table seating charts, which are photostated, bound, indexed, and become part of the permanent records of the White House. The dinner invitations which Tolley fills in with the proper details invariably read as follows: "The President and Mrs. Roosevelt request the pleasure of the company of ——— at dinner ——— at eight o'clock." Tolley's dextrous pen inserts the names and the date. At the bottom he writes the year. He can do thirty or forty invitations a day.

"Engravers say using the year is not proper," Tolley remarks, "but ambassadors and cabinet members who get invitations from year to year want to keep them as souvenirs. So we make that concession to history.

"I always could write," he adds. "My mother was one of the finest Spencerian penwomen I ever saw."

Tolley avers the Coolidges kept him busy; the Hoovers, busier; the Roosevelts, busiest.

The four "under" penmen of the White House, P. E. Strievy, R. M. Roudabush, Ervin Davis, and Harry H. Little, execute the invitations to receptions, teas, musicals, and the like. They send out about 15,000 invitations a season, all considered "confidential" because they bear the President's crest. Their peak week is about three thousand.

NewBook Guide to Pronouncing Artists' Names

G. E. Kaltenbach of Arf Institute Gives Phonetics of 1,500 Cognomens.

By Eleanor Jewett.

A MOST interesting publication by the Art institute is the little handbook "Pronunciation of Artists' Names," by G. E. Kaltenbach, museum registrar. Fifteen hundred names are included, with their pronunciation by sound and each artist's school and dates. Although you may be amazed now and again at how frightfully incorrectly you had some man's name fixed in your mind—for instance Vincent Van Gogh (I doubt if any uninstructed American could even imagine the correct Dutch pronunciation of Gogh)—you will readily concede that Mr. Kaltenbach has gone to great lengths to set your tongue right. He does it kindly and patiently.

The book is a treasure-trove to student, teacher, critic, or whomsoever concerns himself or herself with art. To skim it is an education; to study it, a pleasant and profitable task; to learn it, a quick way by which to raise one's self-conceit to snobbish heights above the level of one's less well informed neighbor. Mr. Kaltenbach is to be congratulated upon seeing a need and filling it. The book should be in the library of every art student. It is an authoritative dictionary, setting standards with which few will quibble. The booklet may be purchased from the Art institute of Chicago. It is priced at 50 cents, 8 cents more for postage if obtained through the mail.

Faber Birren Publishes Erudite Book on Color.

Faber Birren, the son of the landscape painter Joseph Birren, whose death left a gap in the ranks of Chicago painters which no one has yet been able to fill, has recently published "Color Dimensions" [the Crimson Press], a book for the technician and the artist. It treats in serious fashion the problems of color. The amateur will, perhaps, not get much from the closely printed pages, in spite of the diagrams that illustrate the text, but the serious student may find it profitable to study the treatise. The book is attractive in appearance. Mr. Birren may sweep the tyro out of his depth, but that can hardly be laid at his door as a fault. The book is for the practical worker and those who have more than a superficial knowledge of the difficulties attending the laying on of color.

◆

This seems to be becoming a bookish Sunday, but no matter. A third book to have reached our desk recently is "Rogers Groups," by Mr. and Mrs. Chetwood Smith [Charles E. Goodspeed & Co., Boston, publishers]. John Rogers (1829-1904) was one of the best loved of American sculptors, and probably his work was found in more households during his lifetime than that of any other sculptor who has ever lived. He modeled simple subjects as well as those related to the civil war. He kept his plaster groups at a low cost and rejoiced to learn that they went by the score into American homes up and down the land. His later larger groups and single figures in bronze graced many a village and town. A generation was brought up on "Rogers groups." Today a review of the illustrations in this book brings many of them to mind. Few there are who will not remember "The Picket Guard," "The Slave Auction," and "Bubbles."

Volume on John Rogers a Valuable Addition to Americana.

His children's figures were great favorites, and so were those of horses and pets. Checkers was a great game to him, and he played with the subject in several noteworthy statuettes. He did of himself what the artists of today are being incited to do by propaganda—depict the American scene. His friendly, homely groups of doctor, postman, organ grinder, mother, dad, school teacher, and children won him friends in all classes. His historical groups won him great regard, and certain of them, such as his "Lincoln Memorial," in bronze, at Manchester, N. H., are dear to a whole countryside.

The book to John Rogers' memory is a notable addition to any art library. The Americana of art needs just this kind of impetus to take its stand, chin up, in competition with the great mass of material sent to us from Europe about their creative workers. It is good to know that we, too, have ours.

News of Interest to Lovers of Art.

Thomas Hall, Chicago water color painter, has been invited to Boston for a one man show of twenty-five pictures in April. Just now Mr. Hall is in New England, at Marblehead, painting. He writes that when he was out recently at Marblehead Neck trying to paint from the Atlantic the water froze on the paper. In spite of the weather, wind, cold, and spray he managed to get two successful water colors. He is also painting a number of snow scenes.

◆

Those who are interested in early Chicago should not overlook the fine exhibit of Chicago prints, many in color, on view at the Chicago Motor club. Miss Caroline McIlvaine is responsible for the exhibition, which is a delightful one in every sense of the word. "A city and a garden" was the motto for Chicago builders in 1870. They kept to it and built and planted and planned with wisdom.

The water front is the only part of Chicago which has not been handled wisely. Even in 1863 and earlier there were dignified buildings and open spaces, parks with lawns and trees. The early prints give an accurate account of the planning of those days. Succeeding years have brought great developments, but no more sophisticated generation has bettered the motto. Continuing in its spirit, the years have increased the potential beauty of the city. Those with vision may see an even more lovely Chicago as a definite achievement in, perhaps, 2035, with a lake boulevard running many miles to south and north and caught in the middle by avenues of beautiful buildings which by night are towers of light rising from ribbons of other lights, some fixed, some moving. There is no end to the possibilities to which a beginning is seen in the Chicago Motor club exhibit.

◆

The Arts club offers three exhibitions to Jan. 31. Paintings by Pavel Tchelitchew are in the first of the large galleries, with primitive sculpture from Africa in the second. Drawings by Romaine Brooks are in the round gallery.

◆

The Tower Town galleries, 113 East Pearson street, are a new venture. They opened last Sunday with a nondescript mixture of conservative and radical pictures, none of them of great importance. It would seem better to take a line and stick to it, finding only the best of its kind to show, than to weave in and out of the schools of today, touching only the shallows.

WhenChicago Was Young

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, May 3, 1885.

DEAR JULIA: I always think of you when any nice entertainment takes place in Chicago, so I wish you were to be here for a grand musical program to be held May 9 for the benefit of the Chicago Froebel association. It will be given in the new opera festival hall on the lake front, and Scalchi, Emma Nevada, and other songbirds will warble to raise money for this organization which is such an influence for good. Its success is the result of the deep interest and great efficiency of many ladies in Chicago who are determined that children in slum neighborhoods shall be rescued from the bad influences of the street.

At an impressionable age they are placed in an environment where they learn habits of industry, cleanliness, and honesty, and where happiness is brought into their lives. I was talking with Mrs. E. W. Blatchford yesterday and she told me something of what has been accomplished by the association. Ten schools are operated by the organization. Mrs. Blatchford personally supports the morning session of one of these kindergartens, while Mrs. George Dunlap gives money for the afternoon session. They are at the same address, 147 Milton street.

Our Chicago Woman's club has been a pioneer in the work of the kindergarten and gives the money for the afternoon session of one at 22d street and Arnold. The Church of the Messiah supports the Herford kindergarten [named for their great minister, Dr. Brooke Herford]. Other institutions of the same kind, supported by the association, are on Sedgwick street, in Bethany church [West Jackson street], in the Cook County Normal school, in the Protestant Orphan asylum, and one is connected with Unity Industrial school. They have no association with the public schools, but are supported by churches or private individuals.

Mrs. Blatchford is one of my special friends, as you know, a woman of fine intelligence and character. Her husband is one with her in good works, and his name is to be found on the directorate of almost every Chicago institution for the advancement of culture or the good of mankind. He has been active in the work of the Young Men's Christian association, the Art institute, the academy of sciences, the Manual Training school, the Chicago Historical society, the Women's and Children's hospital, and I don't know how many other enterprises. The wonder is that he has any time to give to his business, but he evidently has, for he is one of our prosperous citizens. The Blatchfords have a beautiful home on La Salle avenue, near Elm street, which they call "Ulmenheim."

To return to the Froebel association, you won't wonder at its success when I tell you some of the officers' names, for you have met most of these ladies when you have visited us, and have remarked their enterprise and ability. Mrs. Blatchford is president; Mrs. T. W. Harvey, vice president; Mrs. Wirt Dexter, treasurer; Mrs. George M. Clark, secretary. On the executive committee are such ladies as Mrs. George Dunlap, Mrs. Charles Henrotin, Mrs. E. D. Preston, Mrs. Ernst Prussing, Mrs. Charles D. Avery, Mrs. Kate M. Tuley, Mrs. George Armour, Mrs. Robert S. McCormick, and Mrs. William R. Page.

Mrs. Blatchford showed me a list of the boxholders which was most impressive. The most important social lights will be present and the occasion will be a refulgent one, besides raising a nice amount, they hope, for the work of the Froebel association. Mrs. Marshall Field has taken a box, and so has her sister-in-law, Mrs. Henry Field. Others on the list are Mrs. Arthur Caton, Mrs. John M. Clark, Mrs. N. K. Fairbank, Mrs. William J. Chalmers, Mrs. Emanuel Mandel, Mrs. J. V. Farwell Jr. and the J. Harley Bradleys.

The Bradleys have asked us to dine with them and sit in their box, and we are pleased with the invitation, for they are delightful people. Mr. Bradley is a plow manufacturer and a prominent west side citizen. He was president of the Illinois club for two years . . . an organization to which west siders of importance are glad to belong. We are looking forward to the evening of May 9 with much anticipation.

I am to wear a plum colored silk, cut a bit low, with square corsage, but it isn't immodest, for it is well filled in with white tulle, and my arms are covered, as my twenty-one button gloves come up to the bottom of my puffed sleeves. Now I must close. Much love from

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Mrs. Daniel Gallery writes: "Capt. Bremner was one of our oldest and most valued friends. . . . One of my treasures is a gold plated snuffbox with the inscription: 'Rev. A. Damen, S. Smiles Mingle with Tears as 'Aloha' Is Sung

Lei Ceremony at the Departure from Honolulu Brings Mixed Emotions.

By Mason Warner.

HONOLULU.—Pacific liners arrange their schedules so as to arrive at Honolulu early in the morning and to depart in the evening after dinner, thus allowing passengers to the far east time to see the sights in the city and take a hundred mile motor trip around Oahu Island, whereon is situated Honolulu.

The tour of the island richly repays the effort. There is Pali point for instance, a high cliff at the head of a canyon reaching to the open sea through which the wind blows high, wide and blustery all the time, with a velocity seldom less than twenty miles an hour and frequently more than fifty miles. The tops of many sightseeing automobiles have been whipped off. The view toward the sea through the canyons in the mountains is magnificent. Women would enjoy it more if it were possible to keep skirts from billowing upward in the furious breeze.

Coconut Palms in Gorgeous Array.

One wonders what can be done with the mile upon mile of pineapples growing in regular rows and the mile upon mile of sugar cane, growing "walla walla," a tangled mass twisting and turning in every direction upon the ground, so dense that the outthrust leaves are burned off before the cane is cut. Sometimes a clearing fire on a sugar plantation is mistaken for a burning town or a ship on fire at sea.

Rie temple, the second largest Mormon church in the world, is about two hours' drive from Honolulu. It is not a large building, but its perfect proportions and ideal setting make it an architectural gem somewhat reminiscent of old Egyptian, Greek, or Roman temples.

There are four terraced pools of water in the foreground, flanked on both sides by rows of stately royal palms. Tropical flowers and bright dashes of color to the symmetrical shrubbery.

Rie temple and its beautiful grounds form a composite picture that lingers in the mind's eye long after one quits wondering how the leisure loving, rather thriftless natives gained the initiative and stamina necessary for its construction.

They say the congregation is large and increasing. Also that its members are industrious, prosperous, saving, law abiding—altogether "mighty fine citizens."

Captivated by the President.

"Have you ever seen President Roosevelt?" That is the first question a native Hawaiian asks a stranger nowadays. He does not wait for an answer. No, indeed. In the same breath he adds proudly: "I have!"

President Roosevelt captured the Hawaiians. They are his from the time of his visit through eternity. A son of a missionary said, and he did not intend to be irreverent: "Not until the second coming of Jesus Christ will any event transcend in importance the visit of the President of the United States to the Hawaiian Islands."

The natives show visitors where Roosevelt ate, where he slept, where he saw the hula dance, where he fished, where he made public addresses; every place associated with the epoch making visit has taken on historical significance.

The President stopped at a roadside stand and bought a drink of pineapple juice. The Hawaiian woman who runs the stand is making a fortune. Every native and every tourist stops and drinks pineapple juice where the President did. And she has not raised the old price of 5 cents a glass.

Formations of Many Colors.

The aquarium at Honolulu may prove a disappointment to those who have seen those at New York or Chicago, but if one is interested in tropical fish a ride in a glass bottomed boat out from Haleiaa beach over the Coral gardens will banish any sense of loss for having seen a show not up to the announcements.

Those beautiful coral formations are white, pink, blue, green, grey-green, bronze, brown, and dark purple, almost ebony-hued.

At the bottom of the sea, whose depths vary from two feet to thirty, you see formations like sponges, like stars, like sea monsters, like huge flowers.

Myriads of gorgeously colored fish dart hither and thither among tower-like formations that thrust up and are joined to turrets, minarets and spires by intriguing bridges. One sees what looks like the ruins of a German castle on the Rhine; there are fairy palaces and gnome caves; there are squares that look like city blocks, and here and there an isolated coral that looks like a farmhouse on a hillside.

The Ceremony of Leis and Aloha.

Visitors departing from Honolulu are given the "Aloha" farewell by the same Royal Hawaiian band and singers who greeted them on arrival.

Added to the music and singing at parting is the lovely lei ceremony. The outward bound are presented with circular strands of fragrant blossoms and flowers, and these are donned around the neck, for they are long and heavy necklaces of floral gems.

As the ship slowly gets under way, the leis are taken off and thrown back to friends whom the departing ones want to see again. If one has no friends there the lei is thrown into the water as the ship rounds Diamond Head point. Then the traveler will return to Hawaii.

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

VAGRANT thoughts of an ice and slushbound Chicagoan regarding wintertime along the Mediterranean:

Five miles from Monte Carlo, and half a mile above the sea, are the Mont Agel golf links, where you alternately tee off toward the snow of the Alpes Maritimes and the waters of the Côte d'Azur.

At the Sports club in Alexandria you play on grounds bordered by the Antoniadis gardens and fringed by the rustling surf. A half hour's ride from Cairo brings you to Mona house, where you wield your brassie and niblick under the shadow of the pyramids, with wild desert roses and rivulets comprising the roughs. The new Morocco links on the slopes of the Kasbah permit you to whizz your ball around the smallest Mohammedan village in the world, the while you view mist-veiled Spain and Gibraltar.

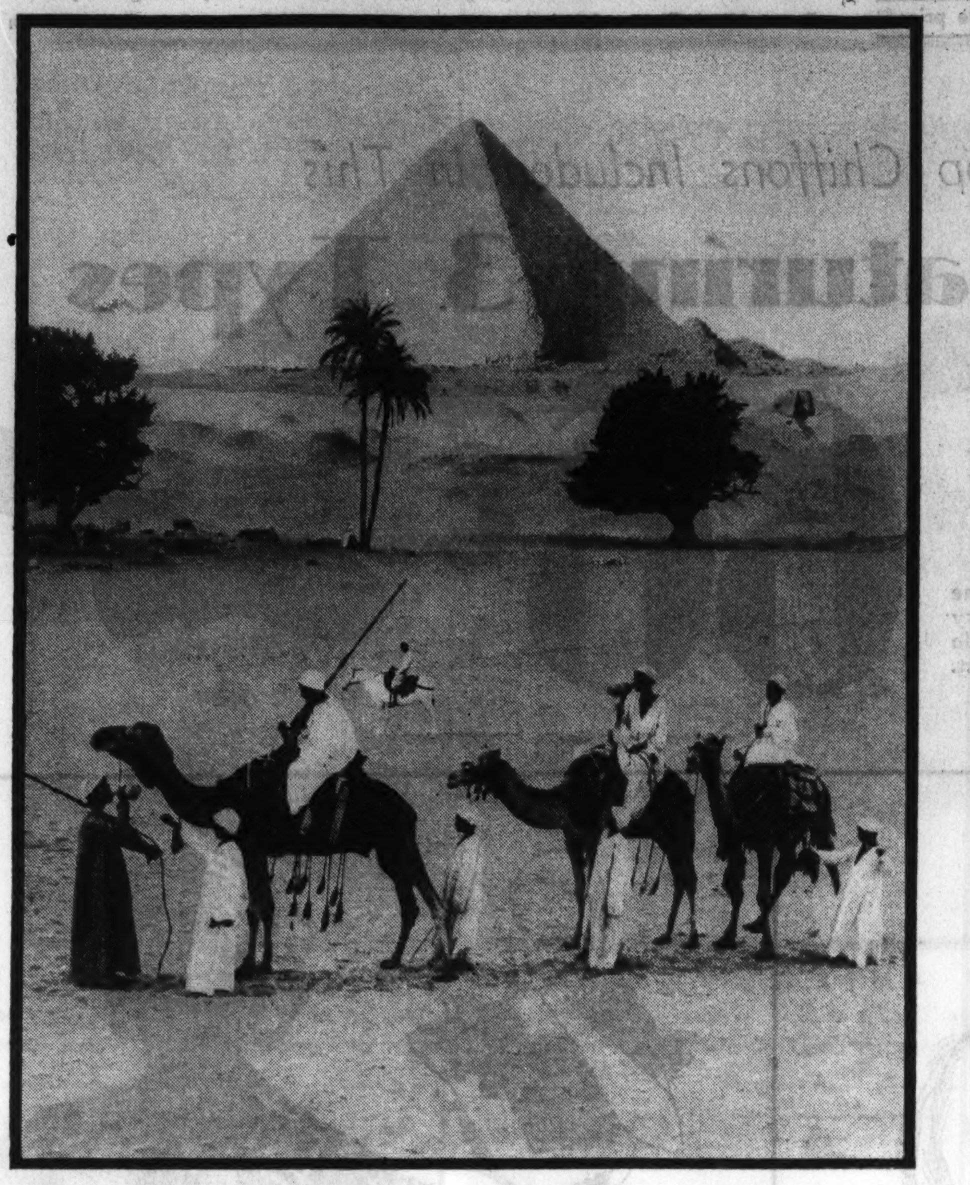
● At Alcuida, in Mallorca, the course is bounded by orange and lemon trees, and adjoining it is the place where recent excavations brought to light the instruments used in gladiator games.

The first golf links of Palestine are about ready to open; they're between Tel-Aviv and Jaffa. In the Aegean Islands the course of the Sportiva del Golf Rodi is reached by steamer from Rhodes, while on the Isle of Cyprus the course at Nicosia is flanked by monuments from the golden age of the Lusignans.

The Mondello club at Palermo, with a vineyard setting, winds from the sea to the foothills. The Club Acqua Santa, near Rome, follows the Appian way and commands a panorama of the Castelli Romani. The San Remo course is perched high over the bay. The Cliff club at Rapallo dips into the sea.

At Beirut, in Syria, the links stretch into the Lebanon mountains, where Solomon cut the cedars for his temple. And at Wadi Halfa, in the northernmost corner of the Sudan, the Grand club of Putting Green lies 300 feet below the Rock of Abu Sir and close to what was once Lord Kitchener's reconquest headquarters. There the links reach out toward the second greatest cataract of the White Nile and edge a stream where a gallery of expectant and hungry crocodiles awaits both player and misdirected balls.

● If you're more interested in indoor than outdoor games, you'll probably devote much of your Mediterranean vacation to Monaco. There one luxurious hotel after another climbs the slope of Beausoleil. Into the Port of Hercules come yachts and liners from all over the world. Monte Carlo's chief surprise for the newcomer lies in the fact that everything is so clean, so peaceful, and so beautiful.



IN THE SHADOW OF THE GREAT PYRAMID

As in the days of the Pharaohs, a passing caravan destined for Cairo pauses for refreshments a short distance from the great Pyramid of Giza. A new trolley line and a modern two-way boulevard from Cairo to Giza is to be opened, so that visitors soon can view the scenery with no more difficulty than if it were on the outskirts of an American city.

[Courtesy American Export Line.]

The one bright spot at night is the casino, a showy structure amid showy grounds.

After that comes the Grand Corniche drive to Nice. As your auto winds among the mountains, the ancient castles and the modern villas, with the sea nearly always visible below, you're liable to conclude, as have most other travelers, that it's the earth's nearest approach to heaven.

● Or maybe you'd prefer a dip into bygone eras. The Exposition Industrielle will open in Cairo today and continue till March, and it will show something of Egypt's astonishing history. The Grande Fantasie Arabe exposition and carnival will be held in February, along with the Exposition des Fleurs and the royal opera. The Nile pageant, which depicts the river in its more amiable moods, will be reenacted the first week in March.

St. Petersburg Boasts All-Time Visitors' Record

Chicago Leads Northern Cities in Sending People to Winter Resort.

By Hal Foust.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—An estimated 260,000 northerers are visiting this peninsula between Tampa bay and the Gulf of Mexico this winter—a 20 per cent gain over last year. It's an all time record for the resort industry, exceeding the boom era's best figures.

More of these winter guests are coming from Chicago than from any other city of the United States. Generally speaking, New Yorkers of all classes prefer the social whirl and the carnival atmosphere of Miami and Miami Beach when coming to Florida.

St. Petersburg is not a hilarious resort. It makes no pretense of being such. Its pride, justly so, is that it is quiet, restful, and hospitable.

Pelicans sit on pilings at the recreational pier projecting into Tampa bay and watch the tourists. The tourists sit on the benches at the water's edge and watch the pelicans.

A Well Established Winter Colony.

In public parks tourists play checkers or bridge under spreading banyan trees. One of these giants of the forest forms the roof for a private school for boys. A public school holds classes on the beach on warm days through the winter.

The winter colony here has been well established for many years and there are quite a number of northerners who arrive early enough and stay late enough to put children in school here.

Horse shoes, lawn bowling, and roque are popular diversions. There are 6,000 members of a shuffle board club. Later in the winter the Yankees and the Braves will arrive for their baseball pre-season training.

The waters of the bay and of the gulf attract fishermen and those who would be fishermen for a day. The charges for parties chartering a fishing boat and guide are moderate.

Jack Burke of Washington, D. C., and Al Strum, secretary of the St. Petersburg Yacht club, took this reporter for a fishing trip in the Burke's motorboat, the Laola. On leaving the dock, they said there was little likelihood of any catch because a cold spell had sent the fish into deep water for a few days.

The Sun and the Salt Air.

But the inactivity of the baited lines trailing from the boat didn't detract from the pleasure of the cruise. The sun breaking through fleecy clouds warmed bodies bared to the waist. Salt air sharpened appetites for beans and hot dogs.

A logger head turtle raised a head as big as a dog's from the water and then dived, to be seen no more. A school of porpoise, about six feet long, arched their bodies as they emerged and plunged on the blue surface.

A pair of pelicans passed, alternately flapping their wings and then coasting not more than a foot above the water. There were flocks of gulls, flocks of cormorants [fish eating birds], and flocks of ducks, some in flight, some swimming over beds of wild celery, and some feeding on sandbars. Stringrays, with a body and head as one, looking like a flexible dinner plate with a tail, could be seen on the sand bottom, six feet below the surface, fluttering away at the approach of the boat with their poisonous spike tails covering their retreat.

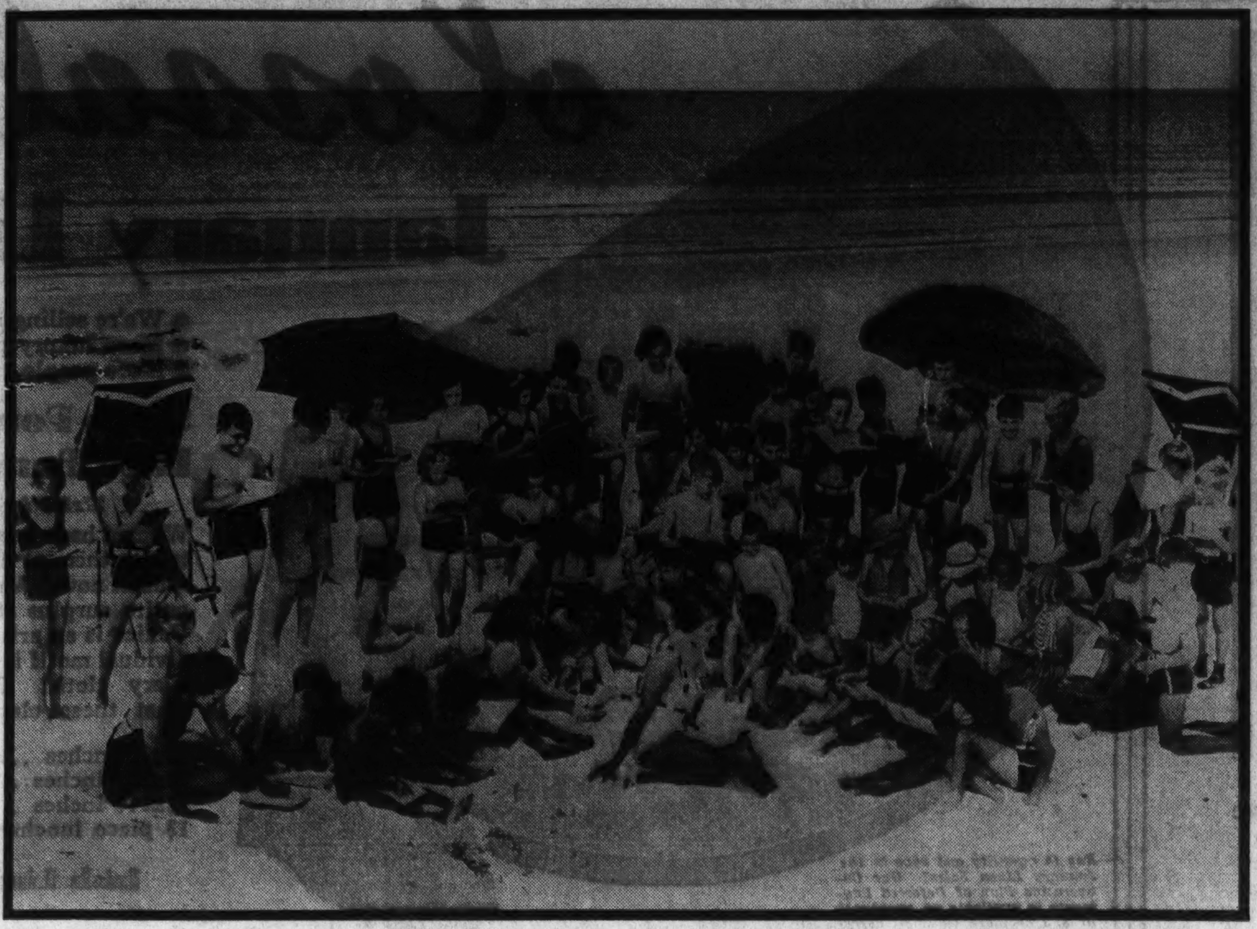
A thin haze raised from the horizon as the morning grew older and exposed shore lines of peaked pines and gracefully bent palm trees. The bay is about eight miles across.

The Panorama from the Air.

On another day the reporter was shown this same scene from the air, first in the blimp Reliance, which carried thousands of sightseers at A Century of Progress, and then in the private plane of J. Leslie Younghusband, Chicago sportsman and cosmetician who has a winter home here.

Tampa, the commercial city at the head of this bay, could be seen to the northeast about twenty miles away. The horizon on the west became more distant with elevation, a broad expanse of the gulf reflecting varying sky colors. The irregular shore line, with inlets, small lakes and islands, was a green fringe at the water's edge.

St. Petersburg, with a summer population of 47,000, was in bas relief, displaying its hotels and winter homes that house visitors outnumbering permanent residents three to one.



NO HOOKY IN THIS OUTDOOR FLORIDA SCHOOL

A hundred per cent attendance is said to be the rule at St. Petersburg's celebrated "Sunshine school," where both the pupils and the teachers wear nothing but bathing suits while indulging in the four R's: Readin', ritin', 'rithmetic—and rays of the sun.

Bob Becker Tells of Vampire Bats and His Revenge

TALES gathered in the course of "a misspent life of hunting and fishing"—as he termed it—were related by Bob Becker, THE TRIBUNE's outdoors sports authority, at the January dinner of the Bons Vivants, Chicago society of steamship and travel agents, at the Morrison hotel Monday evening.

Mr. Becker took his listeners through hurried visits to the far places of the earth and then centered their attention on South America. The story about the vampire bats down there got the biggest rise out of the crowd. The speaker told how the bats one night apparently came out of nowhere, settled on the shoulders of six mules of a Field museum expedition, and left a trail of dead mules and blood. Whereupon, Mr. Becker set forth, he got out his 20 gauge shotgun, found the bat roost in an abandoned chapel, and managed to get revenge in the shape of the bodies of thirty-two of the vampires.

In the other travelogue of the evening Victor Paul of the International Mercantile Marine did quick and effective crayon drawings of Hawaii, Japan, China, and India. Music was furnished by a Hawaiian troupe.

It was announced that reservations were pouring in for the Bons Vivants' main party of the year, the "recovery ball" at the Palmer house Saturday evening, Feb. 2.

Champion Ski Jumpers Seek New Records

ATTEMPTS will be made to better Bob Lymburne's North American ski jump record of 287 feet and Sigurd Ruud's world record jump of 308 feet when the champions meet at the 1935 winter carnival at Revelstoke, B. C., Feb. 5 and 6.

On the "big hill," with a mountain for a runway, Nels Nelson, Canadian Pacific brakeman, set a record of 240 feet in 1925. This stood till March 15, 1933, when Bob Lymburne went 287 feet. The present world record of 308 feet was set by Sigurd Ruudd in Norway, his native country.

Mercer to Conduct Tours of Continent

CHARLES MERCER, who for eighteen years has directed the European tours of E. M. Newman, will this year conduct tours under his own name. Mr. Mercer has crossed the Atlantic fifty-seven times. He spends four months of every year in the capitals, resorts, and rural parts of Europe. He says he hopes some day to sign a ninety-nine year lease on a cabin on some Atlantic liner. His favorite playgrounds are the British Isles, central Europe, Holland, Belgium, France, Spain, Italy, and North Africa.

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations, to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Why is the thistle the national emblem of Scotland?—M. G.

One night when the Danes were attempting to surprise an encampment of Scots one of them trod upon a thistle. The pain caused him to cry out, thus warning the Scots in time. The Danes were quickly defeated. Ever since then the thistle has been the insignia of Scotland.

◆

Is there a complete tour of Europe being offered for this spring?—J. D.

One will sail March 30. It is of sixty days' duration and visits Italy, France, Germany, Holland, Belgium, and England. The Rex will be used on the way over and the Washington on the return trip. The tour will be operated by Raymond-Whitcomb.

Mills Heads Plaza Office in Chicago

HENRY A. ROST, managing director of the Plaza, in New York, last week announced appointment of J. N. Mills as manager of the Chicago office, in the McCormick building. In addition to reserving accommodations at the Plaza the Chicago office will obtain transportation by air line or railroad and prearrange details of the trip prior to arrival in New York.

"I like your New Face Powder very much indeed"

SAYS THIS PROMINENT YOUNG MEMBER OF NEW YORK SOCIETY

● And so, we believe, will you. For Tangee Face Powder now contains the same magic color principle of the famous Tangee Lipstick . . . which produces a soft underglow, making your skin look younger, fresher, more natural. There is no more "powdery" look or mask-like effect, for this remarkable new powder matches your own natural skin tones. Best of all, it costs but 55 cents and $1.10 at good shops, everywhere.

Mrs. Robert McK. Herndon, of New York and Southampton. She was educated at the exclusive Ethel Walker School and made her debut at the Waldorf in 1932.

MORE EFFECTIVE RELIEF FOR COLDS

...without stinging the nose or throat

Often the simplest medicine is the most effective. Vapex is an outstanding example of this.

Simply sprinkle Vapex on a handkerchief and breathe. At once the congestion is broken and your head feels clear. But the powerful vapor does more than this; it soothes the swollen and inflamed passages, and stimulates the cold-fighting functions of the nose and throat.

NEW LOW PRICE

Be sure you get REAL Vapex. Costs but half a cent an application.

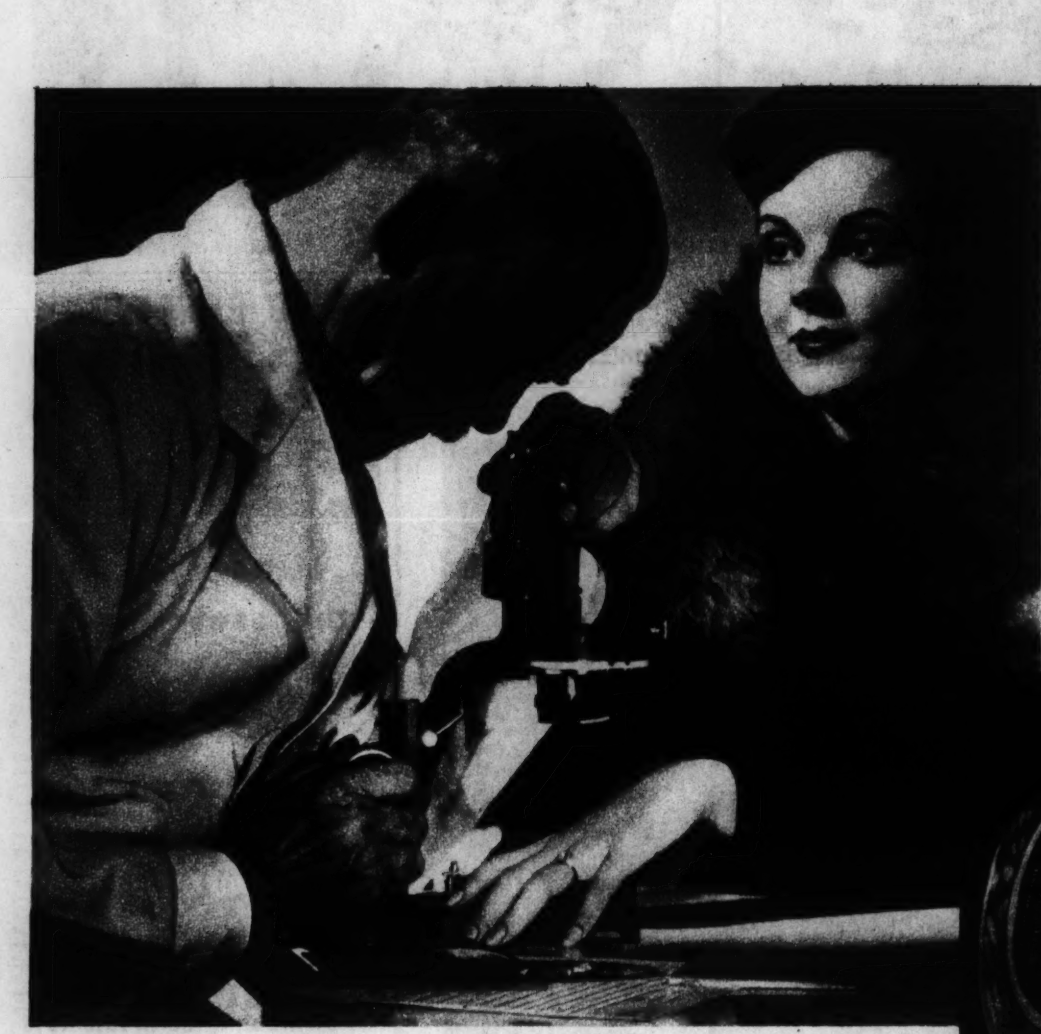
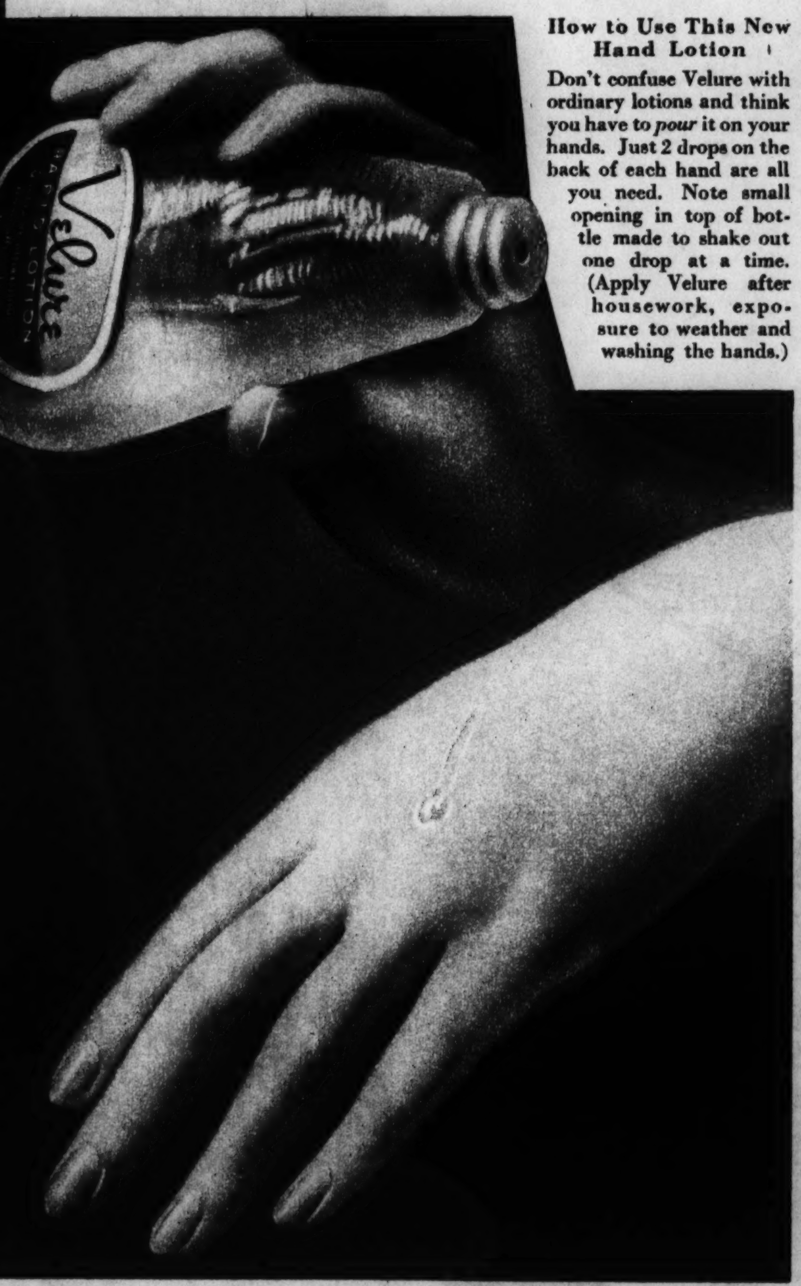
THE FIRST HAND LOTION TO WORK WITH Nature

Actually stimulates the oil cells to increase the flow of natural softening oils to the skin

• Forget other hand lotions you may have tried—for none of them was like Velure. Velure corrects the cause of dry rough hands—in Nature's way. Hands improve so quickly that women are amazed.





How to Use This New Hand Lotion

Don't confuse Velure with ordinary lotions and think you have to pour it on your hands. Just 2 drops on the back of each hand are all you need. Note small opening in top of bottle made to shake out one drop at a time. (Apply Velure after housework, exposure to weather and washing the hands.)

WHY HANDS AGE SO FAST

• Nature supplies oils from the tiny cells in the underskin to keep hands soft. But housework, exposure to weather, even water, dry out these natural oils. That's why most women so soon find their hands coarsening—getting an oldish look.

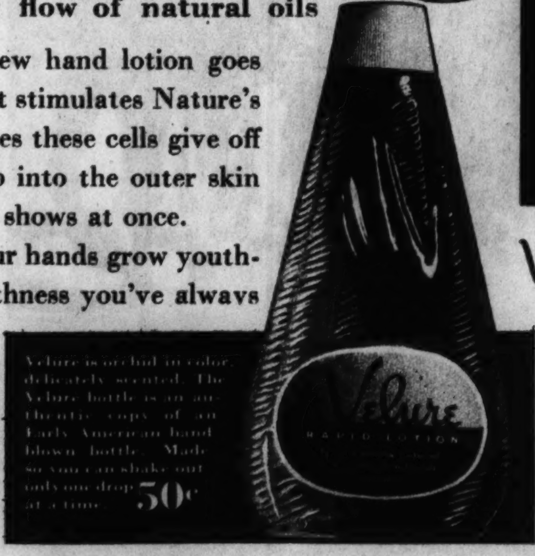
Now, however, a brilliant organic chemist has created a lotion which keeps hands beautiful by helping Nature restore the flow of natural oils.

Velure

SENSATIONAL NEW LOTION helps Nature keep hands smooth by restoring flow of natural oils

• Light and penetrating, this new hand lotion goes quickly to the underskin. There it stimulates Nature's oil cells to normal activity—makes these cells give off more precious oil which flows up into the outer skin and keeps it soft. Improvement shows at once.

Then day by day you'll see your hands grow youthfully soft—with that satin smoothness you've always wished for! Try Velure today. On sale now at your druggist or department store. Or send coupon for purse-size trial bottle of Velure that contains 6-day supply.



Velure is orchid in color, delicately scented. The Velure bottle is an authentic copy of an Early American hand blown bottle. Made so you can shake out only one drop at a time. 50¢
